Completes Five Years' Service at County Farm

Harry Nielson Has Proven Most Efficient as Superintendent of the County Institution.

Harry Nielson, superintendent of the Cass county farm west of the city, is completing his fifth year of service in that capacity and is making his annual report to the county board of the institution in its conduct.

The choice of Mr. Nielson for this position has been more than justified in the excellent way that affairs have been conducted and the excellent care of the property and the county war-ls.

When Mr. Nielson arrived to take charge of the farm there were but thirteen residents while now there are twenty-six who make their home there and under the care of the Nielson family.

In the five years there have been nine passed away and nine others have left the farm for various reasons. That the residents have had excellent care is shown by the fact that eleven of the original thirteen that were there five years ago are still residents of the farm home.

In addition to the care of the residents Mr. Nielson has conducted the farming of the 120 acre farm of the county and with the exception of the extreme drouth of last year there has been excellent crops and which have contributed a great deal to the support of the home.
