Flow of Money to the Treasury Showing a Gain

Shrinkage Shown in Deficit Under Influence of Tax Collection; Optimistic Outlook.

Washington.—Feeling at last the influence of income tax collections, the deficit for the current fiscal year is shrinking. In the six days from Sept. 14 to Sept. 20 it fell from 246 million dollars to 192 million, a drop of 54 million and treasury officials estimate that some 40 millions of September income tax collections have still to be reported.

In addition, the daily statements of the treasury are showing a surplus for the month thus far. It stood at $36,000 on Sept. 20, the last date reported, while the comparable period of a year ago showed expenditures were running 102 millions above receipts.

Secretary Woodin is highly optimistic regarding the outlook for the remainder of the fiscal year.

He would not be surprised, he has said, if the result is the first surplus since 1930. All the categories of revenue are trending upward, he said, and he expects a big improvement in income tax collections when March and June payments fall due. Supporting his contention the treasury made public a compilation of internal revenue receipts for August, showing a total collected of $149,707,708 as compared with $130,732,608 for July and $79,940,310 for August, 1932. Beer taxes jumped $830,549, totalling $15,049,564 for August as compared with $14,219,015 for July. Gasoline tax receipts rose from $15,799,053 to $22,420,634. Gains were shown as well in tax collections on cigars, cigarettes, capital stock, dividends and other classifications.

If the enormous emergency expenditures in connection with the recovery program are deducted from the figures for the fiscal year thus far, the result shows receipts well above the treasury's ordinary outlays. The statement for Sept. 20 listed total receipts since the fiscal year began at $609,888,897, ordinary expenditures at $535,791,170, emergency expenditures at $266,879,707 and total expenditures of $802,670,878.

By comparison on the same date a year ago, receipts totaled $399,240,057, ordinary expenditures $785,972,531, emergency expenditures $279,832,695 (all thru the RFC) and total expenditures $1,065,805,226.

The following table shows August internal revenue collections for August, 1933 on the more important items with comparable figures for July, 1933, and for August, 1932:

RULING ON BONDS ISSUED

Washington.—The federal trade commission made public an opinion holding that purchasers of misrepresented stocks or bonds can recover under the new securities law up to the purchase price of the security from the underwriter. The commission made public a letter from B. B. Bane, chief of its securities division, to an unnamed underwriter who asked about liabilities under the law, where a misstatement was made. Bane said that there is nothing to prevent the purchaser of a stock or bond from recovering if he can show that he was misled, but that, if he has "disposed of the security at a price, no damages would be recoverable."

State Fair Cannot Pay Its Bills in Full

Grand Stand Receipts Paid on Bonds Now Totals $59,465—Expenses Were Cut.

State fair receipts, including grand stand receipts, total $53,937.71, said Secretary Reed. If the grand stand receipts amounting to $9,312.45 could be used to pay expenses, Reed said the board of managers could pay all expenses of the fair, totalling $54,410.09, as there is a little rent money in sight. As evidence that the fair board has cut expenses he said the expense of the fair last year was $77,786. It will be necessary to pro rate the cash now on hand between claimants. The board must first deduct from its cash the $9,312.45 of grand stand receipts, which go to pay grand stand bonds, and also to deduct some items of expense for labor which are not pro rata able and which could properly be classed either as labor or maintenance expenditures. Reed does not know the amount of these claims at this time and cannot now estimate the amount on the dollar which will be paid to claimants. The $59,000 of grand stand bonds were issued in 1929 under authority of the legislature, and sold to private parties, the receipts of the grand stand being pledged for their payment.

Reed said the fair board this year paid out more for entertainment in front of the grand stand than the receipts of the stand amounted to, yet it cannot use any of the receipts for expenses of the fair. Since the bonds were issued $12,500 was paid on the principal. The total paid by the fair board to the trust company on the bonded debt now totals $59,465.98, including the grand stand receipts for this year. Part of the receipts of the grand stand this year go to pay interest on the bonds which was not paid last April, Reed said. The interest on the bonds annually is about $13,000, he said. The receipts of the grand stand are turned over to the First Trust company of Lincoln, he said.

Reed made this statement: "If we were able to use the $9,312.45 of receipts from the grand stand toward the expenditures for 1933 we would be able to pay out in full. On account of the drastic cut in the appropriation for maintenance as allowed by the 1933 state legislature, it has been necessary to include in our expenditures some items of expense that have heretofore been taken care of out of the maintenance fund. "The rules and regulation for the 1933 Nebraska state fair as included in our premium list states as follows: 'If the receipts of the 1933 state fair are not sufficient to pay expenses in full, such expenses may be pro-rated. This rule shall not apply to labor.' As labor claims must be paid in full this will necessitate cutting down the pro-rata share of all other claims."

U. S. to Purchase Surplus Stocks to Help Needy

President Roosevelt Orders Use of $75,000 for Speedy Aid—Two-Fold Aim.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Purchase of surplus foodstuffs and staples for distribution to the nation's needy was ordered tonight by President Roosevelt.

He directed agricultural adjustment and federal relief administrators to speed this program with the two-fold purpose of stabilizing glutted markets and feeding the unemployed.

It was emphasized by Mr. Roosevelt that this relief is to be in addition to that already being extended by federal, state and local authorities. It is to be given particularly to those areas where the president now considers the food and clothing for the needy totally inadequate.

Buy in Open Market.

The products under consideration for purchase include beef, dairy and poultry, cotton and cotton seed.

The government will buy in the open market. A rough estimate placed the total cost of the undertaking at about 75 million dollars. The cotton purchased will be manufactured into clothing.

These foodstuffs and clothing will be in addition to the 100 million pounds of cured pork the government is giving to the unemployed from hogs purchased under a plan already in operation.

Wants Needy Cared for.

The relief move fits into the general Roosevelt attack upon surpluses that have been smothering prices. The president also expressed the determination that the 3,500,000 on relief rolls shall be cared for.

At his desk in his study, the president announced the relief program late today. He read over a prepared announcement later given out by his secretary, Stephen T. Early, and then discussed it with newspapermen.

Mr. Roosevelt said he considered the program one of the most direct blows at the economic paradox that had left farms burdened with an abundance of food products while unemployed have gone hungry.

Speed Is Demanded.

In the effort to reduce the surpluses, the administration has been negotiating for the sale of wheat and cotton abroad.

The president made it clear that he wanted the departments concerned to expedite in every possible way their combined attack on the food surplus and hunger problems.

Secretary Wallace and Harry Hopkins, the federal relief administrator, are now in Chicago and early moves by them are in prospect.—World-Herald.

All-electric Kitchen on Wheels

A complete modern kitchen in which the genic, electricity, performs every conceivable task of the American housewife and which is arranged scientifically to eliminate all ordinary drudgery, is carried in this unusual kitchen on wheels. The coach is one of a fleet of 100 which will be in use soon by General Electric distributors in all parts of the nation. In this "magic" all-electric kitchen, dishes are washed and dried by simply pushing a button. A similar operation refrigerates food, manufactures ice, cooks food, turns a range on or off, mixes beverages and foods, provides music, prepares toast, waffles, or coffee, gives shadowless illumination, and ventilates the kitchen. The coach also has space for the exhibition of other electric home work-savers, such as laundry equipment, sun lamps, vacuum cleaners, radios, electric clock, heaters, and kindred products.

Prosperity's Return is Seen by Harriman

Continual Growth in Retail Trade Alone Needed, Says U. S. C. of C. Head in Omaha.

The American public's enthusiasm for the new deal, coupled with certain new national legislation and the normal working of economic forces, all of which have combined to change the psychology of the people from depression to hope, have brought about a sharp improvement in business conditions since last March, said Henry I. Harriman, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, in Omaha Thursday.

Harriman, with 15 other directors of the national chamber, stopped in Omaha several hours en route to Colorado Springs for the board's fall meeting. They planned to stop their special Rock island train only a few minutes in Omaha, but changed their minds "just to get a chance to play golf in this swell Nebraska weather," Harriman said.

Harriman feels improvement in the retail business, if it continues, "will tell the story of the return of prosperity." He lauded the "Buy in September" and "Buy American" campaigns and declared that retail sales are up 15 per cent since last March. Harriman declared the directors were watching with interest the working of the national recovery and agricultural adjustment acts. He anticipated many changes in present plans will be necessary later.

Most of the party lunched at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce and played golf at the Omaha Country club as guests of C. C. George, former director, who, with President Paul Martin and W. Otto Swanson, greeted the captains of industry at the depot.
