The unsung hero who tried the first oyster left a descendant who has found that halibut liver oil is even more like cod liver oil than the cod's.

Speaking of a vanished business, what has Al Capone got to look forward to when he gets out of prison? The old speakeasies will be cold and cheerless.

Difficult decision: Should one follow the neighbor's example by raking and burning leaves now, or wait and pray for a strong fall wind to blow them away?

A Kansas sports observer notes the only unbeaten football teams in the East at this moment are the Army and two obscure colleges named Duquesne and Princeton.

Many of us are old enough to remember when the Vanderbilt Cup was the award in a famous annual motor car race. But motor cars long since became too slow, and now the Vanderbilt Cup event is a contract bridge tournament.

The Cubans, too, are a remarkable little people. They got on the first page yesterday, in spite of repeal, LaGuardia and the charity drive.

Kentucky's policy of waiting until after election to count its votes now is understood. The first day is devoted to counting the dead.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm is still the wealthiest German in the world. His estates, mansions, art treasures and other property are valued today at more than 200 million dollars.

Mayor O'Brien sent his congratulations to Mayor-Elect LaGuardia early after the returns started in, but what we missed seeing any account of was Jim Farley's congratulations to Judge Seabury.

The football hero who toils in the line is moving a little farther away from recognition than he was before. Now we are told that the reason Carnegie Tech wins football games is because its coaches wear derby hats.

Weeping Water

Miss Leola Michelsen is visiting with relatives in Omaha for the present week, being guest of her aunt.

William P. Cook of Plattsmouth was a visitor in Weeping Water, a guest of friends as well as looking after some business.

Miss Maxine Grubbs has been very poorly at the Grubbs home during the past week, but is feeling slightly better at this time.

L. H. Merkel and wife of Deaton were visiting for a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Amich for a few days last week.

John Ole, the distributor of the celebrated Ford cars, and especially the latest, the V-8, was a business visitor in Union on last Tuesday afternoon.

There was joy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Wannamaker over the arrival of a fine young girl baby which graced their home on last Sunday.

Otto Keck, inspector for the government at the Jasper Quarries was a visitor at his home in Plattsmouth for over Sunday, returning to his work here on last Monday.

Ross Shields, who was so ill but a short time ago is now making very substantial progress and is so far recovered that he returned to his work in the cleaning establishment early this week.

W. L. Hobson of the Hobson Funeral Home and wife, were visiting for the day last Saturday at Lincoln where they both attended the football game and visited at the home of Mrs. Margaret Brendel.

Mrs. R. A. Young was a visitor in Plattsmouth for a few days last week where she was guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Troop and also was visiting at the home of Mrs. Sarah Young west of Murray.

Elmer Michelsen and the family were enjoying a visit at the home of relatives in Omaha last Sunday and also remained for a meeting of wholesalers from whom they purchase goods, which was held on Monday.

Dr. L. N. Kunkel, whose birthday anniversary fell on last Sunday, accompanied by the wife, were guests at the parents of Dr. Kunkel, Rev. and Mrs. B. N. Kunkel of Union where all enjoyed the celebration of the event.

Attorney C. E. Telft and Lloyd Wolcott were called to Plattsmouth on last Tuesday to look after some matters in the courts and as well were over on last Saturday, and were accompanied by J. Leslie Wiles, guardian for Isaac Wiles, his father.

Entertained W. C. T. U. The members of the Weeping Water W. C. T. U. met on last Monday afternoon at the pleasant home of County Commissioner and Mrs. F. H. Gorder, where they enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon and as well planned the work of the society for the coming winter season. Mrs. Gorder served a very delightful luncheon.

Saw Some Picking. A number of the people in Weeping Water who are interested in the matter of farming and especially the picking of corn, made a party consisting of Frank E. Woods, D. D. Wainwright, C. H. Gibson, M. R. George, went to West Point last week where they enjoyed seeing some real corn picking. The huskers were somewhat handicapped in their work by the fact that the crowd of some 50,000 tramped the corn down. They report a great time, however.

Wreck Near Cascade School. A mixup of two cars near the Cascade school last Saturday resulted in the wrecking of both cars and the injury of one young man making his home at Elmwood. There were two in the wreck from Elmwood, one from Louisville and two people from Weeping Water.

Had Exciting Experience. Edward Freeman, wanting a certain mare and her colt which were in the pasture, went, and walking up to the mare, whose name was Nell, took her by the mane and assayed to lead her to the barn, allowing the colt to follow. Nell was not fully persuaded, but was being led, however, when she changed her mind and her course as well and started on a gallop in another direction. Mr. Freeman sought to quiet the animal and said "Whoa Whoa Nell, Whoa Nell, but Nell would not and went flying across the pasture, dashing Mr. Freeman at her side. Ed thought to disengage himself from Nell but fearing when he did that she would kick him. The horse flung him loose and kicked at the same time, striking Ed on a can of Velvet which he had in his hip pocket and crushed the can as well as making a very tender spot on his anatomy. The colt followed, jumped over the prostrate form of Mr. Freeman, but did not touch him, this not adding any more to his discomfort.

Ed is very sore in two ways, one way at the obdurate mare and again at the treatment which she gave him.

Lost Three Horses. Louis Allgayer, living a few miles southeast of Weeping Water had three of his horses killed by a train on the railroad last Monday evening, the train hitting the horses and killing three of them.

Visited Parents Here. On Friday of last week a son of the Rev. E. S. Pangborn, pastor of the Methodist church and wife enjoyed a visit from their son, who has been making his home in Kansas. The son was presented by his employers a trip to Lincoln to attend the Kansas-Nebraska football game and who also came via Weeping Water for a visit with the parents which both enjoyed. Rev. Pangborn took the son to Lincoln on last Saturday to attend the game.

Celebrated Wedding Anniversary. On November 10th, 1933 Miss Eliza Marie Nelson and Hans Johnson were united in marriage in Weeping Water and have made their home here ever since and are among the most highly respected people in this community. At their home here last Sunday a large number of their host of friends called at the home and appropriately celebrated the passing of the 45th year of their happily wedded life. Many were the tokens given and wishes extended for many more happy years of wedded life.

Made a Merry Party. Mesdames George Olive, Joseph Brans and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Elgaard were visiting in Omaha on Monday of this week and where they were also doing some shopping as well.

Most Interesting Party. Miss Anna Hart, assistant postmistress, entertained the Friendly Ladies of which she is a member at a theatre party on last Monday when they were instructed in the science goods, which was held on Monday.

Elevator for Sale. One used Ottawa "C" Cylinder Sheller with 34-foot drag feed John Deere Implement House. —C. J. Schwert, manager, Weeping Water.

HUSK FOR INJURED MAN. Wahoo, Neb.—Fifty men with twenty-two wagons and teams husked 3,000 bushels of corn for Carl Johnson near Mead, who recently suffered severe injuries in a tractor-tombstone collision. The husking was sponsored by members of the Emmanuel Baptist congregation of Mead.

ARM AMPUTATED. Wahoo, Neb.—Jacob Sladky, jr., 40 year old farmer near here, underwent an operation in an Omaha hospital for the amputation of his right arm. The operation was the result of injuries suffered Thursday when the arm was badly crushed in a corn elevator at his home southeast of Wahoo.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, November 19 By L. Neitzel, Mardock, Neb.

"Paul in Athens" Acts 17:22-34.
The subject of study might well be: "Seeking and Finding God." We are thrilled as we approach this lesson. Paul, the greatest man in history, in Athens, in many ways the greatest city in the world's history. Athens is still the capital of Greece. It derived its name from Athena Minerva, the goddess, in whose honor the Acropolis, the Parthenon was erected, still in its ruins the most beautiful building in the world. Below the Acropolis was the lower hill of the Areopagus, or Hill of Mars, the war god, where the most venerable court of Athens had its sittings. The following are some of the great men who made Athens famous:
Plato, who founded his school and gave us the word "academy." Socrates was his great teacher and was followed by Aristotle. Pericles was the greatest Athenian statesman. Sophocles, Herodotus and Thucydides were the world's greatest historians. Demosthenes, the greatest orator. Xenophon and Lucian are other famous writers.

Paul was the superior of these in massive and acute intellect, but he must have been profoundly moved as he entered the city which had been the center of the thought of mankind, as well as its chief producer of beauty. But beauty and sculpture did not seem to have moved Paul. He was much more concerned over the fact that the streets were crowded with idolatrous shrines and statues. Paganism sarcastically remarks that at Athens one could find a god easier than a man. Another writes that it was almost impossible for one to make his way through these idols. Athenian curiosity seems to have been insatiable; it was the mecca of philosophers—Philos ("lover") and Sophos, "wise." Lover of wisdom.

There was a condition that only a man of Paul's caliber could meet; his early training fitted him eminently for the task. Here he encountered the Epicureans who held that a refined pleasure was the one great aim of wise living; and the Stoics whose leading principle was the pursuit of righteousness and the doing of duty—fatalists. These two classes of men we find today; one class ridicules and mocks, the other will procrastinate. Unfortunately, not much can be done with either.

Paul finds himself in the midst of the court that sits in judgment of any new philosophy or doctrine, brot there by men with whom he spoke about their many gods. He is ready to meet them in debate—he knows his Demosthenes. Here he stands as ambassador of Jesus Christ, full of zeal and holy courage, to bring a message from his Master.
His address shows that he chose a wise way of approach, "Ye men of Athens—," dignified, no flattery, no rebuke—so they listen; he has their car. "Ye are more religious than others." The proof was before them. The text for his address he had found on one of the Altars, "To the unknown God." This has a purely pagan meaning, but the phrase was a fine one; it was capable of a higher sense, and in this higher sense Paul made it the text for his sermon. These people were ignorant of the true God. They did not believe in the creation; the atom was to them eternal. Greek gods were not creators, but largely destroyers. Neptune ruled the sea; Jupiter (Zeus) hurled thunderbolts; Venus (Aph
