Murdock Bank Doing Business
The Bank of Murdock, which was closed during the banking holiday, is again open for the transaction of business and serving its customers to the best of its ability. While old accounts are restricted as to withdrawals at this time, new deposits are being accepted subject to withdrawal at any time. The gradual releasing of frozen assets will clear up this condition of restrictions on withdrawals of old accounts now imposed on hundreds of banks in the state of Nebraska, and in time work to the advantage of both the depositors and stockholders.

Nominate City Ticket
On Wednesday of last week the voters of the village of Murdock held their city caucus and placed in nomination six candidates to fill the positions on the town board to become vacant this year. There are three to be elected, and twice that number were placed in nomination so the voters might have opportunity to express their preference. Those named are C. I. Long, Charles Kupke, Dr. L. D. Lee, S. P. Lies, F. A. Melvin and Henry Hinemann.
It is reported that three of those selected will not stand for election, withdrawing their names, which will make imperative the election of the remaining three or the writing in of names by the voters, in accordance with the American method of voting, which provides for a blank line under each office to be filled, as well as the names of all regular nominees.
Quite a different situation here than in Omaha, where there are seventy candidates for city commissioner and only seven to be elected.

Wheat at 95c, Corn at 65 -- is Hope for 1933

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace Tells Aims of the New Farm Aid Measure.

Washington, March 16.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace today outlined in general terms his plan for returning the purchasing power of the farmer to pre-war levels, which will mean from 90 to 95 cents for Nebraska wheat, 65 cents or more for corn, and more than 7 cents for hogs.

In a press conference, the Iowan answered rapid fire questions as congress late this afternoon received his farm bill and prepared to act upon it. The bill bears the stamp of approval of the White House, democratic leaders in congress, and the major farm organizations.

Weights on Allotment.
Secretary Wallace agreed with the view that the bill, giving him sweeping powers to tax processors, to enter into marketing agreements with producers, and to pay them rental or benefit payments for acreage reduction, weighs heavily upon the original allotment plan idea. This will be especially true in dealing with wheat, hogs, beef, and corn, he admitted.

The secretary denied that the efforts under the bill to reach a "parity price" for farm products will destroy the speculative grain and futures markets will have to take into consideration the amount of tax assessed on producers of the specific commodity, if a tax is applied under his power granted in the bill.

"Rapidly as Possible."
No prediction as to the time for reaching the parity prices was made, but Wallace said "the provisions of the bill will be applied as rapidly as possible after enactment."

The measure is broad and general, and the opinion here is that a great part of its effectiveness will depend upon administration. Wallace said no attention had yet been given to the details of the administration, refusing to hazard a guess as to the personnel which will be required to carry out its features.

He said, however, that the local administration is expected to be done among the farmers themselves. Without any pay or with only very small remuneration. He pointed out that money spent in this manner will enter the rural communities, where the administration is aiming to begin its revival of prosperity.

"We are going into this thing on a giant scale," he said. "We want everyone, particular processors who may have to collect a tax, to enter with the same spirit we tackled the war. We must revive the purchasing power of the farmer. To do so will revive the same power for the urban worker."

John D. Foreman, of Lincoln, was a visitor in Alvo on last Wednesday, looking after some business matters and had a demonstration of a difference of opinion with his brother, George Foreman, about some horses which John and a couple of companions had come to take back to Lincoln with them. In the settlement, or attempted settlement, Mr. George Foreman was roughly handled, which caused Sheriff Homer Sylvester and Deputy Lancaster to go to Lincoln with an invitation for Mr. Foreman to visit Plattsmouth, which he did. On Thursday afternoon a telephone call asked George Foreman also to come to Plattsmouth for a final settlement of the difficulty.

Alvo Bank Opens Unrestricted

The Bank of Alvo was one of five state banks in Cass county permitted to open for normal business functions and without restrictions save those imposed by the national government, to-wit, barring withdrawal of gold or gold certificates and withdrawal of money for hoarding. With many of the banks limited in the amount of withdrawals permitted, it is very pleasing to the people of Alvo to know that their bank is in such sound financial condition.

At the auditorium of the Alvo public schools on last Wednesday evening was held a most interesting and instructive meeting of the Parent Teachers association of the Alvo

Miss Vera Upton, of University Place, who is an accomplished pianist, assisted in the entertainment. There were a number of songs and reading which filled the evening with an abundance of entertainment. The organization is to be congratulated on their success. There were more in attendance than could be accommodated inside the building and many had to be turned away.

Suffers Severe Stroke

Last Saturday when Robert Custer went to see his friend, William Stewart, at his place of business about eight o'clock, and receiving no answer to his alarm at the door, looked in the window and observed Mr. Stewart helpless on the floor. Notifying a number of the neighbors, it was quickly ascertained it would be necessary to break the glass in the door in order to get into the house. When the entrance was effected, they found Mr. Stewart on the floor unconscious, with his shoes pulled on but not laced. A physician was secured and the unfortunate man placed on his bed and all possible done for his restoration. He returned to consciousness in a short time, but is unable to use his right hand or to talk.

The neighbors looked after his welfare and notified his two sons, Lee and Roy, who came and have since been caring for the unfortunate man. It is expected that he will rally, but it is feared that he will not be entirely restored to his former health.

'Inglewood Faults' Seen as Quake Cause

Weight of Shoreline, Cooling Earth, Bring Stress According to Dr. Beno Gutenberg.

Pasadena, Cal.—The "Inglewood faults," a break in rock strata starting in the Baldwin hills north of Inglewood and running under land and sea southward nearly to San Diego, was blamed today by Dr. Beno Gutenberg for southern California's earthquakes.

Dr. Gutenberg, recognized as one of the world's foremost seismological authorities, reached his conclusion after a tour of the affected areas.

"The causes of earthquakes are inside the earth," he said, "not externally, not in the sun or moon."

"The most direct cause comes from the pressure exerted by continents against ocean beds. The continents are high and heavy, whereas the ocean floors are low, and water in the ocean averages a third lighter than land.

"Where the shore has high lands, therefore, the difference in the weight is enough to cause faults and accompanying quakes. Moreover, as the earth ages, it gets cooler and contracts, thus causing stresses in the crust which may result in earthquakes.

"Migrations of the earth's magnetic poles may likewise have an effect. Then, when the forces have accumulated and are ready to break out, any number of trigger forces, such as air pressure, tides, heavy rains and so on, may set the forces loose."

LAMBS HUNTED FOR RABBITS

Augusta, Ga.—Two lambs mothered by a hound and taught to hunt rabbits by her puppies—that's the story a farmer told under oath applying to federal farm agents for a crop loan. The narrative came in answer to the agent's routine inquiry as to whether he possessed sheep. Here's the story.

"I had an old sheep that presented me with two lambs and then died. I turned them over to the old hound and she raised them with her puppies.

"The puppies soon grew up as did the lambs and soon began hunting rabbits. So did the lambs—they just followed the hounds thru the woods chasing rabbits but they never learned to bark. The dogs got jealous one day and killed the two lambs. Otherwise I would be able to show you I did own sheep."

SUNSHINE IN QUAKE ZONE

Long Beach.—Rehabilitation of southern California's earthquake zone proceeded under welcome sunshine after a night of rain. Gas service was restored in sections of Long Beach and other communities of the stricken area. Health and sanitation conditions were reported by relief administrators to be good. Four men were injured, one seriously, with the collapse of scaffolding on which they were working repairing damage at San Pedro. They fell from the third story of the Masonic hall. Investigators for Spence Turner, Los Angeles county fire warden, reported 200 out of 435 buildings inspected in unincorporated territory of the county will have to be razed, while 200 others are severely damaged, including seven school houses.
