CHAS. SPOHN IN ACCIDENT

Chas. Spohn happened with an accident on Monday evening that was not so pleasant. He has a large cement tank at his farm part in the barn and part out. He stepped up on the tank to make a short cut into the barn and slipped, his head striking the cement with considerable force, partly rendering him unconscious and then fell in the water which revived him. The water was quite cold and Charley thinks that it was lucky or in his unconscious condition he might have drowned. He received a big cut over the forehead that required several stitches to close and his face was also badly bruised where he came in contact with the cement. Charley considers it quite fortunate under the circumstances but would not care to have a like experience very soon again. Dr. Douglas took care of his wounds and he is getting along nicely at this time.—Elmwood Leader-Echo.

Congress Quits; Roosevelt Wins Veterans' Fight

Senate Adopts House Compromise on Veterans Compensation After a Long Debate.

Washington, June 16.—Capitulating again to President Roosevelt on veterans' compensations after having bested upon him virtually all of the powers he had asked, congress early today finished the busiest peace time session in history.

Adjournment sine die came finally at 1:21 a. m. (eastern standard time) less than an hour after the senate by a vote of 45 to 36 had yielded to the suasion of the president and the house on the question of reducing former soldiers' benefits.

Acceptance by the senate of the compromise worked out by the chief executive and the house in answer to the complaint that the bite of government economy was being felt too severely by veterans ended a dispute that had raged in congress for two weeks.

While it was being settled a half dozen important measures were wiped off the congressional slate and sent to the White house for signature. Last night's climax in the senate found the independent offices supply bill—the vehicle for the veterans dispute—the last measure remaining to be disposed of.

Senate Yields. Only a short 24 hours before, the senate had disregarded threats of a veto and had put into the measure provisions more liberal than the president would accept.

Back in the house yesterday, the presidential compromise was sustained and the issue thrown back to the senate for another vote. Through long hours of debate, the senators pondered and oratory flowed freely, wrapping itself in flowing words about the several wars.

In the final voting that came soon after midnight, nine democratic senators who had voted for the more liberal provisions only yesterday turned back into the presidential folds and recorded themselves for the compromise. This ended the dispute.

The remainder was but a matter of routine. A messenger took the much discussed bill to the house. Without a record vote the final draft was approved. It went back to the senate. Vice-President Garner affixed his name.

Senators Stop First. The house adopted a resolution calling for sine die adjournment. It went to the senate but Senator Glass (dem., Va.) was defending his record from a speech made earlier in the evening by Senator Cutting (rep., N. M.) in the veterans' debate and a short delay resulted.

Then, adopting the resolution, the senate quit and went home, leaving the house to adjourn after it got word of the adoption of the resolution.

President Roosevelt, remaining up long past his usual bedtime, already had informed leaders of the two houses that they might dispense with the formality of naming a committee to inform him that they were ready to adjourn.

Waiting for presidential signature was a railroad measure, vesting in a co-ordinator the power to make numerous economies in the rail systems in an effort to make them pay, and a bill giving the president power to control industry and launch a $3,300,000 public works program in the endeavor to start business to churning again.

A home loan bill and the Glass-Steagall banking reform bill with its provisions for insuring bank deposits were but a few of the last minute measures that the extra session had put through.—World-Herald.

Veteran Minister of West Dies in Washington

Rev. Calvin M. Graves Passes Away at Winthrop, Washington, June 7, at Age of 89 Years.

The death of one of the long time ministers of the Methodist church in the west occurred on June 7th, at Winthrop, Washington, when Rev. Calvin M. Graves was called to his last reward at the ripe age of eighty-nine years.

Rev. Graves was a pioneer resident of Cass county, where his parents, William W. and Mahala Graves came in the early days of the Nebraska territory and here the deceased grew to manhood. He was born on August 7, 1844, in the state of Kentucky, and as accustomed the youth of that day, endured the privations and the hardships that were the lot of the men and women who came to build the great west. The family came to Cass county in 1864 and settled at Rock Bluffs, where the parents lived until their death.

Rev. Graves later located at Plattsmouth, where he was married to Miss Jennie Shafer, daughter of Henry Shafer, who resided on the tracts of land that he owned in the north portion of town known as "Shaferville" a large number of small residences, all of which have long since been torn down. Forty-five years ago, Mr. Graves entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church and for this long period of years has carried the message of the Master through the west. He located in the state of Washington thirty years ago and has since made his home in that section of the country.

Rev. Graves was one of a family of twelve children, of whom four brothers and one sister survive, they being A. H. Graves, of Murray; Sherd Graves, of Rock Bluffs; J. D. Graves, of Peru; Judge Charles L. Graves and Mrs. Mary Burnett of this city.

Car Transport Has Bad Wreck South of City

Tractor Pulling the Loaded Transport of Three New Fords Badly Damaged in Wreck.

Thursday afternoon an automobile transport on route from Kansas City to Omaha, was wrecked on highway No 75 a few miles south of this city. The transport was being hauled by a tractor belonging to the Wade Transport Co., of Omaha and as the driver was coming north two other trucks were stopped along the roadside and the driver of the transport was unable to prevent the tractor from getting into a ditch along the roadside and with the result that the whole front of the transport was smashed in bad shape. The driver fortunately escaped with only a few bruises and a slightly wrenched knee.

The McMaken Transfer Co. was notified of the accident and sent trucks out to aid the stranded driver and the transport was brought on into this city. There were none of the cars loaded on the large carrier damaged in the least. One of the new cars was unloaded here and driven on into Omaha under its own power while the damaged tractor was placed on the carrier and pulled by one of the McMaken trucks on into Omaha for repair.

The Wade company is owned by L. L. Wade, well known in this city, and who was for several years a member of the motorcycle detail of the Omaha police force.

CARTER DENIED PAROLE

Attorney General Good said the pardon board had denied George Carter, former Franklin county treasurer, release from the penitentiary. Carter is serving a two to eighteen year sentence for embezzlement.

"There seemed to be a feeling on the part of some who spoke on behalf of Mr. Carter," Good said "that the payment of a premium to the bonding companies constitutes a license to the county treasurer to commit some embezzlement so that the bonding companies will not make too much profit on the business done."

Carter's plea for clemency was heard by the board Tuesday. He was sentenced in November, 1929.

The attorney general said that one of the bonding companies which helped make good the $58,000 embezzlement to which he pleaded guilty, was now in the hands of a receiver. He said its condition was due to such losses. The bonding companies opposed Carter's release saying he had never accounted for the money.

The opinion signed by Good and Secretary of State Harry Swanson said Carter's attitude did not justify belief in any genuine reform.
