Chosen State Home Economics Champion.

Frances Rehmeier, Weeping Water, has just been chosen 4-H State Home Economics Champion which will entitle her to a trip to Chicago to attend the National 4-H Club Congress the first week in December. This will also entitle her to compete with other state champions in Home Economics for the national $400 scholarship given by Montgomery Ward & Co.

Frances has been enrolled in 4-H clubs since 1929, coming back year after year with renewed efforts to "make the best better." During the seven years she has been enrolled as a 4-H club member she has completed 31 projects, having been a member of clothing, cooking, swine, baby beef, dairy, girls room, poultry, keep-well and rope clubs. Her 4-H Scrap Book contains interesting pictures, newspaper clippings and records of her many prize winning garments, as well as champion poultry, pigs and baby beves.

In her story of 4-H activities, Frances says, "Since I was first enrolled in 4-H clubs in 1929 I have found that each year has been filled with immeasurable benefits such as initiative, responsibility and self confidence as well as financial gain. Through my 4-H clothing awards I have received enough money to pay, except for $2.53, for all of the garments which I have made. I have learned to make my clothes more becoming, to buy better materials, and to be better dressed than if I had purchased my clothes ready made." Nine pages were used to record her winnings in clothing, cooking, girls room, poultry, swine, dairy and baby beef at state and county fairs, and at Ak-Sar-Ben, since she first became an exhibitor in 1929.

All Day Meeting and Field Inspection.

On Tuesday, November 12, an all day meeting, sponsored by the Soil Conservation Service, the State Extension Service and the CCC camp is to be held at the Philpot Hall in Weeping Water. The meeting will be devoted entirely to erosion and conservation problems of the community and nation as a whole. All farmers, land owners and other interested parties are invited to attend and become familiar with the work. The main speakers of the meeting will be: D. L. Gross, state extension service; R. L. VonTrebra, regional director, soil conservation service; and H. Gerald Bobst, project manager, Ralston sub-area.

The meeting is called for 10:00 a. m. A free lunch will be served at noon by Weeping Water business men and entertainment furnished by members of the CCC camp. A tour of the CCC camp and a field trip will be included in the afternoon program.

The CCC camp in co-operation with the landowners is making rapid progress in erosion control in this area. The work is under the direct supervision of the Soil Conservation Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, and all features of the program, recommended by the technical staff are the results of many years of experimentation by this department. The camp personnel is willing to discuss and help work out an erosion control program on any farm in the community. Since each individual farm presents a different problem, no set practice can be followed.

Some of the projects now under construction are the Ezra Neben farm, Murdock; Lester Wagoner farm, Cedar Creek; Otto Mogensen farm, Weeping Water; Paul Swan farm, Union, and the Albert Siemers farm, Otco. The public is invited to visit and inspect any of the projects at any time.

A Guide for Wise Spending.

When a mother feels discouraged over trying to make the food money stretch to include all she feels her family needs, why not consider how helpful a weekly food record is? A budget of course, cannot make more money out of what she already has, but it makes possible a careful study of "leaks," so that more careful planning and wise purchases may enable her to give the family better meals.

Keeping an account may sound forbidding, but it is really very easy, and takes very little time if purchases are recorded soon after they are made. The rules are these:

1. Record all food purchased for one week, continuing the records for at least a month; put the amount of each pound, and its cost, in the right departments shown below:

- (a) Milk, cheese.
- (b) Vegetables, fruits.
- (c) Bread, flour, rice, cereals, macaroni.
- (d) Meat, fish, eggs.
- (e) Fats, sugar and food accessories.

2. At the end of each week, add up the total amount spent for food and find one-sixth of it. Then add the total for each group, and compare with the Guide for Wise Spending, which follows:

- 1. Milk, cheese, about 2/5.
- 2. Vegetables, fruit, about 1/5.
- 3. Bread, cereals, cereal products, about 1/6.
- 4. Eggs, meat, fish, about 1/6.
- 5. Fats, sugar, accessories, about 1/6.

Variations of 10 to 20 cents above or below the "one-sixth" need not be considered seriously. Wider variations, however, are a warning to include in next week's plan more money for milk, and perhaps less for fats and sugars, according to the differences in each particular case.

Even Horses Believe in "Contour Farming."

Even horses are "sold" on contour farming as recommended by the Soil Conservation Service for controlling water erosion. A Wisconsin farmer writes that the horses find working on the contour "easier." It does away with dragging heavy implements up and down hill.

Contour farming also does away with rows of cultivated crops running up and down hill—their open furrows an invitation to the little torrents that are likely to eat big gullies eventually and, in any event, carry off tons of topsoil.

Contour farming leaves furrows nearly level—at right angles to the slope of the land—each furrow a tiny terrace holding rainfall until it is absorbed into the soil, or forcing it to creep away rather than running wild downhill. This Wisconsin farmer finds the idea of working "on the contour" rather odd at first, but you get accustomed to it.

He likes terracing and strip cropping to retard runoff. The terraces, he reports, "aren't as bad as they look." And the strip crops—long, narrow plots of grass or hay sandwiched in between long cultivated fields, all on the contour—have made him "wonder" if he shouldn't have "more permanent pasture" on corn land which always washes badly.

Grain Sorghums.

Farmers in the southern half of Nebraska might well plant ten to fifteen per cent of their corn acreage to early varieties of grain sorghums as a safeguard against dry years. That's the conclusion reached by P. H. Stewart and D. L. Cross, extension agronomists at the Nebraska college of agriculture, after holding meetings and checking yields of ten to fifteen sorghum varieties in 25 out-state co-operative tests. The results, comparable to those of other years in co-operative tests with the college of agriculture, demonstrated that in years of drouth here corn practically fails, the earliest grain sorghum varieties have made yields of from 15 to as high as 30 bushels per acre.

Early Kalo showed up particularly well this year, chiefly because of its earliness. Mid-season and late varieties in the southern half of the state have the most part failed to mature where to the north and east they have matured in many cases.

The Early Kalo matures in approximately 90 days while Kalo takes from 10 to 15 days longer. The Greeley variety also matures in 90 to 95 days.

Hegari, planted to large acreages last spring when other seeds were scarce, has not proven satisfactory due to its late maturity. Few, if any, fields produced mature grain. This variety produces a very leafy and palatable stalk, however, and should make good dry roughage, the agronomists say. Most growers have had difficulty though in harvesting Hegari because the stalk is apparently very tough near the base.

Cass County Committee on Farm Debt Problems.

"New life is being instilled into the government's efforts to help end the tragic story of farm foreclosure," Mr. L. R. Leonard, field man for the regional Farm Debt Adjustment office at Lincoln, Nebraska, said during his recent visit to Cass county.

This work has been transferred from the Farm Credit Administration, according to Mr. Leonard. Since 1933, groups of unselfish citizens have been working without pay in their own counties all over the nation in an effort to bring debtor and creditor together in a friendly atmosphere where they may see each others problems and work out a voluntary agreement benefiting both parties.

A part, at least, of the travel and other expenses incurred by these committees is now to be met out of the funds recently set aside from the Works Appropriation, for debt cancellation throughout the nation.

The committee for Cass county is composed of the following: Henry Meierjurgan, Murdock; E. H. Spangler, Plattsmouth and J. W. Mendenhall, Weeping Water. "Any depressed farm debtor or any creditor who desires help in reaching a satisfactory adjustment of mortgages or other debts is invited to call on any member of this committee," Mr. Leonard said.

Local and district rehabilitation supervisors will be responsible for assisting these county committees in working out satisfactory adjustments, and field men from the regional debt conciliation office, will, in turn, give advice and assistance both to the committees and to the rehabilitation supervisors.

ROYALISTS IN THE SADDLE

Athens.—Monarchists began actual preparations for the return of former King George to the throne of Greece. Official denials were made of reports of revolts either in Greece proper or on the island of Crete. The reports were laid to "false interpretation" of troop movements incident to the coming plebiscite.

Business Changes Hands.

The filling station and repair shop which Sterling Amick has been conducting for the past several years has been disposed of to Albert Tuck who has been conducting a business two blocks east and down near the railroad tracks. He will henceforth conduct the business at the location of Mr. Amick, who is to take over the job of postmaster the first of November.

Mows Down the Fence.

While Miss Laverne Gibson who is the teacher at the Laurel Hill school a few miles west of Weeping Water was going to her school Tuesday morning, pursuing the even tenor of her way and Miss Marjory Ruge and a small child were also coming towards Weeping Water, they endeavored to pass each other a short distance east of Mr. Wiles home the car of Miss Ruge became uncontrollable and vaulted the roadway, crossing the ditch by the side of the roadway and striking the fence of Mr. Wiles clipping off a number of posts and wrecking the fence. Neither car was damaged much nor the occupants of the cars injured, altho they were considerably frightened. The greatest damage was to the fence and Art Wiles had to make the repairs thereon.

Men's Brotherhood Meets.

On last Monday evening at the parlors of the Congregational church was gathered the Men's Brotherhood of that church where they listened to good music and a most interesting program, an outstanding feature of which was an address by Rev. M. G. Carter, the new pastor of the Methodist church. There was also many other interesting features on the program and which included the election of officers for the coming term, as follows: J. J. Meier, president; L. N. Behrens, secretary and Leslie J. Wiles, treasurer. The various committees will be announced at the next meeting.

Four Enjoyed Birthday.

The celebrating of the passing of the anniversary of the birth of Simon Rehmeier at his home and which was also celebrated three of his friends was held last Sunday when they all gathered to the number of about seventy at the Rehmeier home in Alvo. They enjoyed the day very nicely, a number of them in the playing of cards with plenty of music and song and games for the children, as there were many there. Many relatives were present from a distance and as well many friends both from away from Alvo and at home. Those there from Weeping Water were Fred Rehmeier and family, Fred being a brother and Uncle G. Rehmeier, father of Simon, Chris Rasmussen and wife and Henry Mogensen.

Purchases Home Here.

Dr. L. N. Kunkel who has been renting since coming to Weeping Water thought it would be much better to own his own home and so recently purchased the property which has been occupied by Paul Ward and will make some alterations. Mr. Ward and family will have to find another place to live, which may be somewhat of a problem.

Obituary.

William Caddy was born May 16, 1876 at Kenton Magna, Dorchester, England and passed away at the Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln, October 21, 1935, at the age of 58 years, five months and five days.

When he was five years old, he came to America with his parents, settling near Sparland, Illinois, where the family lived for about ten years. In 1882 they moved to Nebraska, living one year near Palmyra and later locating near Eagle where he has since been a resident except for a short time spent on a homestead near Butte, Nebraska.

He was united in marriage to Rosa M. Wright, September 16, 1892. To this union four children were born, Claude W. and Mrs. Vera Smith, who preceded him in death and Ivan H. and Mrs. Florence Trumble.

He was baptised in the Church of England and later in life attended the Methodist church.

For many years he was employed by the board of education and through his work made the acquaintance of many of the young people of the community as well as his friends among the older residents.

Two years ago his failing health made it necessary for him to retire from work. During the months which followed, his health gradually failed and for the past six weeks he had been confined to his bed.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Ivan, a daughter, Mrs. Florence Trumble, six grandchildren, a brother, Harry G. Caddy, two sisters, Mrs. Martha Frohlich of Eagle, and Mrs. Ella Kamm of Harrison, Arkansas.

Funeral services were held at the Eagle Methodist church Thursday afternoon with Rev. D. J. Schuylerman, assisted by Rev. Pangeler, in charge. Burial was at the Eagle cemetery.
