ATTACKER OF GIRLS SHOT

Philadelphia.—A 65 year old man, holding two young girls prisoners in his barricaded home, defied police in a pistol battle until he was shot down and critically wounded after a barrage of tear gas brought him staggering from the house. While the two 15 year old girls covered in a corner of the second floor bedroom, Walter Bevin, veteran of two wars, fought off police, younded a bystander and one of his captives and threw the neighborhood into a panic.

Six policemen and a fireman and both girls were overcome by the tear gas hurled by the police in their efforts to dislodge the man. The girls, Hedwig Gliniski and Stasia Haraburda told police they had been lured into the house by the man's promise to pay them for housecleaning work. They said he had attacked them both after locking the door. The Gliniski girl was wounded in the leg by a bullet.

STRENGTH What is thy strength, O man. Who bears the burden and tries to span, The rivers that flow into the boisterous sea And bears on its bosom great ships for thee? It seems that strength inherent lies In the mental realm of him who tries To make the best of deficient lines, And scans the columns of Grecian times. Truth clothed with the greatest strength in light, Governs the stars and adds power to might Throughout all life strength doth impart. The desire to improve and cleanse the heart. The shades of night may bring happy dreams, And the strength of the day is not what it seems, While shouts of joy may bring to a close, The happiness tinged with the scent of a rose. The engine that rolls on the iron track, That exhibits great strength where there is no seeming lack, Is helpless to move without mind to inspire, And turn on the steam created by fire. This earth is an engine which displays great strength. It moves through space that has no length, But mind turns on the throttle with a full head of steam, And keeps it moving while the mariners dream. What part do you play as the procession moves along; Who takes your place in this mighty throng, Your aibi may prove a worthless thing, As you dip your chalice in the living spring. Strength from the material world is naught, Whence cometh the days that man has sought, Unfulfilling the banner in the spirit of love, The olive branch first, then the peaceful dove. —J. R. T.

HAVE PLEASANT BANQUET The dining room of the Riley Hotel Wednesday evening was the scene of a delightful banquet. The Gag Fasm Fraternity of the Plattsmouth Study Center entertained the Feabe Bowh sorority. Greth Garnett was a very able toastmaster, and also master of ceremonies. The entertainment provided would put to shame any such feeble efforts that Ben Bernie, Paul Whitman, or any number of others might put forth. After the formal part of the banquet was over, the tables were pushed aside, and one and all tripped the light fantastic to the strains of our best radio orchestras. These social affairs add greatly to the zest of college life, and are greatly enjoyed by everyone. Those present were: R. F. Patterson, guest of honor, Agnes Brink, Esther Altjenbruns, Faye Hennings, Elnora Hennings, Helen Woolcott, Leona Hudson, Gruth Garnett, Marvin Tritsch, Aulton Roland, Floyd Shanbott, George Adam, Stuart Porter, Albert Toman.

NEW NAME FOR JUDGESHIP C. S. Wortman, a new name in the list of aspirants for appointment to judge of the second judicial district, was presented to Governor Bryan for his consideration Thursday. Altho Wortman has a law office at Ashland which is outside the district, and was absent from the state twenty-five years, he lives on the family homestead in Cass county and is said to be qualified for the position. He was probate judge in Oklahoma. He was a teacher at Laurel and Hartington, later was graduated from the college of law, University of Nebraska, practiced law in Oklahoma and returned to the family homestead in Cass county three years ago. He called on Governor Bryan Thursday afternoon.

Truckers are Required to Lend Co-Operation

Merchandise Orders Shall Be Contained Within a Stamped Envelope and Sealed.

Altho trucks have supplanted or supplemented railroads as carriers of merchandise, particularly along the routes where trains have been discontinued, the government is not yielding its monopoly, thru the post-office department, of handling first class mail. Truck companies have been notified that where they take orders for merchandise to be filled at another place, such orders shall be placed in a government stamped envelope, regulation embossed type stamp, with envelope addressed and sealed with the date written across three cent stamp.

Common practice is for truckers to deliver to local wholesale houses orders from small towns in their territory. They cannot jot the items down on paper and carry the latter as memorandum. This perhaps does not apply to one or two items which the driver may carry in his head. The postoffice order is many years old. There was, however, little occasion for its use until the truck supplanted the railroad where the latter abandoned line or lines. Penalty for violation is $500 fine, six months imprisonment or both.

These carriers of orders do so under postoffice jurisdiction and control. While curtailed rail service has decreased postoffice parcel post business, Uncle Sam holds to the postage requirement on orders even tho he loses privilege of delivering the merchandise. The shipper is allowed to put an invoice in package or attach to the outside. It must, however, be a part of the shipment. Local postoffice officials assume that the penalty may attach not only to the violating trucker but to the man who orders the goods, later as an accessory.
