Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, September 22nd By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Jesus (A Great Christian Leader)"

James 1:1-17.
It has been quite difficult for scholars to name of a certainty the James who wrote the Epistle, as there are four by that name in the New Testament. (a) James, the brother of John; (b) James, the Apostle; (c) James, the son of Alphaeus; and (d) James, the brother of our Lord. Did Jesus have brothers and sisters? The preponderance of evidence, however, favors James the brother of our Lord. We are dealing here with a character that is ordinarily given little thought and study, yet he helped by his wise suggestions and clear judgment, to shape the policies of the early church, and guided the same into safe paths. About 51 A. D., when our lesson opens, this James was recognized as the head of the church at Jerusalem, the leader of the conservative portion of Jewish Christianity.

"Though not one of the twelve, he enjoyed, owing to his relationship to our Lord, and his commanding piety, almost apostolic authority, especially in Judea, and among the Jewish converts." (Philip Schaff).

The common belief was at this time, after the recorded events in Acts 10, that the Gentiles could be saved, as completely as the Jews.

But a new and a very important question loomed up in Palestine and Syria. Certain men came down to Antioch from Jerusalem claiming that the Gentile could not be saved unless he submit to circumcision, according to the Mosaic law. This caused quite a disturbance in the church at Antioch. They sent a delegation, composed of Paul and Barnabas, as well as a few other Christians, to Jerusalem, to have this matter definitely settled. The scriptures were on the side of those who insisted upon circumcision. If Paul could plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonist could say yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed. The inference would be that the justified Gentiles now in the church should follow Abraham as an example and receive the same sign. The problem was to save both the liberty of the Gospel and the authority of the Scriptures. God's spirit harmonized the two. (The proceedings of the first council of the church, as found in Acts 15, must be studied).

It was the wise counsel of James that gave expression, and as a wise leader, brought to a happy conclusion a very vexing and difficult problem, to the satisfaction of all. In his Epistle to the Jews, James has rendered a very valuable service to his people. Addressed to the twelve tribes, it is the most Jewish writing in the New Testament. If we eliminate two or three passages concerning references to Christ, the whole Epistle might find a place in the Old Testament, as far as substance of doctrine and contents is concerned.

There is no mention of the incarnation or the resurrection of Christ. The word gospel does not occur in the Epistle. Some great truths are taught and valuable teaching is found. Some of his statements are difficult to interpret, but God's Holy Spirit furnishes the illumination. To "count it all joy" when falling into temptations, may be hard to believe, but after the testing—proving—and the victory, comes the joy of a good conscience, a calm and peace. During the testing period, we learn patience, one of the greatest virtues. Without patience, no achievement is possible; with it, none may be dispensed of. In lack of wisdom—prayer; it can be had for the asking. Wisdom is the best knowledge, used for the highest end. Asking in faith, not "doubting."

Lack of faith is virtually making God a liar. God promises to the praying soul an absolute sure answer. Then to doubt God's promise, makes him a liar.

A doubt-minded man is unstable in all his ways. He cannot be trusted. God wants rock-like men, who can stand four-square to all the winds that blow. He wants men whose sympathies are unalterably with righteousness.

James has by close observation seen the men of low degree exalted, because he is a Child of God through Christ; and he has seen the rich man's wealth disappear, like grass and flower wither in scorching heat—like we have seen in the last four years. Rich and poor are alike dependent on God. The man tested and proven and found to be genuine, is promised the crown of life. The perfect life, which God will give, is the crown we hope for. This life, the life of Christ, endures for all eternity, and is a sheer gift of God; of "the crown of glory," I Pet. 5:4; and "the crown of righteousness," I Tim. 4:8.

Whatever there is good and perfect—comes from God—he never changes through the ages—the same yesterday, today and tomorrow. The greatest—the best—the most precious and perfect gift—has come from above—the unspeakable gift of God's dear Son, and with the gift of his Son, He gives you the gift of the Holy Spirit. To this inheritance would James lead the church of God.

Long, mother of Mrs. Nickles, departed Sunday for Holbrook in the southwestern part of the state, where they will look after some business matters and visit with friends. Mrs. Long has some land interests out that way and they will look after it while there.

With a force of pickers, Albert Young has been busy picking and selling peaches from their orchards and have found many buyers, disposing of the fruit about as rapidly as it can be picked. The peaches this year are of exceptionally fine quality, and are being gobbled up by buyers from nearby towns, who prefer them to the shipped-in kind.

Woodman Spare That Tree.

This admonition was disregarded when the tree which was topped a few years ago in the yard of W. S. Smith and followed by the severe drought of last summer and the continued hot spell of this summer died and had to be removed. It was grubbed and cut up in stove lengths. Some thirty-five years ago when Mont Robb and wife resided here Mrs. Robb sent for an English Poplar and has flourished since her kindly culture until just recently when it was chopped down and will be used for firewood.

They were not returning and turned Mr. and Mrs. Scott loose there and where they enjoyed some three week of a very fine visit with friends and their daughter at Vertuna.

They were also visiting at Santa Barbara where there was a wild west show with thousands of horses, and some which cost much money. They were there at the time of the death of Will Rogers and saw a number of his horses which were entered in the show.
