PROPOSES HITCHCOCK FOR SENATE VACANCY

If the fulfillment of personal ambitions were the only pressing consideration involved, Governor Bryan would be justified in delaying the appointment of a successor to the late United States Senator R. B. Howell. It always seems a bit premature to start talking, sometimes wrangling, about who is to get a man's job before the breath of life is fairly out of his body. Under normal conditions, it would appear to be the decent thing to let such a vacancy extend over a reasonable period of mourning.

Under existing circumstances, however, there is urgent public necessity for capable representation of the state of Nebraska in the United States senate. Problems of national concern are confronting that body, and emergency measures for the relief of the nation's current distress are being presented almost hourly. It is imperative that the federal government dating business to reduce costs and be fully and capably manner. A DIURETIC

The last powerful and partially uccessful effort by an administration at Washington to correct the aggregated evils of our civil life came in the first administration of Wilson. President Roosevelt, faced with the same necessity, has a phenominal advantage over Wilson. The patient, in Wilson's day, was only half sick. The defenders of outworn and obstructive institutions, the beneficiaries of special privilege, were then still potent and of good repute. Nearly every banker in the United States fought, and bankers had vast power and prestige then, the reform in banking which Wilson projected, the federal reserve system. Now banking is so sick that bankers almost unanimously are calling for the Bryan proposal of 25 years ago, the government guarantee of bank deposits. "Big Business," in Wilson's time, was holding out the promise which today is ashes in our hands, that "new era" which preceded 1929. The tariffs and the special privileges now proved vain and evil, could still be held out then as instruments of good. All this is now of the discredited past. The opposition which Wilson had to break lies now, self broken, at Franklin

There has grown up a strong sentiment for the guarantee of bank deuntil recently opposed to the plan, way of restoring confidence. Important bankers are writing to members of congress in favor of guaranteeing deposits. And, unless the new administration says no, the guarantee of deposits may pass in the next session. If there is any one qualified to speak on the subject of insuring depositors against losses he is Representative Ashton C. Shallenberger of Nebraska. He has had the unique experience of starting the guarantee system of Nebraska and of conducting, 20 years later, the inquiry into the reasons why it failed.

He was elected governor of Nebraska in 1908 on the issue of guaranteeing bank deposits. He still believes that the system might be made to work and he has a clear idea of Start acrost the medder, run a mile or two. Heaving like I'm windbroke, get wet clean through.

Get back to the hosses, then for recompense, Nance got straddle the barbed wire fence.

Joints all a-aching and muscles in a ferk. I'm fit as a fiddle for a full day's work.

Work all summer till winter is nigh. Then lgure up the books and heave a big sigh.

Worked all year, didn't make a thing. Got less cash new than I had last spring.

Now some people say that there ain't no hell, But they never farmed, so they can't tell.

When spring rolls round, I'll take another chance. While the fringe grows longer on my old pants.

Give my 'spenders a hitch, my beit another jerk, And, by heck, I'm ready for a full year's work.

QUESTION OF WARLORDS

A Japanese note to Russia, written in 1904, has been discovered in the British foreign office, and has been used by the London Times to confound the Japanese statesmen. The note refers to the "repeated refusal of the Imperial Russian government to accept the obligation to respect the territorial integrity of China in Manchuria." And now Japan is claiming that Manchuria is not and has not been Chinese. The London Times thinks Japan is inconsistent.

The Japanese answer is not far to seek. Whether Manchuria was or was not part of China, it has all been settled by the people of Manchuria themselves, who have separated from China and set up the state of Manchukuo. Surely they had the right of self-determination, as Japan has repeatedly pointed out to the League of Nations.

unconvinced that the people of Manchuria voluntarily set up a government of their own. It chooses to beis supported not by the people of that region, but by the Japanese army And it can also be said that it is not the army of Manchukuo, but that m16-2w of Japan, which is now threatening to clear the province of Jehol, and to go even farther if China dares resist. The pretense of Manchukuo as sovereignty can scarcely be maintained if it is Japan that is going to conquer Jehol.

Japanese argument, an integral part when did China part with Manchuria? Perhaps the Japanese warlords can fix the date-Detroit News.
