Greenwood has a barber shop that claims if one can keep busy all of the time the prices charged for work need not necessarily be very high and a shingle protruding from the front of the building announces that hair cuts may be obtained within for a dime. It will make a hit with the entire family.

Wheat Benefit May Average Dollar a Bushel

Reductions This Year to Be Only 15 Percent Instead of Expected 20 Percent.

Twenty bushel wheat land taken out of production under the Triple A wheat plan will return $20 per acre in benefit payments this coming year, W. H. Brokaw, state wheat administrator said Tuesday. Likewise fifteen bushel land would make $15 and ten bushel would make $10 per acre in benefit payments. The farmer considering the Triple A plan can roughly estimate that he will get as many dollars per acre in benefit payments as he got bushels of yield as an average of the three base years, 1930 to 1932, the administrator said.

By twenty bushel wheat land Brokaw meant land which has yielded an average of twenty bushels per acre during the years 1930 to 1932. In some counties an adjustment factor helps actual yields.

Brokaw's statement followed Wallace's announcement from Washington that the reduction requested this year would be only 15 percent compared with the maximum of 20 percent which Nebraska farmers had been considering.

In addition to certain payment of approximately $1 per bushel, the farmers who contract to reduce acreage have a chance to realize up to $1.50 per bushel since they get the guarantee of parity price in three benefit payments during the two year period, Brokaw further explained. Should the price of wheat go up and the benefit payment go down, the farmers will receive a higher price for all of their wheat rather than the benefit payment on 54 percent of their wheat.

Farmers who contract to reduce acreage will save the cash expense and the risk of getting the wheat crop on the acres they take out of wheat. The first benefit payment is to be made in two installments, one this fall and the other before harvest time in 1934. The farmer also is allowed to seed his land to an improvement crop or to use it in some other ways not yet definitely announced.

"Filing days," in the meantime, are continuing in all parts of the state. Indications point to a good percentage of signers at the initial sessions.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE BLACK

At the conclusion of the services the body was borne to the last resting place in Oak Hill cemetery, the pall bearers being the old friends and associates, L. D. McKinney, A. L. Brown, Max Vallery, Fred Tschirren, W. P. Rice, and H. E. Tinscher.

The American Merchant Marine has made encouraging strides during the past five years and it is fitting that those gains be summed up at this time. The present volume just off the press is a comprehensive reference work on the status of ocean transport and foreign trade. Various phases of shipping and commerce are covered, including ship construction and operation, ocean routes, marine insurance, safety and the relation of ships to national defense. Station KOIL Leased to Owners of KFAB

Union Holding Co., New Lessee, to Keep "Blue Network" Association Temporarily.

Radio station KOIL was under new management Friday after it had been leased by the Barnsdall Corp. to the Union Holding Co., owners of station KFAB, for five years.

KOIL's new operators will retain the National Broadcasting company's "Blue network" association, at least for the present. They will also continue to broadcast Columbia Broadcasting System programs over KFAB on that station's limited schedule.

Dietrick Dirks, manager of the two stations, KOIL and KFAB, said there would be a "very close co-ordination" between the two stations, but that no merger of studios or personnel is contemplated at this time.

The Atlas brothers of Chicago, owners of WBBM and closely allied with Columbia Broadcasting system, and the National Broadcasting Co. had made offers prior to the Lincoln company's offer.

Performers Affected
The change in management affected several KOIL personalities, among them Helen Barry, musical director; Billy Williams, formerly "Daddy Barnsdall;" Max Vinsonhaler, studio manager, and his wife (Pauline Hopkins), who put on the "Tony and Babe" sketch and supervised the "KOIL Krimo Klan;" Royce Colon, announcer, and Norman Moon, tenor.

Williams probably will continue to work part time on dramatics, including "Bee-News Funnyland" feature Sunday mornings.

Colon is dickering for an announcer's job with the Southwest Broadcast Corporation, which has stations in Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston.

Moon Wants Assignment
Moon is in New York, having passed NBC audition there, awaiting to be assigned to a program series.
