One Federal Office in Line to Pass Out

Co-Ordinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman Bids Fair to Lose His Job.

Washington. — Unless President Roosevelt brings direct pressure on congress democratic leaders agreed that the office of federal co-ordinator of transportation, one of the new deal agencies, would be permitted to expire June 16, Joseph B. Eastman, the co-ordinator, also said that if congress did not pass his bill for the reorganization of the interstate commission his office probably would be abolished.

"My job as federal co-ordinator of transportation is fast nearing the end of its appointed life on June 16 next, and whether or not it will be given a new lease of life I do not know," Eastman said. Eastman has recommended the reorganization of the interstate commerce commission and the creation of a permanent co-ordinator of transportation, but a majority of the commission is opposed to the legislation.

Most of the railroads are opposed to continuation of the co-ordinator's office, which was created two years ago by congress to produce economy and facilitate reorganization of the rail carriers. Motor bus and truck operators, however, generally favor the reorganization bill and continuation of the co-ordinator. Legislation to put them under regulation of the commission appears likely of enactment at this session.

President Roosevelt has been informed by congressional leaders that with the interstate commerce committees handling the utility holding company legislation and other pressing matter enactment of his program to place all transportation systems under the interstate commerce commission at this session would be difficult, particularly in view of opposition to the reorganization bill. Eastman has proposed that the commission be divided into sections to handle rail, waterway, air and motor types of transportation.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Saturday evening W. F. Nolte was very pleasantly surprised by a group of neighbors. It was the occasion of his birthday. In fact it was rather a group birthday party, Mrs. C. D. Geary having a birthday on the same date, and Mrs. Fern Topfiff only one day earlier. Most of the evening was spent playing pinocle, after which the beautiful birthday cakes and refreshments were served from the filled baskets.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Geary, Mr. and Mrs. George Topfiff, Mr. and Mrs. John Blotzer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Meisinger, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Noel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clint England, Mrs. Ella Troop and Lavina, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Topfiff and Bonnie and Misses Louise and Grace Vallery.

Officials Map Nebraska Soil Erosion Plans

Details Being Worked Out at Lincoln to Carry Out Program for Saving Soil of the State.

J. R. Carnahan, state director of the federal emergency relief administration work division, and L. A. White, state director of the federal emergency rural rehabilitation division, Monday at Lincoln were mapping details of a soil erosion control program on the basis of a possible $100,000 Nebraska grant.

Rowland Haynes, Nebraska federal relief administrator, returned from Washington with an unconfirmed promise of the grant which awaits verification.

Tentative plans indicate the use of extension division county agents and county work relief directors to handle the soil erosion control organization. The work probably will depend largely on listing of fields, a method which authorities said has often proved successful.

Dean W. W. Burr of the University of Nebraska agricultural college said $100,000 was not adequate, but would be "a great help."

Haynes said he expected definite word from Washington by the middle of next week.

No indication he might be shifted from Nebraska to some other relief post was noticed in Washington, Haynes said. He reported May allotments likely will be reduced in many states, but that he was attempting to have Nebraska reductions postponed due to already decreased funds which necessitated withdrawals from the state surpluses.

HOPE TO CLEAN UP THE "150 CLUB" DRIVE SOON

Although response has been rather slow and only a few canvassers have turned in completed lists, it is hoped to clean up the "150 club" drive by the end of the present week, or early next week, at the latest. Nearly every other town in the Arbor Lodge district has turned in its Scout dues to the Cornhusker area headquarters at Lincoln, and Plattsmouth, which was among the early ones in last year cannot afford to lag this week. The annual dues are $1 per member, out of which is paid the Plattsmouth apportionment of $90, insurance on the Scout cabin, telephone service during the summer season and other overhead expense.

Canvassers having lists out are being urged to get them in as quickly as possible. Members of the club may also make payment of their dues for the current year to E. H. Wescott.

ANNUAL FAMILY PICNIC

Sunday, April 28, 1935, there were thirty-two members of the family present at the Hovey annual picnic which gathered this year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Roddy at Union.

Those present were Mrs. J. E. Hovey and son, Ernest, Mrs. Wallace Goghill and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Hovey and family, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ames and son, and Ross, Bill and Onieta Garreans of Bartlett, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Scharp and baby daughter of Shenandoah, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Roddy and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dukes of Union. There were three new members at the picnic this year, Baby Carol Lee Roddy, Baby Mary Jo Scharp and Baby Ronald Edwin Hovey.

Chicago.—Chemical analysis of the vital organs of 4-year-old Richard Perrot, whose body was recovered from the north branch of the Chicago river, was begun Tuesday when Max Perrot, the father, told authorities he still believed his son had been the victim of a moron. ROB LETTER BOXES

Denver.—Robbery of letter boxes by thieves apparently seeking "dime mail" added another problem to the Denver chain letter situation. The mail load was three times normal over the week end and Postmaster Stevic said one delivery would have to be eliminated.

FIGHT TO BAR DUST DEATH

Beaver, Okl.—Physicians fought to check the spread of respiratory illnesses in the southwest drought region with dust blamed by Red Cross official as a contributing cause to six pneumonia deaths in a week.

"The persistent dust laden air," said Dr. E. A. McGrew of the Beaver hospital, "is causing more and more infections of the respiratory tract and the more serious cases are surely the most fatal lung infections I have ever seen."

Three persons were dead and a dozen hospitalized here. Another dozen were dead in other parts of the Oklahoma panhandle; two were dead in Seward county, Kas., and one at Walsh, Colo., as silt clouds blew fitfully over the area.

One of the most critical cases in the hospital here was that of Miss Sadie Bonendlust, a nurse, who was ordered to bed ten days ago by physicians after she had cared for dust patients for several weeks.

Physicians said the disease is unlike the ordinary form of pneumonia. The three who died here breathed naturally until they succumbed and each was ill for several days before death.

Cloth dust masks, scoffed at by some, worn gratefully by others, were turned out by the hundreds at Red Cross headquarters in Wichita and Topeka, Kas., to be shipped to stricken communities of the high plains wheat and cattle country.

Truckers Respond to National Code of Competition

Movement Being Joined in by Truckers of State in Large Numbers in Self Regulation.

Truck operators registered under the code of fair competition for the trucking industry will be given preferential treatment in the granting of certificates and permits by the interstate commerce commission when that agency assumes jurisdiction over highway transportation operations.

A bill proposed by Joseph B. Eastman, federal transportation co-ordinator, and which has passed the senate, provides that code registration "shall be evidence of bona fide operation to be considered in connection with the issuance" of a certificate, permit or license. The bill further provides that operators must have been in business in 1934 and continued in business prior to the effective date of the act, in order to be entitled to a permit or certificate, under the provisions of the "Grandfather" clause.

The trucking code in 1934 registered more than 190,000 individual operators, owning about 302,000 vehicles, according to Kile R. Martin, chairman of the Nebraska state code authority for the trucking industry.

"The Motor Carrier bill now before congress," Mr. Martin explained, "recognizes the trides under self-regulation made by the trucking industry in the last year. Operators who can prove that they were complying with the law of the land through reference to their code registration, will have little difficulty in obtaining the right to continue in operation under ICC control. On the other hand, those operators who failed to register may be required to prove convenience and necessity."

Mr. Martin said several hundred operators in Nebraska had renewed their registration for the second code year. He expressed confidence that the bill providing for extension of the National Industrial Recovery Act for another two years soon will be enacted by congress.

RETURNS FROM NEW YORK

From Wednesday's Daily Attorney A. L. Tidd returned last evening from Rochester, New York, where he has been for the past two weeks on legal business. Mr. Tidd was called there to look after the settlement of the estate of his brother, Grant Tidd, a prominent railroad executive who passed away some weeks ago. Mr. Tidd made the trip by bus both going and coming and traveled through a large section of the country but was very glad to get back home. Mr. Tidd states that he is now settled for traveling for a time at least and is getting all set for the annual flower show in this city of which he is the chairman.

Grain Sorghums to Replace Many Other Feeds

E. F. Woodward of Thayer County, Near Chester, a Leader in Growing Atlas Sorgo.

E. F. Woodward, Thayer county commissioner living east of Chester, is one Nebrakan who believes in growing grain sorghums. They are largely replacing corn on his farm for livestock feed.

Woodward's example is being followed more extensively than ever, as more farmers now are thinking of putting in sorghums within the next few weeks. A grower of kafir corn for more than twelve years and an enthusiast about Atlas sorgo, this farmer will increase his plantings. "Under present conditions, we've got to do something like this," he says.

Production records for the past few years prove that Woodward's plantings have been highly successful. Last year where corn failed to make any feed at all, Atlas sorgo made 1 1/2 tons of fodder per acre. In other years it has also outyielded corn. In 1929 in a variety test held on the Woodward farm, thirteen acres of kafir corn produced 420 bushels of grain while corn in an identical field did not make more than eight bushels.

In growing his sorghums, he usually plants at the rate of five acres for every bushel, or about 10 to 12 pounds per acre. He puts it in with a lister and plants usually about May 20. The Atlas will ripen in that section, and give fairly good growing conditions, will produce large tonnage of roughage.

Tests conducted by the Thayer county farm bureau in recent years point to the practicability of growing more sorghums in that area and Agricultural Agent W. R. Wicks, an ardent backer of sorghums, believes the acreage may increase to about 20,000 acres in his county alone. C. C. Warthen, E. H. Kahle and E. B. Strauber have been co-operators in showing other farmers how sorghums grow in that area.
