CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our appreciation of the many acts of kindness to us at the time of the death of our loved one, to those who assisted in the last rites, also for the floral offerings.—The Family of Mrs. W. E. Maxon.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, October 21 By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"The Christian at Prayer"

Matt. 6:5-15.
This lesson brings the Christian to the acme of his life. In his prayer-life he comes in contact with the Holy Trinity as in no other way. He talks direct to God. He has learned to know God as his Father—in him he confides—to him he makes all "his wants and wishes known"; relying on the promises of God, which are "Yea and Amen." In Christ Jesus, he comes with "boldness to the throne of grace" (Heb. 4:16); "draws near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water" (Heb. 10:22); in this condition of heart he can now go "into the Sanctuary of God" (Ps. 73:17) and commune with God.
Our blessed Lord gives us in the above Bible passage instructions for "effectual" prayer—first, what to avoid and in the second place what rules to observe to obtain the blessing.

The Pharisees and the Scribes in Jesus' day made a show and a pretense of their religion. On the street corners and in the synagogues, they would stand where many could see them and make long prayers—without any heart in them. Jesus says they are hypocrites—double-faced—a false professor. They are an abomination in the sight of God. The most blessed hours for the Christian are those when he is alone with God—in the closet, the door shut, the world and all matters pertaining to the world left outside. Unhindered, unmolested, undisturbed, he lays his soul bare before his God. The Jews had a place for prayer on the housetop. In former years our members would retire after each meal for a quiet time with God alone. Jesus found it necessary to be alone with his Father. (See Mark 6:31; Luke 9:10, John 6:3). If the Son of God found it needful to be alone with his Father, how much more his followers! W. W. Walkford expressed the longing and the soul's desire in the beautiful hymn:
Sweet hour of prayer! Sweet hour of prayer!
That calls me from a world of care,
And bids me at my Father's throne
Make all my wants and wishes known.

The closet is the power-house for the Christian; if he neglects it and loses contact with the dynamo—the Holy Spirit, he will be in darkness and powerlessness and what use is such a man? We fear that the path to the secret prayer-closet of many is overgrown with grass. That is one reason why so many are so weak and fall with the least temptation.
Another injunction is against vain repetitions. Especially in the public service, we often have to stand and listen to the long drawn-out "talks" to the Lord—by preachers and laymen alike—when all they say could be uttered in fifteen words, but by "vain repetitions" it becomes a tiresome affair. The most effectual prayers offered in the New Testament contained from three to fifteen words. In order that man might have some model to follow in praying, Jesus gives his disciples a form or model. In comparison, for vain repetition in prayer, see I Kings, 18:26 and Acts 19:34. These are specimens that should cure anyone of such folly. Then there are a few long prayers on record in the Bible not of vain repetition, such as the dedicatory prayer of Solomon (28 verses) found in I Kings 8:23-61, and Jesus' high priestly prayer (17 verses) John 17.

An explanation of this model prayer would take too much space; we can only generalize in a formal way. The petitioner recognizes the Fatherhood of God, that also teaches the brotherhood of man; that the human race is one family, and the members of a family ought to have enough of the clan spirit in them that they all pull together. That alone ought to make war impossible and eliminate strikes and the doing of harm one to another. Christ teaches you to pray, first as a child: "Our Father;" then as a worshipper: "hallowed be thy name." The child's place is the highest; the worshipper comes next. "Thy kingdom come" calls for God's rule in every life; when every life is subject to Christ's rule, then the prayer of Jesus is fulfilled "that they may be one, as we are." (John 17:11). Then God's will will be done by his children as it is done by the ministering angels of God himself. That would usher the millennium in. The bread problem was with Christ in the wilderness temptation, as he fed the five thousand and four thousand, all through his life. He knew that man must have bread and that it must come from God, but that man must do his share, must help himself if he would be helped by him. Our daily bread—the daily bread of all who are able-bodied adult persons—is ours if we have earned it; when by our labor we have provided it for ourselves.

The giving of doles or charity may cause some to forget the necessity of working for their self-support, causing such people to lose their self-respect and sink into pauperism.
The forgiving of debts or faults is the hard part in life; it requires more grace than to endure suffering of pain and loss of possessions. But only in the measure as we forgive will we be forgiven. God will sustain his children in temptations but will not lend them into temptation—testing them—yes, but not to evil.
The "abundant rewards of prayer" are recognized by St. Paul in Eph. 3:14-21. All the riches in glory are at our disposal; in our weakness, strength is given to the inner man by his spirit; stabilized by faith, rooted and grounded in love. Jesus Christ dwells in our hearts, makes his abode there; guides us into the mystery of the Love of God that passeth understanding; will be filled with all the fulness of God—that is the abundant life—a sure reward for those who practice and live by faith in the Son of God continuing in prayer.
"Thou, my everlasting portion,
More than friend or life to me;
All along my pilgrim journey,
Savior, let me walk with thee."

'Alaska' Topic of Meeting of Woman's Club

Interesting Presentation of Illustrated Story of Life and People of Alaska Given.

From Tuesday's Daily
Last evening the Plattsmouth Woman's club had the pleasure of seeing slides and hearing about Alaska from Mrs. J. B. Archer of the Archer Travel Bureau of Omaha and her sister, Mrs. Arthur, who recently returned from Alaska. These pictures were shown at the public library. There was a large attendance and everyone enjoyed this part of the program very much.

After the pictures all present were invited to the home of Miss Mathilda Soennichsen where a business meeting and program was held followed by refreshments. The hostesses for the evening were Miss Mathilda Soennichsen, Mrs. A. H. Duxbury, Miss Rose Prohaska, Miss Wilhelmina Henriksen, Mrs. George Hetrick and Mrs. Wm. Woolcott.

Devotions were led by Mrs. L. S. Devoe. She used the Litany written by Mrs. H. B. Campbell. Observance of Book Week was discussed. The program consisted of two fine piano numbers given by Mrs. L. S. Devoe, "Night Song" by Cadman and "Second Arabesque," by Debussy. Very appropriate refreshments of pumpkin pie and coffee were served by the hostesses.

Visitors for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Archer, Mrs. Arthur and her daughter all of Omaha; and the two high school girls, Miss Virginia Trively, senior class representative and Miss June Geist, junior class representative. Mrs. Robert Reed, club president, being absent. Mrs. L. S. Devoe, vice-president, had charge of the meeting.

X-L CLUB NOTES

October 12th, sixteen members of the X-L club met at Mrs. J. L. McCartney's home for their first lesson. Mrs. Art Heier, assistant hostess.
The meeting was opened with the October song, "Annie Laurie." The lesson "Home Tailored Accessories" was presented by Miss Jessie Baldwin, Home Extension Agent. Many very attractive berets, hats and scarves were displayed and proved that they are very easily made at home. Making gloves to harmonize with beret and scarf was also demonstrated, and several gloves of different materials were shown. After the lesson everyone was busy cutting patterns. During the business meeting Mrs. Walter Franks, Mrs. Glen Lewis, and Mrs. Fred Muenchau were elected project leaders. Mrs. Zola Hoffman was elected social leader and Mrs. Ivan Aaltchou was assistant. Visitors were Mrs. Bert Muenchau, Elmwood, Mrs. A. R. Birdsall and Mrs. E. L. McCartney. Weeping Water, Mrs. Wm. Trunkenzol, Eagle and Mrs. Don McKinnon, Alvo.

Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Jesse Williams with Mrs. Wm. Hoffman assisting hostess, on Nov. 16th.

Long Time Resident Called.

Phillip Lambert, 74 years of age and who had spent most of that time in Murray. When he first came to Murray he was a laborer and would unload coal and do any kind of common labor and proved a good, reliable man. He later took up painting and paper hanging and found plenty of work in that line. While at work some years ago he fell and crippled himself, from which he never entirely recovered, for he was always more or less crippled thereby. However he continued to work until the advancing years made it very inconvenient to continue with the painting as he was not always feeling the safest on a ladder. The wife who had worked with him and with whom he had studied about the affairs of life. Later the wife sickened and died and after residing here for some time he went to Council Bluffs to reside with relatives. Occasionally Mr. Lambert came back to Murray to visit with his many friends here, and the last was the fore part of last week when he spent some three days here. Leaving about the middle of last week he was endeavoring to return home when he died suddenly. The body was brought to Murray on Wednesday of this week where the funeral was held and conducted by Rev. W. A. Taylor of Union. The interment was at the Young cemetery east of Murray beside that of the wife.

True Blue Knights.

Motto: "Don't Try Dying, Die Trying."
The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Donald Nelson. The flag committee led the flag salute. We had the minutes of the last meeting. We answered with the name of a flower. Ruby Worthan made the good deed box.
We had the old business then the new. We had the entertainment. Miss Davis gave us our castles. We put in some stones, then we adjourned.—News Reporter.

James E. Hatchett Still Poorly

Mr. J. E. Hatchett who has been in very poor health for some time and of late has been kept to his home, still remains very poorly, although being some better than he was when most serious. He is not able to get about as he is far from being secure on his feet. He likes to have his friends call upon him and it is a good idea to call around and see him.
