· Matthew's chief aim in his Gospel was to show the prophesies of the old testament and the life of Christ, that he is the long foretold Messiah. As a good bookkeeper, Matthew, an eyewitness, links the old and new testament together. He wrote his Gospel especially for the Jews, using the Aramaeic dialect—Luke and John wrote for the Greeks, But Matthew's Cospel was translated into Greek for wider reading. A tax collector, he would know Hebrew and Greek.

His name was Levi, named after one of the sons of Jacob, but after his conversion Christ named him Matthew-"The Gift of God." When Jesus called him, he closed his books (they were correct and balanced), and followed the Lord and Master, leaving all his possessions behind, as Luke tells us.

The time of his writing is uncertain (37 to 64, A. D.) Matthew alone reports (1) Jesus' pedigree through Joseph, 1:1-17; (2) The Magi, 2:1-12; (3) Flight into Egypt, 2:13-16; (4) Murder of the children, 2:16-19; (5) Parable of the ten virgins, 25:1-13: (6) the dream of Pilate's wife, 27:19; (7) Resurrection of saints, 27:52, 53; (8) Bribing of Roman guards, 28:11-15. He omits the entire first year of the ministry of Jesus, because he had no personal knowledge of what Jesus said and did in Judea, the scene of his first year's work. No words of his own are recorded, this humble man prefering to be only the Savior's recorder.

Joseph's way back to Nazareth, the The genealogy of Christ is divided into three groups of fourteen eachbeing thus easier to memorize. It is to be noted that three women of evil character are included in the list, towit: Tamar, Rahab and Bathsheba. There is one Gentile in the list, the noble and lovely Ruth, the Moabites. the ancestress of David; and we think at once of the fact that Christianity is for Gentiles as well as Jews-for ALL the world. The incarnation means God clothing himself with human flesh and living the life of a man, meeting and conquering human temptations, taking the world's sin upon him and explating it by his death on the cross. This atonement. or "at-one-ment," this bringing of man, alievated by sin, back into true union with his Father, is the central doctrine of Christianity.
