CLOUDBURST FLOODS OGALLALA STREETS

Ogallala, Neb., May 27.—A cloudburst Monday evening which residents described as "the worst we've ever had," flooded streets deep enough to cover auto radiators.

The rain was accompanied by a light hail and moderate winds. Basements, houses and business places were flooded. Tumbleweeds from the hills rolled down in drifts three feet high. No serious damage was reported.

4-H CLUB REPORT

On May 28, we met at the home of Eleanor Giles. We elected leaders. They were Charlotte Palmer, song leader; Ruth Ann Hatt, yell leader; Barbara Rhoden, game leader; Kathryn Barkus, program committee.

We also had some demonstrations by Eleanor and Lois Giles. At the close of the meeting we sang songs played games and gave some yells, and dainty refreshments were served.

IMPROVES STATION

The Ofe Oil Co. service station at Chicago avenue and Pearl street, is now being given the last touches of the spring cleanup and renovation that makes it truly a picture of beauty and a great addition to the charm of that portion of the city. The building is being painted a clear white with trimmings of red and blue facing for the service station section of the building, which with the vari-colored roof of the office section makes a colorful picture. Window boxes have been placed at the office that adds to the charm of the setting and in the later summer the approaches will be a glow of bloom when the roses and other plants are in bloom. In addition to the decoration of the station there has been a large section of the yard paved with the new process asphalt and crushed rock to form a fine pavement that offers a wear resisting surface to the parkway.

The company on opening their plant secured the fractional lots south of the station and which is converted into a real beauty spot in the landscaping of the grounds and where several years ago there was an unsightly spot there is now one of the most attractive places in the city. The background of spirea is now in bloom and in the center of the park a large bed of red geraniums will be placed by Henry Jasper, local florist, to add to the beauty of the scene. The station and grounds are certainly a real credit to the city.
