

Cass County Man Loses Suit for $50,000.00

Action of Matthew Thimgan of Murdock for Use of Covered Wagon Design, Dismissed.

The suit of Matthew Thimgan against the state of Nebraska, seeking to recover the sum of $50,000 for the use of the covered wagon design on state road markers, was dismissed in district court at Lincoln Monday.

The plaintiff in the action had designed the covered wagon that later was taken by the state as the official marker for the state highways, and in 1929 Mr. Thimgan asked that the legislature appropriate funds for the payment for the use of his copyrighted design. The legislature in that year refused to consider the claim of Mr. Thimgan.

Action was started this year in court to compel the state to pay to the owner of the copyright a royalty for the use of the design and the sum of $50,000 was asked.

The case was heard by Judge Broady of Lincoln and who dismissed the action, holding that the statutes of limitations ran against the action, that Mr. Thimgan should have started his action within two years of the refusal of the 1929 legislature to appropriate funds for the payment of the claim.

TO TOUR EUROPE

From Tuesday's Daily

Otto A. Wurl and son, Otto, Jr., of Council Bluffs, were here today to enjoy a visit with the relatives and old friends in this city. Mr. Wurl and his son are expecting to depart soon for Europe where they will enjoy several months travel in the principal countries of the old world.

Mr. Wurl was in the world war as a captain in one of the regiments of the 33rd (Illinois national guard) division of the A. E. F., and the visit to Europe will give him the opportunity to retrace the path of his division and the many places of beauty and interest in Paris and the cities of Germany. The son is a great student of Shakespeare and their journey will also include the scenes of the life of the great poet and dramatist in England, visiting his home and the historic spots that have been preserved for the future generation.

MOB VIOLENCE IS AVERTED

Burwell, Neb., June 16.—County authorities were fearful of mob violence when Frank Janicek, of Erlina, charged with beating his 17-year-old sister-in-law, was brought into county court. More than 2,000 persons gathered on the court house lawn.

There were cries of "Give him all the law will permit." For nearly an hour county officials hesitated to bring Janicek from the county jail to the court house. Finally Sheriff Waters cleared a passageway and escorted Janicek to the court room.

There were hisses, but Janicek was not harmed. In county court he pleaded guilty on advice of his attorney, Judge Rose gave him a maximum sentence of ninety days in the county jail. His menu for ten days is to consist of bread and water.

LOCATE IN MONTANA

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Heitzhausen, who have been residing at Portland, Oregon, are now located at Billings, Montana, where Mr. Heitzhausen has become interested in the Independent Refining Co., which is opening refineries at Billings. Mr. Heitzhausen is secretary-treasurer of the company, which has just opened their offices in the Montana city. The company is reopening the Laurel refinery which has been closed for the past two years. They are expecting to refine and prepare for the market a high grade of motor oil. Mr. Heitzhausen has his office in the same building as that of Karl Wurl, also a former resident of this city. Both Mr. and Mrs. Heitzhausen are former residents here, the latter being the former Miss Grace Noiting.

MISS MULLEN VISITS CITY

Miss Mary Mullen, commissioner of the United States district court at Omaha, was in the city Tuesday where she spent a few hours visiting with friends as well as looking after some business matters. Miss Mullen is a sister of Arthur Mullen, democratic national committeeman from Nebraska. He has served as commissioner at Omaha for the past several years.

Tells of Camp Life in the West Coast Woods

Joe E. Knoflake Tells of Trip to Camp Tye Near Roseburg, Ore., and of Conditions.

Camp Tye, June 17.

To Editor of Journal:

Until today, all of the letter writing I've done, I did with a pencil and wrote with the paper resting on my knees. We've finally gotten "settled" here in the hospital—we have a fifty foot hospital tent with a platform floor and everything it's the best tent in camp. We two "first-aiders" were lucky enough to get it as our quarters. We have our bunks, clothes and all in it. Yesterday the carpenters made a desk for us, so now that I don't have to write on my knees, maybe I can scribble a few lines that you can read.

I'm "out in the sticks" with the C. C. C. S., you know, way out in Oregon, where you get up in the morning and do everything but crack the ice on the water you wash with. Talk about cool nights—we have them here. The thermometer registered 38° when I got up this a. m. It's not usually that bad but it's always plenty cool.

It makes the boys wish they were back in old Nebraska for about 30 minutes, but after they warm up a little they're darn glad they're here. Boy! but its great sleeping. Johnnie Richardson threatened to kill himself a bugler this morning—that's how a guy feels when it's time to get up. Well, altogether the boys are pretty well satisfied, though.

I left Fort Crook June 7th with an advance detachment sent out ahead of the rest of the company to set up camp.

Seven companies sent out 21 men each, with one week's supply of food for fifty men, 25 foresters (from the district in which our camp is situated), and the officers accompanying us, made up the fifty men (approximately).

We certainly had one grand trip coming out. We took the Burlington route from Fort Crook to Denver, where we transferred to the Southern Pacific. At Ogden, Utah, we changed again to the D. & R. G.-U. which we took on into Roseburg, Oregon, our nearest station.

We went by truck from Roseburg to our camp site, 30 miles north of town. Rather, we rode to the bank of the Umpqua river. We crossed the river on a ferry and made the last two miles on foot, hauling the baggage on wagons, as the trail through the woods was soggy from the rain that fell here the day before. It was about eleven o'clock Sunday morning when we first saw our new "home."

We passed through six states before reaching our destination, Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California and Oregon, and we saw historic spots that most of us had never seen before. We passed through Colorado's grand canyon, stopping at the Royal Gorge for a few minutes to take in the scenery, and some of the fellows took pictures of the surrounding country. We passed through Pueblo (the Pittsburgh of the west) and could see from the train that it lived up to its name—smokestacks from the iron mills filled the air with smoke. We also saw several coal mines on our way through the mountains. We stopped at Salt Lake City, Utah, and passed over the Great Salt lake. We saw the Mormon Temple and the state capital building while there. We saw plenty of the Great American Desert, traveling in semi-arid land for the better part of two days.

About all we saw of Nevada and California was sagebrush and bunch grass and rocks. I'm glad we weren't sent to California as we were supposed to at first. The country we're in now has a very moderate climate with cool summers and warm winters. It's in the coastal range mountain district only 40 miles from the Pacific coast.

Our camp is located in an open valley, with mountains on two sides and a mountain stream running by another. We're in a ten acre clearing, with big, tall evergreen trees all round the place (mostly fir).

The rest of the company arrived at camp Thursday afternoon, there being about 225 men in all, now in camp, including the officers and the forest men from this state.

The camp is being improved as fast as the men can do it. All tents will have floors, water will be piped around the camp. Hot running water will be had. A meal house, shower rooms, and a company exchange are being built.

Wild ducks are common on the creeks and river, and several deer have been seen. The boys go fishing often, this being a good country for salmon and trout fishing. Everyone gets plenty to eat and we all eat plenty.

Now that the gang's all here, and everybody hard at work, everyone seems to be well satisfied. All in all we've had a darn good trip and should spend a darn pleasant summer. Uncle Sam's trees and dragging in that good old 30 bucks every month.

The only drawback is that we're 3 days away from home—the mail comes so slow—we don't get the good old Journal or the World-Herald.

TO ENJOY VISIT

From Wednesday's Daily

Frank Rauens of this city departed this morning for Omaha and Fremont where he will visit with his children in the two cities. At Omaha he will visit with Mrs. Rose Rich and family, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rauens, Mrs. Verna Fillmore and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGrath. While at Fremont Mr. Rauens will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Squiers and family.

STILL QUITE POORLY

Mrs. Frances Purdy, old resident of this city, continues very poorly at her home on Lincoln avenue and is now largely confined to her bed as she has been gradually failing in the past few weeks.

CAR LOADINGS IMPROVE

The Burlington in the last few weeks has enjoyed a large increase in the car loadings on this western section of their lines, there being an increase in the trains that have been busy carrying the products of the western farms to the markets. One of the largest items of shipment has been livestock and this has been very heavy in the past two weeks.

Passenger travel on the road also has shown a large increase, the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, with the exceptionally low fares having drawn large numbers to make the trip by rail. The early morning east bound Burlington train No. 6 passing through this city has carried from sixteen to eighteen coaches each day and all well filled.

DIES AT MASONIC HOME

From Wednesday's Daily

Last night at the Masonic Home occurred the death of Christian S. Range, 62, who had since March 10th, 1933, been a resident at the Home. Mr. Range was born at Lincoln, Nebraska, March 16, 1872, and lived in this state for his lifetime. He was a member of Zeredotha lodge No. 160, of Reynolds, Nebraska. The body was taken to Crete where the funeral services will be held. He is survived by two sisters and one brother.

CELEBRATE CORPUS CHRISTI

From Monday's Daily

Yesterday, June 18th, the Holy Rosary church in the west part of the city, celebrated the annual Corpus Christi feast. High mass at 7 a. m. was said by Father J. J. Kaczmarek, pastor of the church. A procession with the blessed sacrament was participated in by the children of the Guardian Angel Instruction League, all of them being dressed in white; the Holy Name society, the Sodaloty of Lady of Lourdes, and other parishioners. The group marched slowly around the church grounds and returned to the main altar where benediction was completed. The occasion is one that will long be remembered as one of the most beautiful feasts of the Catholic church.

Mrs. Harley Ceill and little son, William, of Denver, are here to spend a short time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Baird, parents of Mrs. Ceill.
