VISITORS FROM LOUISVILLE

From Friday's Daily
Rev. R. D. Murphree, wife and two sons, "Bill" and "Bob," drove over from Louisville last evening for a brief visit with friends here. They were accompanied by "Bob" Twiss, a Louisville boy who had been on the recent Scout tour. The two Murphree children have been victims of chickenpox, the youngest now being in the midst of this childhood malady.

Rev. Murphree described this year's Scout trip as the best of the four taken to date, despite the fact they had been called home by the death of the mother of one of the boys several days before their scheduled time to start back. The distance covered was slightly less than 4,000 miles.

Sunday night at Rev. Murphree's church in Louisville, the entire group of boys who made the trip will be assembled on the rostrum, each saying a few words about what impressed them most on the trip, while some will be called upon for more lengthy reports. Among this latter number will be Frederick Fricke, of the Plattsmouth group, who will give an account of their pleasant visit at the Scout recreational camp at Atlanta, Georgia, where every convenience was provided for their comfort.

Rev. Murphree will also render a condensed report on the entire trip, and Editor L. J. Mayfield of the Courier has been asked to speak.

Counties Given First Part of Federal Relief

State Committee Allots $38,222 to Thirty-three Counties in Orders—Cass Gets $800.

Governor Bryan's state committee Friday afternoon made a preliminary allotment of $38,222.50 to thirty-three counties whose total requests for federal relief funds for the needy had totaled $81,493. This initial allotment will be available to counties, not for cash, but to pay orders for the purchase of groceries, fuel and necessary clothing, just as soon as county relief committees, approved by county boards, are announced by the state committee, which is expected early Saturday.

There was no serious disagreement in the state committee over allotments to counties. Tax Commissioner Smith, chairman of the state committee, said at the close of the afternoon meeting, that the allotments were preliminary to others to be made later, that they were made for the purpose of getting relief started. Randall Blatt, director and field worker for the state committee will make further investigation of the needs of counties and when he reports additional amounts will be given. Those made were based on requests. Some requests were granted in full.

RESUMPTION OF RECRUITING

Information has just been received from the Navy Department, Washington, D. C., to the effect that thirty-seven men will be enlisted in the navy by the Council Bluffs navy recruiting station during August, 1933, and a similar number during the months of September and October. The standard quota of forty-four men or possibly more will be enlisted. It is anticipated, during the month of November.

This means that thirty-seven young men from Nebraska, South Dakota and the four western counties of Iowa will be given a job next month and at least that number of jobs will be open during each of the remaining months in 1933. This is a big thing at the present time when jobs are at a premium and it has the advantage of being steady employment for a period of years and not merely a short time job.

Applications are being received at the main station in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and at each of the sub-stations namely: Hastings, Lincoln, and North Platte, Nebraska; Aberdeen, Huron, Watertown and Sioux Falls, South Dakota. The men selected to go will be those on the eligibility lists who are, in the opinion of the officer in charge, Lieutenant Commander A. T. Emerson, U. S. Navy, best fitted in all respects for naval service.

The thirty-seven young men to be enlisted in August will be the first group of men enlisted by the local station since the month of April, 1933.

Information can be obtained concerning enlistment in the U. S. Navy at the post office building where the recruiting station is located in Council Bluffs, or at the navy recruiting sub-stations listed above.

SEES FIFTEEN FOOT SNAKE

Holdrege, Neb.—If it had not been for the barking of his dog, Charles Borklund would have been convinced that the heat was affecting him. While working in his cornfield here, Borklund was startled to see a huge snake, fully fifteen feet long. Borklund rubbed his eyes but when his dog began to worry the reptile, was convinced that he was not seeing things.

The snake was about six inches thru the thick part of its body, he said. Borklund went to get a club and when he returned the snake was gone. He said it was easy to track the reptile across the freshly cultivated field, and it left a trail fully four inches wide.

Many Towns Asking Money for Projects

Power Plants, Auditoriums, Pools, Sewers, Buildings and Street Improvements Planned.

Omaha, July 21.—Since its meeting in Lincoln June 27 the newly formed Associated Industries of Nebraska, organized to aid in reconstruction work, has received scores of applications, it was disclosed at a meeting of the executive committee here.

The proposed projects ask money for construction of water mains, of sewers, school houses, municipal swimming pools, auditoriums, cemetery mausoleums, light plants, ice plants and street improvements. Alma, Chadron, Holdrege, Norfolk, Pawnee City, Stella, Kearney, Seward, David City and Schuyler want help in extending their water systems. Beatrice, Blue Hill, Columbus, York, Sutton and Fairmont want sewers, or aid in extending their present sewerage systems.

Kearney asks $100,000 for public schools. Fairmont and Schuyler each would spend $15,000 for swimming pools.

Wyuka cemetery, Lincoln, asks for $200,000 for a mausoleum. Lincoln also would spend $250,000 for sanitary sewer systems.

Wayne wants $30,000 for an auditorium. Utica wants $30,000 for a light plant. Beaver City wants $13,000 for an ice plant and Nebraska City, David City, Harrison, Maywood, Wilber and St. Edward ask for sums ranging from $10,000 to $72,000 for recreational purposes.

WILSON STAYS IN OFFICE

Omaha.—Both Dr. Charles F. Crowley, newly appointed deputy prohibition administrator for Nebraska, and Harold D. Wilson, his predecessor, were occupying the dry office in the federal building here Thursday.

Wilson, whose "indefinite furlough" was to start July 10, has wired Washington for instructions as he has received no personal notice of Dr. Crowley's appointment. He is awaiting a reply before officially transferring the office property and records to Dr. Crowley. Also, he is asking pay up to Thursday for performing the duties of the office until Dr. Crowley takes them over.

There was no occasion Thursday for either Dr. Crowley or Wilson to assert their authority, as the agents were working on investigations originating before Dr. Crowley was sworn in as deputy Wednesday.

FREIGHT RATES UPHELD

Washington.—The interstate commerce commission has reported that rates on stocker hogs and cattle in carload lots from points in Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Missouri to points in Springfield, and Powell, Neb., and from points in South Dakota and Wyoming to Springfield are not unduly prejudiced. It held they were unreasonable in some instances and reasonable in others.

In making the decision, the commission differed from its examiner's reports. Complainants were awarded reparations amounting to the difference between the rate paid and the rate found reasonable by the commission, plus interest.

KILLED IN GRAIN ELEVATOR

Council Bluffs, July 20.—Thomas O. Ault was killed in a grain elevator here when he was hurled by a conveyor belt underneath a metal grain spout and wedged there. He died instantly. Ault was working alone, sweeping grain. County Coroner Belford said the man may have been overcome by heat and fallen on the conveyor. An automatic overload control immediately stopped the belt. The widow and nine children survive.

Chinch Bugs Playing Havoc on Iowa Farms

Oil Barriers Fail to Keep Hungry Pests from Grain Fields—Big Cut in Crop Predicted.

Bloomfield, Iowa, July 20.—Nature functioning through some of her smallest agents, small black chinch bugs with insatiable appetites, is effectively controlling crop production in southern Iowa.

Dr. Carl J. Drake, state entomologist, today estimated farmers in the two southern tiers of counties would not harvest more than 50 to 75 per cent of a small grain crop and not more than 80 per cent of their corn. The small grain crop most of which has been cut, is proving very deceiving in the matter of yield and some of the grain is not worth threshing, so light are the returns.

"If warm, dry weather, such as we been experiencing in Iowa continues, the infestation of chinch bugs, already severe, will increase a thousand fold," he declared. "The bugs are causing the worst crop damage in Iowa in 25 years."

Wide spreading of the insects to fields yet unaffected was predicted by Dr. Drake and Dr. A. D. Worthington, extension entomologist of Iowa State college.

Many of the bugs are passing into the adult stage and rendering futile the efforts of farmers to control them with oil barriers thrown around unfested fields.

Small grain, hay and corn on the farms near Pulaski provide an example of the damage being done. On one farm of 545 acres, corn, oats and timothy have been obliterated by the bugs and the surface soil is teeming with the insects.

James Green, Davis county agent, and Holbert M. Harris, entomologist, declared that every farm in Davis county was infested with the bugs, despite the use of about 10 thousand gallons of oil in barriers in an effort to control them. They predicted total destruction of crops in many areas when the bugs begin to fly.

UNION MEN BUSY AT OMAHA

Dry Law Flouted by Sellers of 3.2 Beer in Kansas

Juries Refuse Convictions—Injunction Looked Upon as Most Effective Weapon.

Topeka, July 20.—A wet rebellion has flared in Kansas — one of few states in the union whose legislatures have refrained from doing anything about calling an election to vote on repeal of the 18th amendment.

The law against sale of beer has been openly flouted by scores of restaurants, drugstores and hotels. Others have been following the lead of the more bold until now hundreds of places are offering the new beverage for sale in nearly every city and town in the state.

Juries so far have refused to convict the offenders and state authorities have resorted to injunction proceedings to stamp out the revolt.

A threat of wholesale arrests was met in Kansas City, Kansas, by the formation of an association of prospective beer sellers and the subscription of $10 by each member to a common defense fund. In Wichita, from 75 to 100 places openly advertised and sold beer. The city vice squad continued raids which have resulted in the arrest of two or three beer dealers daily. The dealers have been let off with minimum fines and costs of $26.50.

Perry Laundry and Fred Owston were committed to jail for six months each on contempt charges at Hutchinson after selling beer at their lunch stands in defiance of an injunction. Denied bail, the men appealed to the state supreme court.

Defenders of the men hope for a ruling that 3.2 beer must be proved intoxicating before a conviction can be obtained under the Kansas law prohibiting the sale of malt liquor.

The effect of such a ruling would be to put each case before a jury. Attorney General Boynton, however, will seek to uphold the jail sentences by confining the hearing to the contempt issue. Such a decision would give him a powerful weapon with which to fight the rebellion by empowering him to imprison dealers for contempt in spite of the attitude of juries.

Speaker Rainey as Farmer

Speaker Henry T. Rainey of the House of Representatives returned to his home and farm at Carrolton, Ill., after an arduous session at Washington, to take up the task of farming. He is shown here on a horse-drawn cultivator in the cornfields of his farm.
