KNOX ASKS RECOVERY FIRST

Milwaukee.—Frank Knox, publisher said the nation's activities should contemplate recovery first and reform later, and as such "deserve from national leadership a display of common sense."

"We have," Knox told his audience, "a planned economy without plans." Billions of dollars have been loaned to stimulate the capital goods industries, he said, only to have code agreements prohibit investments in new capital goods.

"Washington announces a scheme to get 3 million farmers off the farms, and almost in the same breath another scheme to get 3 million city workers on the land," he said.

"We are told that the NRA was designed to get prices up and the reverberation of this declaration hardly died down before the administrator of the NRA implored the industrial leaders of the country, "For God's sake, keep prices down."

ASKS AID FOR MARYVILLE

Maryville, Mo.—Funds to aid 150 families who were victims of a tornado here Tuesday night have been requested by William Baxter, Jr. St. Louis, manager of the midwestern division of the American Red Cross. Mr. Baxter made a regional appeal for aid. He asserted if divisional contributions are not sufficient, the national Red Cross will make an appeal. A Red Cross survey showed 250 families here were stricken by the storm and that 150 families will need help.

The total of fatalities in the tornado was brought to five when Samuel W. Morrow, 42, Bevier, Mo., a member of the civilian conservation camp here, died.

THE POTTER AND HIS CLAY

We read in Jeremiah about a Potter and his clay. It seems the people then were the same as those of today. He warned the solons of his time, to take a sure, positive stand. For truth and justice and avoid building on dangerous sinking sand.

The Potter, as the clay he deftly moulds, into shape and beauty of character it quickly responds and unfolds. Then finishing it off, with his own brawny hands, is building securely against the danger of sinking sands.

Beware Mr. Potter; and don't become the clay. Letting it mould you and having its own sweet way. But be firm for principle and the right, taking a drastic stand. And you will avoid the treacherous shoals and danger of sinking sand.

Many of our lawmakers are looking wholly another way. And seem to be afraid, of having anything to say. When a measure before the house would surely place our land, and his people and a nation in danger of sinking sand.

Look out for the politician who says, he will one hundred percent obey. In the halls of our congress, what the bosses have to say. With the courage of a lion, he should take a servant's stand. Rather than flounder, and mire a nation, into dangerous sinking sand.

The Potter should have in mind just what he desires to mould. And produce a masterpiece, that is worthy to behold. Which made its impress as he shaped its form with his own hands. Would surely save him from drifting upon dangerous sinking sands. —J. R. Tremble.

PLAN PARLEY ON SECURITY

Washington.—A national conference here on economic security was called by Secretary Perkins for Nov. 14. Experts in many fields of security against what Miss Perkins called the "primary recognized social hazards" will be invited for conferences with President Roosevelt's economic security committee. Miss Perkins is chairman.

The committee has finished its preliminary report, but so far has not made any definite recommendations. Old age pension and unemployment insurance legislation is to be proposed at the next session of congress as a result of the committee's work. The committee, however, is going farther, surveying the field of health insurance, among other things.

Aid Pledged to Roosevelt by Bankers

Respond to Appeal for "Shoulder-to-Shoulder" Efforts—Want the Budget Balanced.

Washington, Oct. 25.—The American Bankers' association pledged its co-operation with President Roosevelt's recovery efforts today in a significant gesture of response to the president's reassuring address calling for shoulder-to-shoulder action.

Recommendations of the resolutions committee calling for continued co-operation with the administration and urging early balancing of the budget were adopted unanimously in a conciliatory spirit in sharp contrast to the anti-new deal sentiment prevalent at last year's convention. At the same time there were individual expressions of criticism for the president's speech.

The stand of the four thousand cleared the way for a co-operative drive for recovery along the lines suggested by the president in his address last night.

"The time is ripe for an alliance of all forces," he said.

Needs Recognized

The association went on record as recognizing the temporary need of large emergency expenditures, and as viewing President Roosevelt as "an understanding statesman" for "setting a time schedule for expenditures to be made for relief and recovery."

Balancing of the budget, the approved report said, "would eliminate fears of currency inflation." The bankers, at the same time held that stability of the monetary system is "fundamental" if business is to improve.

Industry and trade were called on to avail themselves of credit facilities by the association.

Max B. Nahn, chairman of the resolutions committee, read the report before a large audience in the National theater and it was approved without further discussion.

Other Resolutions

"Understanding statesmen," the budget resolution said, "meet such emergencies as they arise, but at the same time make it clear that expenses cannot be allowed to exceed income indefinitely."

Just before adjournment, the economic policy commission of the association presented conclusions that "American business will again become a good customer of American banking when the prospects for business profits promise to justify the risks of borrowing. The initiative must be that of the business man, it cannot be that of the banker."

The concluding session of the convention saw the bankers rise to give a vote of appreciation for a speech by David Lawrence, a Washington newspaperman. He assailed the policies of the Roosevelt administration.

To "Further Understanding." A cross-section view of the association concerning the president's speech was described today by its retiring president, Francis M. Law, as pointing the way for "further understanding and co-operative effort." He promised the bankers would "do their full duty."

"We desire," Law said, "to assure the president that the banks have full confidence in the people. The bankers liked the clear statement of the president that labor of mind and hand are entitled to fair profits for their labor."

Refers to Reynolds Talk

"The banks have always been in alliance with industry, labor, business and agriculture, and the president's call for a closer alliance will meet our full response."

Referring to the speech of Jackson Reynolds, president of the First National bank of New York, who preceded the president, Law said:

"The address of Mr. Reynolds and the message of the president were complimentary. Mr. Reynolds gave assurance of the bankers' desire to co-operate fully with the government in every sound recovery effort."

the middle of last week for Savannah, Mo., where he goes to take treatment for an ugly sore on his cheek, which has been rather stubborn in healing. Mr. Nickel thought he would go down to the hospital, where he could have the infection cared for in the proper manner.

Interested in Pension Plan

R. C. Wenzel, of Eagle, was a visitor in Alvo last Wednesday and was interesting the people in the proposed old age pension plan which is sponsored by Upton Sinclair of California. This is a sort of utopian plan that it is claimed will restore prosperity by providing a pension of $200 a month to all persons over 60 years of age, with the stipulation that it must all be expended for useful commodities during the month. Besides putting a lot of money in circulation it would prohibit all persons over the pension age from engaging in any work for hire and thus provide jobs for many younger men now out of employment. At least that is what its sponsors claim, but we leave it to you, readers and friends, to decide for yourself.

Mr. Wenzel left some petitions in Alvo for those to sign who wish, asking that the plan be put in effect.

Family Get Together

The family of James H. Foreman and wife, consisting of Carroll Foreman and family, of Alvo; James Foreman, Jr. and family of North Dakota, and Clay Foreman and wife, were all gathered last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Foreman, where they enjoyed a splendid dinner and a visit with all the members of the family.

Killed in California

Frank Ernest Lynch, son of Frank E. Lynch, Sr., of Lincoln, and nephew of P. J. Lynch, of Alvo, who was engaged as salesman for an auto tool supply house, met with death in an accident that occurred while in pursuit of his business at Los Angeles a short time since. The young man, who was best known as Ernest Lynch, had gone to the west only a few weeks before his death, having made his home in Lincoln for some years. The remains were brought back to Lincoln, where his wife and children, as well as the parents, reside.

Those from Alvo and vicinity who attended the funeral were P. J. Lynch, Mrs. J. H. Weichel and Mrs. Jennie Rouse, uncle and aunts; Harry Weichel and wife, cousins; Earl Dreamer and wife and Joe and Hal Parsell. Interment was in Wyuka cemetery at Lincoln.

The accident which caused his death occurred on October 16th.

Pretty Home Wedding

At the home of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Reuter, on last Tuesday evening occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Clara Reuter, to Mr. Carl Voightman, of Louisville, where the groom has made his home for some time. The home had been specially decorated for the occasion. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present. The marriage lines were read by the Rev. R. J. McKenzie, of the Methodist church, of Alvo. After the wedding supper, the young couple departed for Chicago, where they have been taking in the sights of the closing days at the great Century of Progress exposition. They will return to Alvo for a visit before engaging in housekeeping at Louisville, where they expect to make their home.

The Journal, along with their many friends, extends congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy married life.

day so that the teachers could attend the convention of the Nebraska State Teachers associations. Most of the faculty attended at Lincoln, but a few went to Omaha.

The second issue of The Oriole, high school mimeographed paper, made its appearance last Wednesday. The paper contained twelve pages; this issue, the same as were in the first issue. It is distributed free to all school patrons, also to taxpayers not represented in the school.

On November 16, the Junior class will present "The Girl in the Fur Coat," for which the following pupils have been given parts: Lola Rueter, Margaret Paulus, Verna Vickers, Lavina Holka, Florence Roelofs, Maxine Ayres, Merle Kinney, Dale Ganz, Dale Haertel, John Weichel and Ted Christensen. The play is directed by Miss Mabel McGinnis, class sponsor.

Sixty-eight pupils were neither tardy nor absent during the first month of school. Four had perfect attendance but were tardy. The record for the second month just closed is much better. Ninety-five were neither absent nor tardy and five additional were perfect in attendance, but were tardy. The percentage of perfect attendance for the second month was 97.07%.

Eight high school pupils were on the Honor Roll announced at the close of the first six weeks. In the grades, thirty-four children were on the roll.

After two meetings had been held, application had been approved by the Board of Education, and ten people had registered for the Relief Study Center, Alvo's application was not approved by the state because Cass county is not one of the co-operating counties with the State Relief Administration.

Supt. L. M. Hauptman spoke to the high school convocation on last Tuesday morning. He centered his remarks around three headings: Standards in Life, Character and True Friendship.

On November 6, high school students will vote on regular candidates and election issues at a mock election to be held.

ENTERTAINS LADIES

Mrs. D. C. Morgan, local representative of the woman's branch of the democratic state committee, entertained Friday afternoon at a "coffee" held at the Hotel Plattsmouth. A number of the ladies interested in the work of the party were present and enjoyed very much the fine refreshments provided for the occasion by the hostess, who was assisted by Miss Anna Heisel. The party workers were supplied with literature for their use in the campaign.

LITTLE SON ARRIVES

From Thursday's Daily This morning the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hill was made very happy by the arrival of a fine little son. The young man tipped the scales at nine pounds and with the mother is doing very nicely. The occasion has brought a great deal of happiness to all of the members of the family circle.
