Average Farm Prices Show a Steady Increase
Show Increase of 25 Per Cent Since the Low Point Reached in February.

Washington, June 15.—Average prices paid farmers have increased 25 per cent since the low point reached in February.
The bureau of agricultural economics said today that the average prices have increased since mid-May, when they moved up 17 per cent over averages on April 15.
"In the past two months farm prices of grain rose 72 per cent and farm prices of cotton and cottonseed 35 per cent," the bureau said.
"At this season of the year, however marketing of these products by farmers is relatively small, so that the rise in prices has not greatly affected the current cash income of farmers who produce these products."
"In the past two months, however, the farm price of meat animals rose 16 per cent, butter fat 34 per cent and wool 99 per cent. The prices of these products rose when the seasonal trend of prices is usually downward. The rise and the seasonal increase in marketings have resulted in a marked increase in returns to producers."
