Farmers Day Outstanding for Its Fine Parade

Cleverly Arranged Floats and a Great Display of Horses Mark the Glamorous Offering.

The farmers of the community who had taken over the Thursday features of the King Korn Carnival were there and over in their program and the great parade that extended almost two miles along the streets of the city.

The farmers had promised that they would set a high mark to shoot at in their parade and more than made good in the part that they played in the festivities.

The program opened shortly after 1 o'clock when the Mynard Warblers, Ray Cook, Charles and Edward Howard and Dick Livingston gave several numbers to open the exercises of the day. Mrs. Roy O. Cole served as accompanist.

Mary Lou Warner, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Warner, of near this city was presented in a group of the popular numbers that were much enjoyed by all of the audience and reflected the greatest credit on this little lady.

Vern Rewalt, of Avoca, gave two saxophone numbers that gave the artist ample opportunity for the display of his talents on this instrument.

Raymond Cook, always a favorite with local audiences, presented several solo numbers with his usual charm, the accompaniment being given by Mrs. R. O. Cole.

The Parade

As the hour for the annual farmers day parade arrived, the streets were filled with spectators to await the coming of that gorgeous display of color and horseflesh that had been arranged by the hustling committee of the farmers.

The parade was headed by Charles Barnard and the marshals, mounted on fine spirited horses, the marshals wearing the wide rimmed western hats, colored handkerchiefs and carrying American flags.

The American Legion drum and bugle corps led the first section of the parade and set a snappy marching cadence for the paraders that followed.

The floats that were used in the parade showed great originality and skill in their preparation and brought much applause as they moved over the streets.

The Rock Bluffs Flower club had a clever and well arranged float with the colored cotton pickers as the theme of the float.

One of the clever designs was that of "Winter Time" in which the men and women were garbed in old time costumes, the men gathering about the kitchen stove popping corn while the women were busy at their quilting.

"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" was another of the cleverly arranged floats which showed the mother industriously laboring in the garden while the youth and maiden were busily engaged in their love making.

"Butchering Time" also gave a very realistic touch to the fact that the season for this occupation will soon be here, the members of the party on the float being engaged in the tasks that butchering day brings to the farm. Real welters distributed along the line of march also added to the realistic features of the float.

"Peach Time" was another of the cleverly arranged and decorated floats that won much appreciation from the crowds.

The "Sattler & Blotzer" ranch float also added a touch of the old west to the parade.

Tom Grosshans of La Platte with his "White Mule" float added to the fun of the parade and was a clever and well presented feature.

The Cole Brothers with their sordid display and float made another of the attractive features of the parade.

There was every variety of farm implements shown in the parade, some horse drawn and others with the modern and up to date tractors being used as the motive power. This was a great display of the farming facilities of the county and the up to the minute methods used by the farmers in producing their crops.

The live stock section of the parade was one of the largest that has been seen and embraced some ninety-five of the finest horseflesh that can be found in any section of the country.

Beautiful Percheons from the Elbert Wiles farm made a magnificent showing of these purebred animals that won the admiration of all of the many hundreds to witness the parade.

The riding horses were perhaps the finest that have been seen here and with the experienced riders, both ladies and gentlemen, presented a sight that is not often to be seen as the high-stepping thoroughbreds paraded.

Adding to the fun and frolic of the parade was the force of clowns in many and varied costumes that brought laughter and fun along the line of march and their pranks with the onlookers brought much enjoyment.

The Avoca concert band under the leadership of Will B. Green, of Lincoln was heading the second section of the parade and their snappy music added to the interest as the great parade swung down the main street of the city.

Following the parade their was an exhibition of the gaited horses given at the Athletic park and which drew out a large number of those interested in the fine high stepping animals.

On Main street a special exhibition of trained horses was given, Dr. Floyd Flynn of Omaha, having brought his highly trained riding horse here who gave a delightful showing on intelligence and training under the direction of his master, while the horse of George Christianson of Bennington, also pleased the spectators by the exhibition of cleverness.

Afternoon and Evening Program.

Following the parade and horse show the program at the platform was resumed with the harmonica and Jews harp numbers by Clifford Sutton that were finely presented and the Cisney Revelers of Nehawka who added their part to the pleasant features of the afternoon. Miss Evelyn Iske of La Platte was also presented in vocal selections on the afternoon portion of the program.

The evening brought to the program a musical organization from the south portion of the county, Phil Rihn and his orchestra of Union being presented in a very fine and well selected program of numbers.

The Rube singers of Mynard with their many clever antics added to the night program and drew a great round of applause for their entertaining stunts.

Ray Herold and Glen Puls also assisted in the evening program with several songs and instrumental numbers that added to the program and were given in the usual entertaining style of these two clever musicians.

The Wagner sisters of Weeping Water were also featured on the evening program with their vocal and instrumental selections. These young ladies are popular entertainers and their selections were very much enjoyed by all.

The Avoca band was presented in concert as the closing feature of the program and under the skillful direction of Mr. Green gave an hour of the best band music that has been heard here. The program was varied and too much cannot be said of the fine manner in which these musicians presented their part of the King Korn program. The local people are very appreciative of the visit of the Avoca band and their generous assistance in the parade and program that helped make Thursday an outstanding day of the fall festival.

The evening was closed with the old time dances at the platform, Earl Lancaster and his orchestra furnishing the music and the calling by Pat Campbell and Ed Kohrell to aid in making the dances snappy and full of pep.

The awards of the parade were announced at the platform, first prize to the Rock Bluffs Flower club, second to "Winter Time," third to "Apple Blossoms" and fourth to "Butchering Time" and fifth to "Peach Time."

NOT TO LEAVE CHARGE

From Friday's Daily
Rev. H. E. McKelvey, pastor of the Mynard U. B. church, was among the attendants at the parades this week and in conversation gave the good news that he and Mrs. McKelvey are to remain in the charge in which they have proven so successful. The district superintendent of the church has rescinded the change made at the recent conference at York and Rev. McKelvey is again assigned to the charge instead of at Pickrell.

This will be most pleasing to all of the residents of this section of the county, where Rev. McKelvey has been such an active figure.

GRAPES FROM OLD VINE

Mrs. A. D. Asch, who has at her home, "Villa Asch," a grapevine that was planted seventy-five years ago by her forebears, brought to the Journal a fine box of grapes picked from this vine. This grape producer has not ceased bearing in all of the years of its existence and today supplies a wonderful return in the luscious fruit. We wish to express our appreciation to Mrs. Asch for her remembrance.

Young People Wedded Here on Wednesday

Miss Dorothy Salsburg of Near Louisville and Mr. Leonard L. Parkening of Omaha Married.

Wednesday afternoon at the Presbyterian manse occurred the marriage of two members of old time families of Cass county, Miss Dorothy Salsburg of near Louisville and Mr. Leonard L. Parkening of Omaha.

The wedding was very simple, the bride and groom being accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Parkening, the former a brother of the groom and following the wedding they later enjoyed the fall festival before departing for Omaha.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Salsburg of near Louisville, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Gauer, long time residents of the Cedar Creek community. The bride was born and reared in the community near Louisville and is a young lady loved and esteemed by all who have the privilege of her acquaintance.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Parkening, for many years engaged in farming west of this city and who are now making their home in Omaha. The groom was born and reared in this portion of Cass county but is now making his home at Harlingen, Texas, where he is engaged in farming and where they will make their future home.

TOO MUCH SPEED

From Thursday's Daily
This morning at 12:30 there was considerable excitement created in the vicinity of the Heisel mill when a truck load of cattle was overturned near that location. James Newman, of Glenwood, driving a J. C. truck with fourteen head of cattle was en route from the stock yards at South Omaha to his home and as he came from Webster boulevard the speed was so great that he failed to make the turn properly and the truck overturned but was not damaged or the driver injured. The cattle in the truck, however, made their escape and are still at large in the north part of the city to await the arrival of the trucker and assistants for the roundup.

HERE FROM NAVY

Earl Lamberson, popular Plattsmouth young man, who has been engaged for the past several months as a member of the naval force of the United States, is home for a visit with the home folks and many old time friends. Earl is at the training station at San Diego, California, and has a ten day furlough to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lamberson here. Earl likes the navy very much and on his return to the west coast is expecting to be assigned for service on one of the battleships of the Pacific fleet. While at San Diego he had the pleasure of meeting Oliver Taylor, a classmate of the class of 1934 of the local school, now serving on the U. S. S. California.

HERE FROM AVOCA

State Senator Fred L. Carsten of Avoca, with his father, one of the long time residents of that section of the county, were in the city Thursday. Senator Carsten served as one of the judges of the livestock parade and also enjoyed the many fine exhibits of the fall festival. Senator Carsten has been a regular visitor at the fall festival since it was started four years ago and praiseth it as one of the finest boosting propositions for Cass county that is held each year.

Parade of Merchants and Public Wedding Friday

Largest Crowd of Fall Festival Mass Streets for the Afternoon and Night.

Old settlers and homecoming day of the King Korn Carnival saw the greatest crowd of the four days assembled to witness the many fine events that marked the day, culminating at night when 12,000 gathered to witness the public wedding ceremony.

The program of the day opened at 1 o'clock with the finals of the amateur auditions given and in which there were placed in competition the young people who had been winners in the two previous tests. The results of the finals were that Billy Reddie, pianist, was the first place winner; Irene LaHoda, second and the Morris Brothers of Union, third place winners. The consolation winners were Leah Edgerton, Billie Rose Canterbury and Phyllis Redd.

The homecoming program this year was held at the platform at Fifth and Main streets and enjoyed by a very large crowd who were delighted with the program that had been prepared for the occasion.

The welcome address of the afternoon was given by Mayor George Lushinsky, who gave words of praise to the pioneers of the county and state.

Mrs. E. H. Wescott led the audience in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" with Mr. Wescott at the piano.

The Rock Bluffs orchestra, composed of Sherd Graves, Perry Graves and Glen Puls, gave several of the old time numbers with vigor and fire and which added much to the old fashioned atmosphere of the program. Mr. Sherd Graves, who is now 78, showed all of his old time fire in the numbers that he presented.

The address of the afternoon was given by Attorney D. O. Dwyer, who came to Cass county in 1886 and in his remarks recalled many of the old time friends of those days and the pioneer men and women of the territory and state who were still living at that time. Mr. Dwyer recalled his contacts with many of the old residents while teaching over the county at Union and near Ashland where at the latter place he had boarded at the home of the C. S. Wortman family, pioneers there.

Miss Janet Westover gave two very clever readings on the afternoon program that was very much enjoyed by all of the large audience.

Ray Herold and Glen Puls as well as the Rock Bluffs orchestra helped to entertain the large crowd until time for the big parade.

The Parade

The largest parade that has been staged by the merchants of the city was the big feature of the Friday afternoon program and there was hardly a business house of the city that was not represented in the long line that stretched from the Masonic Home to the lower end of Main street as the line of march swung on its way. The floats showed a great deal of originality and the cars that were used also were most beautifully decorated for the occasion. The parade was headed by the mayor and members of the city council and other officials in cars who joined the parade as it formed on west Elm street.

The Peru Training school band led in march near Sixth and Vine streets and led the long array of glittering cars and floats down through the business section. The American Legion drum and bugle corps were also in the parade to head the second section, the boys making a very snappy appearance as they marched along the packed streets.

The "Little German Band," in typical manner added fun to the marching section of the parade as they enlivened the occasion with selections and were joined by a group of the Weeping Water boosters who came over to help enjoy the day with their friends and to return the compliment of the Plattsmouth visit to their fine county fair last week.

Owing to the fact that the parade represented the business houses and institutions there were no prizes given and the public allowed to pick for themselves what they considered the most attractive floats or decorated cars.

With the close of the parade there was a resumption of the program on the platform under the direction of Mr. Patterson and which embraced among other features, that of the husband calling contest and which was participated in by Mrs. Fred Drucecker and Mrs. Will Troop of Nehawka, but while the ladies gave a fine exhibition of calling it failed of results.

Evening Program.

The evening program was opened by the Westfall family of Nebraska City in instrumental numbers that embraced both standard and popular selections that were much enjoyed by all of the large audience.

A real musical treat was afforded in the appearance of Lloyd Lauritsen, of Weeping Water, who gave cornet solos and this young man demonstrated that he is a real artist in every sense of the word.

The Peru Training school band was the finishing part of the night program at the conclusion of the public wedding ceremony. This band of forty-eight pieces was under the direction of Sanford Clements, former Elmwood young man, and was without a doubt one of the best bands that has been heard in this city. The program was one well selected and given with brilliance by the young people, truly a fitting close of the greatest day of the fall festival.

The Wedding

The public wedding arranged for the Friday evening feature of the festival, was one of the rarest beauty and the committee in charge had provided a handsome and dignified setting for the ceremony which was witnessed by the thousands gathered along the street in a deep silence and reverence.

The platform where the ceremony was to take place had been arranged with the beautiful flowers to make a fitting setting for the marriage service and as the bridal party commenced the march from Sixth street to the scene, Mrs. E. H. Wescott sang very sweetly the well known song of love, "I Love You Truly," the accompaniment being played by Mr. Wescott.

The colorful and beautifully arrayed wedding party approached as the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" was played on the organ by Mr. Wescott and which announced the coming of the brides and grooms whose identity had been kept a profound secret.

The first of the bridal party appearing were the charming little ribbon bearers, Peggy Jane Wiles, Betty Ann Thomas, Willa Sylvester, Joan Trout, Ruth Westover, Roslyn Mark, Betty McKissick, Dorothy Jean Turner, Dorothea Mae Duxbury, Helen Hiatt, June Griffin and Elizabeth Ann Wiles.

The tiny ring bearers, Nadine and Emmett Mullen were charming in their part of the service as they approached with the white cushions on which the rings reposed.

Miss Marian Fricke was charming as the flower girl.

Then came the maids of honor, beautifully gowned and carrying arm bouquets, Norma Baumgart and Lavonne Worstall.

The bridesmaids presented a colorful picture of youthful charm in their beautiful costumes and lovely flowers, these being Madeline Wiles, Mildred Cacy, Grace Welsh, Virginia Trively, Mary Solomon and Velma Edwards. These were all classmates and members of the graduating class with the brides, their selection being made without the knowledge of their school associates who were entering into matrimony.

The eyes of all were turned on the brides who entered upon the arm of their respective grooms, Miss Helen Messersmith, 20 of this city and Mr. Lawrence Malmos, 20 of Omaha, and Miss Geraldine Sudduth, 18 and Mr. Cecil Schaal, 24. The brides were gowned in the long flowing gowns of white silk, wearing the short bridal veils and carrying arm bouquets of the bride roses. The grooms both wore dark business suits.

The party reaching the platform were met by Dr. H. G. McClusky, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who was to join their hearts and lives and as the bridal party took their stations, a deep silence fell over the vast audience as the wedding ceremony was commenced. With the conclusion of the impressive service the bridal party were photographed and then hurried to cars which conveyed them to Omaha where they were to enjoy the short honeymoon as the guests of the leading hotels there.

The bridal party are each to receive a large array of presents that have been donated by the merchants of the city to the worthy young people.

One of the chief donors to the ceremony was Henry Jasper, who had contributed the flowers for the beautiful service.

The cars that conveyed the bridal parties to Omaha were provided by the Ruse Motor Co. and Ray Bryant of this city.
