Just to get a line on the administration, it might be well to take a census and find out if parents still are naming babies "Nira."

Among other criticisms of the Whistler "Mother" stamp is the point that it would look a lot better if it said "Two" instead of "Three."

Former Vice-President Curtis says if he were to write a book, nobody would believe him. Was that the experience Dolly Gann had with her book?

We always know we are in a good, old-fashioned 100-per-cent American home when we see a picture of a basket of fruit hanging on one of the walls of the dining room.

When all other Dillinger clues failed, the Detroit News advised looking for him on the roster of the Cincinnati Reds; but now that's failed, and they're suspecting Dillinger is dead.

Washington gossips say Senator La Follette is feeling the lure of a third party race pretty strongly these days. It takes a special sensitiveness to feel a lure from something nobody else can even see.

"An intimate says General Johnson is a most companionable soul in his hours of ease," notes Harry Wade in the Detroit News. "Few of us have seen the general when he has let down his face for the night."

How nice it would have been to cast George Arliss as Pancho Villa. Unless, of course, the French would object to having Pancho imitate Voltaire, the Jews Rothschild, the English Disraeli and the Republicans Alexander Hamilton. Or the Mexicans become aroused at all those fellows imitating Pancho.

Now we know what became of all the old-fashioned Irish ball players when the Italians and the Czechs drove them out of the big leagues. They went into the Jewish League in Philadelphia. A Jewish League box score in the Philadelphia Inquirer lists Harkins, McGarvey, Dunn, Patterson, O'Donnell and Mackey.

Planned economy is when a man gets married on $20 a week.

A local man has a carious on his nose from drinking too much beet out of a stein.

If we understand the language of the merry morticians now in convention, the difference between a coffin and a casket is that the coffin is streamlined.

And it may turn out, if things get much worse, that those who are meek enough to inherit the earth will be too meek to undertake the task of operating it.

The government is organizing to fight crime, and is asking appropriations to arm the federal agents. Why not, in the interests of economy, take a few of the criminals' guns away from them and give them to the agents?

One side in the controversy says the trouble is what the NRA is doing to business; and the other side says the trouble is what business is doing to the NRA. It looks as if there can be no real settlement until the Literary Digest takes a poll.

Of course, we are very glad Maryland was founded 300 years ago, and it has been a very useful little commonwealth, from Lord Calvert down to H. L. Mencken, but we hadn't expected to go to all the trouble red 3-cent stamps can make just on Maryland's account.

The Boston Transcript says a good many of President Roosevelt's advisers remind one of old King Canute's courtiers who assured that monarch the tide wouldn't dare to disregard his commands. The record indicates, however, that even Canute's courtiers were convinced, after one experiment.

"All women are squirrels," says Edna Ferber, "because they instinctively hide things." It would be all right if they hid only things that belonged to them, but when they hide everything of the menfolk's from their spring neckties to the keys to the family car, no mere explanation of squirrelly is going to answer.

Europe is reconciled to the failure of disarmament. It should also reconcile itself to the failure of the next war to settle anything.

Many a poker player who has seen dawn cramp his winning would like to be on the Byrd expedition. In the Antarctic it will be night from now until next fall.

Perhaps one cause of the depression, is that in the old days mother made undies for herself and the girls from flour sacks. Lately she buys silk for all of them.

A string of New York orange drink stands has been sold in bankruptcy court. The new owner, we trust, will continue to operate the stands, as this is no time to turn a crew of red-headed girls out upon a distressed world.

By getting a new office in the department of agriculture Professor Tugwell will manage a 25 per cent increase in salary for himself. Now, if he will manage as well for the farmers whom he has taken under his care, that will be something.

Short skirts may be coming back as the fashion sharks predict, but the change will have less influence upon women's ready-to-wear business than when long skirts succeeded short. The girls can take the scissors and make a short one out of a long one.

A farmer writes that he will be the gladdest person in Nebraska when the depression is finally over. Not that he's hard pressed personally, but his daughter brought her husband back to the farm to live until things got better, and he's an efficiency expert.

General Johnson assures the "little fellows" who imagine they have been injured by NRA regulations that they are just seeing things. Little fellows who have trouble meeting their pay rolls might pay in scrip with one of the general's speeches printed on the back.

H. L. Mencken speaking of the "brain trust" says: "Go back to teaching sophomores to be ashamed of their fathers." He might have made that statement a little more effective, had he said: Go back to teaching sophomores so their fathers may be ashamed of them.

A California man was convicted the other day of first degree murder on two counts—for killing his wife and another man. The jury imposed the death penalty only in the murder of his wife, however. Probably a light fine will settle the other matter. At any rate, we see that the ends of justice are whittled down to a pretty fine point nowadays, especially in California.

Our opinion is that June Roble's return home would have been a happy event even without those two "ones" on her grade card.

Movie actress, denying that she's to marry Max Baer, says she doesn't even know him. As if that had anything to do with it.

It appears now that some of the sins of boom time parents are going to be visited upon their children in the form of bond issues.

It's nice to hear the old songs, and educational, too—in the case of many which prove to be not nearly so good as we once thought they were.

A good place to put one's troubles, says somebody, is in your pocket which is full of holes—but say! Some troubles are too big to slip through the holes.

Too bad the health authorities didn't discover dandelion greens before they did spinach. The annual lawn menace might have been done away with.

Recent strong south winds may have been caused by the whispering campaigns in Oklahoma, where there are more than 1,200 candidates for state office.

Tardy appreciation of one who appears to be quite an artist: Indiana has raised her reward, offered for the capture of John Dillinger, from $25 to $1,000.

We noticed an old-timer examining the fixtures in a beer place the other day. He remarked, "These light boards they use now may be all right, but in my day they needed 2 by 12's."

Business really is much easier than it was. Two years ago it wasn't possible to go a block along Main street without having four persons tell you the priceless things Amos and Andy said the night before.

The record of the 50-year sprint at Vassar which had stood for fifty years was broken the other day by the daughter of the girl who set it. If Vassar were in Kentucky, a new futurity race might grow out of this.

Great Britain announces a trade war with Japan, but adds that it will be entirely on a friendly basis. Indeed, somewhat like the trade wars the bootleggers and beer runners used to put on in our big cities before repeal.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat wonders what the heathen think about us when they see us in the movies, and wonders also why one of them doesn't write a book about it. Perhaps, because he is a heathen, he is too polite to express an opinion.

The Yemeni army is reported to have retreated toward Sana, after the fall of the seaport town, Hodeidah. This, says Eddihix, should not be confused with the battle of Hideo, which Helen Kane, the boop-oop-a-doop girl, lost in the courts last week.

"Jim" Reed is against the new deal. So are many others. But on one point he does an injustice to our favorite congressman. Reed predicates his candidacy on the promise that "somebody ought to tell the people what is happening." In heaven's name where has he been that he hasn't heard of Dr. Wirt and Congressman McGugin?

A PARADISAIC DREAM
I'm singing the praise of a dish that's fit
For the board of an epicure—
Whose savor and odor on mortal taste
Yields an almost magical lure.
With lots of good gravy and rich pie crust,
And seasoned until just right,
You'll find nothing else on the bill of fare
That so tempts human appetite.
A whiff of its fragrance as you lift the lid
Is a dream of Arcady's shore;
And a sense of Elysian food greets the taste
That has never been met with before.
You'll feast for the nonce in Paradise,
And dine on repasts of the blest,
As your soul soars aloft in realms of bliss,
Till your fabled maw craves rest.
Then you'll get back to earth with its sordid cares
And awake with a long drawn sigh—
Yet memory will dwell on the manna you ate
When you absorbed that chicken pie. "K"

An observer says the receivership of bankrupt concerns in Chicago has developed into a "pure, simple racket." Pure in the sense of being unadulterated, we presume.

A new kind of soap which leaves no ring in the bathtub is ready for the market. Now for the ringless telephone, and the bath will be a few moments of uninterrupted pleasure.

Pyromaniac motorists who scatter burning cigarette stubs along country highways might enjoy their pleasure trips more if they stopped to watch the prairie and forest fires they start.
