BEHIND the SCENES in HOLLYWOOD
HOLLYWOOD—The Dorothy Parker bon mots on the Hollywood scene already are being talked around.

The author's husband, Alan T. Campbell, was very much impressed the other day, when the beauty chorus of a musical invaded the Paramount commissary.

"That's amazing," he said, "it looks like there are 200 girls there."

"Yep," flipped Dorothy, "They are all the same girl, too."

You may have suspected it all along, but Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger (yes, they composed "Love in Bloom") contend that the way to write successful lyrics is to stick to words of one syllable.

In the entire chorus of "Love in Bloom," there are only seven words of two syllables and one of three.

An earlier list of the two song writers, "Take a Lesson from the Lark" carried out the theory even more perfectly. In its chorus, there are only three words of two syllables, and all of these are contractions such as "shouldn't" and "couldn't."

Bad grammar in songs is derided by this Hollywood tune team. None of the Robin-Rainger numbers employ it, they declare, unless they are character songs.

Did you hear about Katharine Hepburn's nice gesture? George Hackathorn, who played "The Little Minister" on the silent screen, was invited to see how R-K-O is doing it for the talkies. He came to the set as the guest of John Deak and watched a morning's shooting. Hepburn, who isn't so happy about strangers watching her emote, asked the name of the newcomer. Told it was Hackathorn, she stopped work to be introduced to him and talked for half an hour to the silent star. Breaking another of her rules, she asked Hackathorn to pose in a picture with her and Deak. Which means a valuable publicity break for the actor, who hasn't worked too much of late and who is recuperating from a severe illness.

After being away from the camera since 1929, Douglas MacLean is to act in a trailer for the new version of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" — and the one-time comedy star has the worst case of jitters Hollywood has seen in weeks. He's really worse scared than a beauty contest winner taking her first screen test. Here's good luck to you, Doug, old boy.

What whirlwind romance between a newly arrived foreign actor and a Hollywood brunette beauty broke up suddenly simultaneously with the appearance of a nasty scratch across the actor's hand?

Knick-Knacks— The off-again, on-again romance of Sylvia Sydney and B. P. Schulberg is once more in the limelight following the appearance of the pair together at the opening of the Trocadero cafe. ... This spot, incidentally, becomes the film colony's swankiest eatery. With wine cards three feet high.

Did You Know— That Mala, the Eskimo actor, was engineer on a small sealing vessel at the age of 11?

Snow will fly soon. Still Plattsmouth's Sixth street remains in its deplorable condition. The sad part about it is having to read in the daily press rather frequently where the state and federal government are footing the bill for pavement on federal highways through other towns. Surely this main thoroughfare that has been pounded out by heavy truck and bus traffic, is entitled to some consideration at the hands of the powers that be.

It is natural for Professor Moley to speak well of General Johnson's talents,—as who doesn't?—particularly in recalling that it was he who introduced the general to Mr. Roosevelt in 1932. The remarkable part of it all is that the general could have gone so long as 1932 without ever being introduced to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Wabash News

Thomas Colbert had the misfortune to lose two of his horses from corn-stalk disease, the loss coming at a most inopportune time.

The Wabash elevator has been able to ship a number of cars of wheat during the past few weeks and thus the Wabash vicinity has been doing its share to feed the hungry world.

Sherman Hardaway who is not satisfied unless he has something to do, has been repairing and making some changes in his radio while waiting for customers to come into the store.

Ralph Richards was the loser of a horse from the disease that is attributed to feeding corn stalks. This disease has taken toll of a number of horses over the county during the past few weeks.

W. T. Weddell, of Murdock, who formerly operated the elevator here, was a visitor in Wabash for a short time last Tuesday, while on his way to Weeping Water to look after some business matters.

H. P. Hinds arrived from Alvo last Tuesday and is staying for a short time at the home here in Wabash. After having lived here for so long, he says this seems more like home to him than anywhere else.

John Woods was busy a number of days last week building a dump body for one of his trucks which he uses in hauling sand and gravel and in this instance has made a drop bottom body, thinking that type more efficient than the tilting body.

John Woods has secured the contract for hauling gravel to the road running west from Wabash to and beyond the highway west and on towards Alvo. He has secured Messrs Harold Richards and Louis Reese as drivers and will get the job done in as short a time as possible.

The scholars and patrons of the Laurel Hill school were much pained to learn that at the firing of the cannon in the parade at Plattsmouth on Wednesday night of last week, their teacher, Irene Gibson, was injured by a piece of glass falling from one of the upper windows in the Bekins building. She is getting along nicely at this time, however, and with no serious effects.

Yesterday (Sunday) the invitation was given to the Wabash Bible school to attend the meeting of the Cass County Bible School association, that is being held in Elmwood today. As there were no delegates selected from the Wabash school and the distance is so short, the invitation was made for the entire school to attend and it is highly probable there will be a good number from here present.

Boy Swallows Thirty Cents; Cough's Up Dime.—Headline. That's better than some of the banks did.

The Junior Drum and Bugle corps will make one or more trips to Lincoln during the football season—and in exchange for a bit of parading and music, get to see the Nebraska Cornhuskers hand out their customary wallops to foemen. A nice recognition to the boys and their instructor, C. A. ("June") Marshall, who has labored hard to bring them up to their present standards of perfection.

Although housing facilities are every bit as scarce now as in the days of pipeline construction, the same "no-go"ing" policy is apparent as rentals are held down to nominal sums. Credit is due landlords in not "hiking" their prices as the demand increases. Plattsmouth welcomes the engineering and other personnel connected with river development work, and will do her best to take care of them without resorting to dubious rent-hiking practices.

Buy now ALL the things you need. Prices are going higher, so don't wait longer.
