This will provide work for a number of local people both during the time of construction and afterwards, as he expects to have several delivery trucks in operation, supplying gas, oil and tractor fuel to farmers over a wide territory. He hopes to have the work completed by the first of March, when he will be in posiion to start the new business out in

> > That Railroad Wreck

When the northbound early morning passenger train of the Missouri Pacific ran into the rear end of a freight train that was endeavoring to get in the clear on a siding, a great spectacle was presented. The engine of the passenger train telescoped the way-car of the freight, setting it afire. The engine was derailed. The fire from the way car spread to two other cars just ahead of it, the one nearest being loaded with Ford cars and the next with beer.

A large crowd was attracted to the scene, and as might well be expected, the desire to imbibe was too strong for some of the spectators to overcome, so quite a bit of the beer was Ray Becker, who for a time was drank on the scene, while some was his home at Bartlesville for a visit deputy sheriff, and has since been en- even carried away. A fire was built with the folks here and as well the gaged in farming, has concluded that from some of the debris to keep the many old friends, it occurred to them the establishment of a bulk service workmen and others warm and for a that they should also go to the north- station is as good a business as one time there was considerable quaffing of the beer. A news photographer in the act of snapping a picture of the wreck caught the tapping of one of the barrels of beer which gushed forth vigorously as the bung was driven in, giving an imitation of Old Faithful,

> Little attention was paid to the burning of the Ford cars, so intent was the crowd on saving the beer from "destruction."

> > Is Recovering Nicely

John Stine, who has been employed as a cowboy on one of the ranches of the northwest, some weeks ago suffered the loss of his thumb, which was torn away when caught in a lariet. The injury was dressed by a physician who instructed John to take good care of it, but he went on working and the wound became infected, causing him a great deal of trouble and fear lest the infection spread and cause further complications. However, it has now been successfully checked and he is getting along nicely. While he is recuperating, he is visiting here and enjoying a nice vacation from his
