Nebraska Prison Break Occurred 22 Years Ago

One of Memorable Events in History of State as Three Desperate Criminals Slay, Escape.

Wednesday marked the twenty-second anniversary of one of the most thrilling events in the history of the state when three desperate criminals made their escape from the Nebraska state prison at Lincoln after slaying three of the prison officials and for several days were at large.

The prisoners were "Shorty" Gray, the leader, John Dowd, bank robber who had been sent to the pen from Cass county for robbery at Wabash and Charles Morley. The outbreak occurred at 2:15 in the afternoon when a blinding snowstorm was raging, the men securing weapons and in making their escape killed Warden James Delhunt, Usher A. C. Heilman and Deputy Warden Wagner and wounding Cellhouse Keeper Doody.

In the snowstorm the men made their way while the posses of men were forming and were able to find shelter at a farm house where they held the family in fear until the next day. They then made their way into Cass county, breaking into a store at Murdock where clothing was secured as well as other supplies and they made their escape on a hand-car, going north on the Rock Island in the direction of Omaha. Posses were formed in all of the counties to close in on the desperate men who were making their way toward Omaha.

Sheriff Quinton of Cass county organized a large posse from this city which was hurried into Sarpy county to assist in the manhunt but the party headed by John Briggs, South Omaha chief of police, was the one that contacted the men.

The trio of convicts, hard pressed, visited the farm home of Roy Blunt, a young man living near Gretna, forcing him at the point of a gun to hitch up and drive them toward Omaha in a wagon. When the posses came in sight of the wagon a running battle was staged by the men and the officers and in which Blunt, innocent victim, was killed as was Gray, the ringleader. John Dowd, seeing that capture was near shot himself and Morley was the only one taken alive and is today the oldest prisoner in years of service at the state penitentiary.

At the time of the outbreak Mont Robb of Union was steward at the penitentiary and was acting head of the prison for some time, restoring order in the prison.

From Friday's Daily
George Bates, one of the prominent residents of near Weeping Water was in the city today to spend a few hours attending to some matters of business and visiting with friends. While here he was a caller at the Journal to renew his subscription.

Judge John Yeager, presiding judge of the fourth district bench, has written Governor Bryan and urging him to make appointment of a judge in the second district to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Judge James T. Begley of this city.

Judge Yeager pointed out to the governor in his letter that the Omaha district had been called upon to furnish Judge James Fitzgerald to hold court at Nebraska City and with their docket very heavy in the district he desired that the vacancy be filled so that the fourth district judges might be able to devote their full time to their own docket.

It is not expected that a decision on the appointment will be announced by the governor until near the first of April, however.

On the Go from Morn 'til Night—But What About Their Feet?

Many a mother is unknowingly penalizing the future health and happiness of her children by paying little or no attention to the shoes they wear. The feet of a child by all means should be watched closely and fitted properly with good, well-made, all-leather shoes that hold their shape and support the vital parts of the feet. The safest way, and the most economical, is to turn that responsibility over to us. We'll fit them with our famous Poll Parrot shoes and fit them right.

Boy Kidnaped 40 Years Ago Finds Father

George Thompson Tells How Abductors Spirited Him Away; Lured by Marbles.

Sterling, Ill., March 16.—A son, kidnaped as he played in his grandmother's yard at Sterling 40 years ago, has been reunited with the father he long believed dead.

The story of his tragic infancy was told Friday by George C. Thompson, now a Western Union Telegraph Co. employe at Chicago, as he met his 70-year-old father this week. Charles Thompson, the father, is a pensioner of the International Harvester Co. and a Sterling resident for 59 years.

So vivid were his experiences as a child that the son recalled clearly the details of his kidnaping.

When he was but an infant his mother deserted the family. As he was playing in the yard one day, when 4 years old, a stranger showed him some bright marbles. The boy was so attracted that he followed the man several blocks.

Suddenly the stranger seized him, stifled his cries with a shawl over his head, placed him in a buggy and drove away. At the edge of Rock shawl was lifted and George discovered his mother with the stranger who died two years later. In that same year, George being 6, he was run over by a cable car and lost one leg.

Cared for in an endowment home, he lost track of relatives and was always told "Daddy is dead."

Later he got in touch with an aunt, who told him his home had been at Sterling but he had no relatives there.

Several days ago Thompson heard a message being filed to Sterling over the wires in his Chicago telegraph office, and told the sender of his early residence there. The story of Thompson's hunt for relatives reached the Sterling Daily Gazette, and a neighbor of Charles Thompson called his attention to the account as that of his son.

They got together with the family album of photographs, the family Bible and reminiscences and proved they were father and son.

New officers elected were Mrs. K. V. Halter, president; Mrs. Sam Ballance, vice president; Mrs. Frank Downey, re-elected secretary. The St. Patrick's day motif was used in the appointments.
