MAY APPEAL TO JUDGE
Norfolk, Neb.—After postponing the sale of bankrupt chattels of John Heindold, farmer near Stanton, where between 600 and 700 farmers gathered Tuesday to prevent the sale, Forrest Lear, referee in bankruptcy, announced he was undecided what action he would next take, but there was a possibility the matter will be taken up with Federal Judge Woodrugh.

Protests Voiced Upon Allotment Features of Bill

Grain Dealers' Head Declares That Measure a Costly Try; Good Is Doubtful.

Washington, Jan. 27.—From grain dealers and cotton spinners, the senate agriculture committee today heard outspoken objections to the domestic allotment farm relief bill.

In a telegram from Thomas R. Cain, Bloomington, Ill., president of the Farmers' National Grain Dealers association, the bill was assailed as "a huge costly experiment, a price fixing, tax increasing measure doubtful in accomplishment and requiring huge administrative machinery."

"It places Washington officialdom in direct control of every farm in the country," said the wire placed in the record by Chairman McNary (rep., Ore.). "The farmers lose control of their own affairs under such a plan."

Says Revolution Brewing.
"A country revolution is brewing, not against government, but against false farm leadership trying to hang upon us an allotment plan or other unsound legislative experiments."

Testifying before the committee, witnesses representing the American and National Cotton Manufacturers' association were emphatic in asserting the bill would prove a deadly boomerang to the cotton farmer, reduce cotton consumption by raising prices and add to unemployment by forcing the closing of many textile plants.

William D. Anderson of Macon, Ga., one of the witnesses, was questioned sharply by Senator Frazier (rep., N. D.), when he said the farmer, "relatively speaking is not in a much worse fix than his neighbor in the city."

Hearings Continue.
Anderson said he was a farmer himself, remarking he was "sorry to say so," and that he had a great deal of sympathy with the plight of the agriculturist. Frazier asserted, however, that Anderson was talking more from "the standpoint of the cotton manufacturer than the farmer."

Prospects tonight were that hearings on the bill would continue thru-out next week. Meat packers are preparing to voice vigorous opposition to the measure. As passed by the house it provides for a tax on the packer or other processor, the money to go to the farmer in an amount sufficient to bring his price to the pre-war level on condition he cuts production 20 per cent.

Members of the house busied themselves meanwhile with bankruptcy and farm foreclosure matters.

A definite decision to force a vote there Monday on the bankruptcy bill under a suspension of the rules designed to facilitate consideration. The farmer under this bill could apply to a federal court for a scaling down of his debts.

FARMER PROTESTS MOUNT
Des Moines.—Massed protest against farm mortgage foreclosures spread beyond sectional limits, echoing from Idaho to Ohio. At Nampa, Ida., the United Farmers' league threaten to get out "a six shooter and four red blooded men," to force the legislature to enact mortgage relief laws.

Wood county, Ohio, farmers assembled to block a foreclosure and did so by removing a finance company bidder from the vicinity of the auction platform. Governor Berry of South Dakota urged mortgage holders to refrain from foreclosure "whenever possible."

At LeMars, Ia., Plymouth county farmers, "pioneers" in the forcible prevention of foreclosure sales, stopped a foreclosure of the home of Dr. D. W. Cunningham, to whom many of them said they owed dental bills. Directors of the national farmers holiday association, meeting at Des Moines, placed its influence behind "all organized efforts, local, county or state," whether in the name of the association or not, to protect farm property from foreclosure and to obtain cost of production for farm products.

Wisconsin authorities brought charges of rioting against eleven farmers as the result of a forced sale at Jefferson, where cattle and farm equipment was auctioned off at top bids of several cents and then returned to the original owner. Governor Herring assured a group of Wapello county farmers of his support in delaying farm mortgage sales.

Injunction Bolsters Up Farm Sale Prices

'Nickel Bidder' Is Served With Copy and Selling Resumes Normally.

Omaha.—A blanket injunction was resorted to by Sarpy county officials Thursday to prevent more than a score of persons attending a public sale at the farm rented by Wesley Karshner.

The injunction prevented those served from participating in any demonstration or taking part in the sale. With Sheriff Mendell and a half dozen deputies standing guard, the sale was completed. The goods brought average prices.

W. R. Patrick, attorney for Mrs. Marie Combs, Omaha, owner of the farm, said the injunction was secured to prevent any trouble. He said Mrs. Combs had received several anonymous threats by telephone.

"She was warned," Patrick said, "that if the sale was held, the farm house would be set on fire."

Karshner became a renter on the farm last March but has paid little rental, Patrick asserted. The attorney declared he had learned that Karshner had disposed of some of his stock and that he had then started replevin action on the remainder.

The stock and crop shares were secured under a chattel mortgage. Karshner resisted the replevin action in court but lost the suit.

Karshner was served with the injunction at noon, Sheriff Mundell said. When the first five cent bid was heard, Sheriff Mundell immediately served the bidder with a copy of the injunction order. After a score of such copies had been served, the bidding went on "in a normal manner," Mundell reported.

HELD WITH FIFTY RADIOS
Omaha.—Police Wednesday night took into custody three men after one of the trio had pawned a radio with the number filed off. The radio was one of fifty in the truck the men were driving. The men held are Arthur Wilson and Virgil Baker of Detroit, and Ralph McAnelly of Chicago. They told police they were trucking the radios from Chicago to Denver and had decided to pawn one in order to meet unexpected expenses. McAnelly asserted he was a member of the Denver firm that had hired Wilson to truck the radios west. McAnelly admitted pawning the radio, police said, but denied he had mutilated the number.

Endres and Condit Foes at Convention

Present State Sheriff Demands Reorganization of State Sheriffs' Association.

Omaha.—The annual convention of the Nebraska State Sheriffs' association opened here Wednesday with vigorous argument centering around a proposal that the association be "reorganized."

State Sheriff Endres, saying he was spokesman for a group of dissatisfied members, made the motion for reorganizing. He charged the association was now a "one-man organization."

Endres then added to the opinion that former State Sheriff Condit, who for the past ten years has been association president, was not even a commissioned officer.

"Where did you get your commission?" Endres asked Condit.

"From you," Condit replied.

"Show it to me," Endres answered and then, without waiting for a reply, he went on to urge reorganization so "they could present a firm and solid front in their demands for favorable legislation."

He declared that Douglas county alone had made an effort to prevent passage of H. R. 14, a bill that would reduce the mileage allowance of sheriffs from 10 to 5 cents a mile.

In reply Condit told of his own frequent appearances before legislative committees and of a promise from the senate committee that it would take no action until after the convention here.

Charles Anderson, Lincoln constable, moved that the chair appoint a committee to consider what action the association had best take in regard to the bill and after much further discussion the motion was passed.

Condit named Sheriffs Kavanaugh, Columbus; Schultz, Sidney; Salisbury, North Platte; Steinacher, Geneva, and Hudson, Frontier, as the committee.—State Journal.

NEBLE RAPS AT SORESENSEN
Omaha.—Former Attorney General Sorensen was described as a "muddier" in Omaha affairs Wednesday by Municipal Judge Nebel, sitting on the police court bench.

"He has told some judges here what to do, but he's not going to mollycoddle any cases for me," the judge said after J. Thull, private collector appearing in court against two brothers charged with defrauding an inn keeper, had produced a letter from Sorensen outlining the law.

Judge Nebel dismissed the case after Wayne and Martin Gaitner said that after they moved they called the landlady who preferred the charges, promising to pay but explaining that they were out of work and had no money at the time.

Rerring to the letter produced from Sorensen, Judge Nebel said "he has handed down opinions regarding investigators who can run around Omaha and go into private houses without search warrants but that is illegal."

SEE ATTEMPT TO DEFRAUD
Falls City, Neb.—District Judge Raper ruled here Wednesday that circumstances surrounding the conveyance of a chattel mortgage by Grover Saville, a Salem farmer to a relative, S. W. Carlisle, indicated an attempt had been made to defraud creditors.

The court held that a levy of the Bank of Salem on personal property constituted a prior lien to the mortgage. It was the first time in recent years that a chattel has been attacked here on the grounds of fraud, attorneys said.

The bank had secured a judgment against Saville for $576 on a note. Sheriff Davies then levied on the property to satisfy the mortgage but Carlisle temporarily stopped the sale by displaying the recorded mortgage. Judge Raper made the ruling during a hearing on Carlisle's request to permanently enjoin the sale and upon a petition of intervention by the bank.

Representative Rainey of Illinois says he doesn't believe anybody knows anything about the gold standard any more, or what it means. Mr. Rainey is inviting trouble, talking like that. There are between 60 and 80 million people in America who know all about the gold standard, and have written letters to newspapers and magazines admitting as much; and no doubt several thousand of them live right in Mr. Rainey's district.

OMAHA'S OLDEST NATIVE SON

From Friday's Daily
Jeremiah A. Linahan, Omaha's oldest native son is celebrating his 77th birthday today at his home in that city. Mr. Linahan has a great deal of interest in Plattsmouth as he with the late James E. Riley, built the Hotel Riley in this city back in the early nineties.

The aged man, who has been active in the business affairs of Omaha and eastern Nebraska, was interviewed by the World-Herald which is as follows:

"Birthdays and taxes—one's just as bad as the other," he observed. "There they are, staring you in the face. You can't get away from them."

Linahan was born in a log cabin on the southeast corner of what is now Twelfth and Jones streets.

A widower, he lives alone in an upstairs room at 4320 Fort street, content to do all his own work. He takes pride in his cooking, and eats four times a day.

He has seen Omaha develop from a town of about three hundred. He has expectations of seeing it grow to a half million.

"Wait until they strike natural gas and oil near Omaha—it's coming sure," he predicted. "Then watch Omaha grow. Why, I may live to see Omaha extending west as far as Waterloo, and south as far as Plattsmouth. Factories will come in by the hundreds. Big business will come. With our excellent railroads and our rivers . . . everything is in our favor."

The depression has hit Linahan pretty hard, he said. He lived through the hard times of '73 and '93, losing about 50 thousand dollars in the latter, he estimated.

Linahan owns five houses. Three are vacant. The tenants in the others have not been able to pay their rent for several months. But he permits them to stay, expecting some day they will be on their feet again.

"Just say that I'm feeling fine, and expect to live for years to come," Linahan said. "I'm 77 years young, and have a clear conscience."

The marriage lines were read by the Rev. Leon, pastor of the church and the ring service used in the ceremony.

Following the wedding the bridal party returned to La Platte where they were entertained last evening at a most delightful wedding dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wall.

SHIPS LUMBER TO OMAHA
The Nebraska Basket Co., of this city, which operates a saw mill in connection with their plant, has just shipped a consignment of sawed logs to Omaha where there has been an active demand for the rough dressed native lumber. The logs were secured in this locality and worked over in the local mill and then delivered to Omaha. Walnut, basswood and oak were the woods largely used in the making of the lumber.

The basket factory is now commencing to receive a fine array of the orders for the King Hill baskets of various types to be used in the handling of the early crops of vegetables and fruits by the wholesalers in this part of the west.
