

Elmwood News

Louis Bornemeier and Roland Schlittmeier were over to Omaha last Thursday afternoon, both going to look after business matters in their line.

A car from out of town was endeavoring to back out of a parking place on the west side of Main street and came back with such force that the car crossed the street and over the curb to wreck the barber pool of Charles west.

Make Good Will Trip.

Postmaster of the National House of Representatives Louis F. Langhorst and Congressman Henry C. Luckey of the First Nebraska district were over to Nebraska City last Monday where they were making a good will visit and on Wednesday they made a similar visit in Plattsmouth, meeting with the many people of all political beliefs and showing that the present administration has wonderfully restored confidence and re-established business on a more substantial basis.

These two gentlemen are also to attend the banquet at Lincoln Friday evening in appreciation of the work of Mr. Lucky in congress.

A Bit of Reckless Driving.

We read of careless and reckless driving of automobiles, and on last Wednesday Elmwood citizens were given an example of this. A student of the Elmwood high school who resides on the farm east of Wabash and drives to school here, following the closing of school last Tuesday had secured his car and was going home, stopping at the Trunkenholz station for some fuel and was driving out of the station to proceed home, when a bar bearing a Lancaster county license, 2-406 came hopping up Main street at a clip exceeding 40 miles an hour and when over a hundred feet away slammed on the brakes, grinding the gravel under the wheels and weaving about when both sides of the street was lined with cars and was not able to stop until it hit the car of the school boy.

In this instance the impact was but slight, for we can say that the driver of the Lincoln car was an excellent one and did his best and stopped the car with but slight damage, but people's hair stood on end. L. F. Langhorst and the writer were sitting in the car of the former directly in the path of the vaulting, swerving crushing bundle of steel and for a few seconds it looked like an accounting would be had, but the car came to a stop without any fatalities.

The City of Elmwood has an ordinance forbidding the operation of motor vehicles on their Main street more than fifteen miles an hour, but this man without any regard for the welfare of others was scooting through the crowded Main street endangering the lives and property of the people, at a fast clip. Such people, whether they are good drivers or not, should be refused a license to operate an automobile until they have learned to respect the rights of others.

The Girls Were Winners.

The young married people class of the Christian Bible school have been having a contest for new members as well as for stimulating more interest in the work and after noses were counted it was found the ladies of the class had won over the gents and the latter have to sponsor a party for all. The gathering was held at the parlors of the Christian church last Tuesday evening when the men served their worthy spouses with a supper and a general good time.

The Maxwell House.

No not coffee, but the airplane which three young men of Elmwood made last summer but which came to grief when they had a try out. The company composed of Virgil Woods, George Blessing, Jr., and Russell Miller are now at the work of getting the ship in shape again for the coming spring when they will give it another trial. The young men are true Americans and cannot be discouraged and with a spirit that wins over all obstacles they are at it again and we are sure they will succeed.

Fire Department Meets.

Last Monday evening was the regular meeting of the Elmwood fire department and after they had looked after the business calling them together they indulged in a social time and had a bridge party where they enjoyed the evening until late.

In the summary of the games which were played it was ascertained the winners of high score were L. J. Hayes and Guy Clements.

The fire boys who are a progressive set, also have in the field a committee of three consisting of E. C. Parish, Milo Frisbie and Emmett Cook to look after the organization of a county fire fighting league and to hold a convention in Elmwood at an early date. The committee visited the various towns in the county where there are organized fire fighting companies and reported that all the places visited were agreeable but that the matter had to be ratified and delegates elected to attend the convention, which will take some time to accomplish.

Aged Pioneer Receives Injury

Jacob Fleischman, 81 years of age and a pioneer of Nebraska and Cass county, having resided near Elmwood for more than half a century, sustained a fall last Friday which caused a great injury to his hip bone, fracturing the same. He was attended and given first aid, after which he was taken to the Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln for care and treatment. His advanced years and rather infirm health is making it difficult for him to battle the effect of the injury.

Showing Wonderful Sales.

Mrs. Bess Streeter Aldrich, authoress, was over to Omaha early this week autographing books for the trade featuring her last book, "Come On Spring Forever," which is now on sale and she has a number of the books in the stores in Elmwood autographed and which are being sold very rapidly.

A week ago the sale of new books placed Mrs. Aldrich's new book as 15th in number of sales, while this week she has gained until she is ranked as 6th which is a very flattering gain and one which tells the very popular place in the public estimation in which her new book is held. Say, people, did you know that we have here in Cass county and at Elmwood an authoress who has recently completed her eighth book and all of which have met with a wonderful reception by the reading public. Elmwood, Cass county and all of Nebraska should be proud of this wonderful authoress and the eight wonderful books depicting Nebraska life which she by long and hard work has produced for you to read and enjoy.

Will Steam Heat Building.

The committee having in hand the heating proposition of the Elmwood Community building have at last decided upon the placing of a steam heating plant in the building and have the matter well in hand. The city of Elmwood is to be congratulated in having as a good a building as the one now in use and as well a citizenry who have the enterprise to keep the building in the best condition.

Want Picture Show.

Speaking with a number of the people of Elmwood, the writer was told that there is a demand for a moving picture show in town. With a good place to meet and a building especially adapted to this kind of entertainment there should be found someone who would engage in this entertainment as a lucrative business. Every week hundreds of people spend hundreds of dollars for picture shows which goes to other towns instead of Elmwood. Why not keep this money at home?

Entertained at Hallowe'en.

Misses Golda and Erma Kunts, members of the E. L. C. E. of the Evangelical church of Elmwood entertained the E. L. C. E. members at their home last Thursday, Hallowe'en when they all enjoyed a very fine time with all the games which make the celebration of this event so popular and say they had some eats as well and a good time for there will be no Hallowe'en again until next year.

SECURES CATTLE

Ray Price, of Nebraska City, owner of the truck wrecked near this city Tuesday morning was a busy man Tuesday afternoon in rounding up the load of cattle that had escaped from the truck when overturned. Mr. Price had been driving a truck load of cattle that preceded that driven by Oney Made and in which August Herzog was riding, he being unaware until sometime later that his second truck had been wrecked. On his return from Omaha he secured the scattered cattle that had roamed into nearby fields and loaded them for market, taking them on into Omaha late Tuesday.

Win Many Ribbons at Ak-Sar-Ben.

With the stiffest competition Ak-Sar-Ben has seen for several years, Cass county 4-H club members brought home the second largest number of ribbons of any county exhibiting. Seward county won the largest number of ribbons, Cass county the second and Fremont county, Iowa, the third largest. Cass county showed 11 beavers, 9 fat barrows and 12 head of lambs. In the sale ring, they averaged $13.00 per hundred on the beaves, $9.60 on the hogs and 19c per pound on the lambs. The calf owned by Warren Rikil, of Murdock, which was grand champion of the Cass county fair, placed fifth at Ak-Sar-Ben and brought $15.25 per 100 in the sale.

One of the enjoyable events of the week was a special tour provided for the 4-H boys and girls. D. D. Waincott conducted the tour, leaving the Ak-Sar-Ben, with 76 youngsters in tow, at 9:30 in the morning and going to the Swift & Co. packing plant for a tour of inspection. At noon they enjoyed a dinner on the tenth floor of the Livestock Exchange building as guests of the Exchange. Following the dinner, a special demonstration on meat cutting was given by Max Cullen of the National Meat and Livestock Board. Chartered buses then took them to the Orpheum theatre where they enjoyed the afternoon performance, following which they were conducted to the 17th floor of the Woodman of the World building, where they were dinner guests of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce. A special program concluded the dinner.

Another highlight of the week was the banquet, attended by three or four hundred 4-H club youngsters, agricultural agents and other guests, given by the Wellman & Sons Commission company. Cars, with special police escort, took the guests to and from the Ak-Sar-Ben grounds.

Health and Economy.

Do you try to save the minerals when you cook vegetables? As much as 50 per cent of the health protecting factors may be dissolved in the cooking water, and if the water is not used they are lost. This means only half the health protection that might be provided, and a waste of half the money spent for vegetables. To prevent this:

1. Cook vegetables in only a small amount of water and use the water for soups or gravies. (Some people like to drink this water—a commendable practice.)
2. Leave vegetables in large pieces when cooking so that less of the minerals will be dissolved.

Farm Windbreaks.

Some 2,000 Nebraska farmers have helped Earl G. Maxwell, extension forester at the Nebraska College of Agriculture, determine farm windbreak plantings can be made successful. Lack of adequate protection, poor spacing and failure to utilize water conservation measures have been largely responsible for most of the failures to establish successful windbreaks, the farmers replied to a questionnaire sent them through the offices of agricultural agents. All have planted Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants distributed by the Agricultural Extension Service.

"The results clearly show that too many evergreens are lost by lack of protection from the hot sun and winds during the first summer," Maxwell declared in summing up the replies. "Planting in the nursery row for two years before transplanting to the windbreak is an advisable practice. Shade and protection for the trees can be had by tacking burlap strips on stakes on the south side of the trees."

Many windbreaks have not been too successful, the survey showed, because the trees have been planted too close together. Wider spacing, 12 to 20 feet between rows, and a moderate spacing of trees in the rows depending upon the species will help in growing the trees. Clean cultivation to conserve moisture and keep weeds out of the planting was also brought out as important factors in establishing farm windbreaks.

Forester Maxwell says Nebraska farmers are taking much better care of their Clarke-McNary seedling this year than ever before and are anxious to learn more about recommended growing practices. He estimates that 75 per cent of the million trees planted on farms throughout the state last spring have survived the summer and will go into the winter in good shape.

What About Adults?

No one questions the importance of good food habits for children, but what about adults? All too often they feel there is little necessity for having regular meals, and when there are no children in the family, well-planned ones seem entirely too much work.

The right or wrong food makes as much difference in the pep and energy of adults as of children. The "maintenance" of health for adults requires essentially the same food elements as the "building" of health during childhood. No better plan for the meals of a family, regardless of its make-up, can be found than that of using generously the two groups of foods; milk and its products, and fruits and vegetables.

If meals are planned around these foods, other articles can be chosen largely according to personal taste and the amount of food allowance.

Rabbit Repellents.

The Bureau of Biological Survey reports success with the salt-strychnine bait to kill rabbits which are damaging young trees, etc. The formula is one ounce of powdered strychnine alkaloid, three pounds of table salt and one pound of corn meal. These three dry ingredients are thoroughly mixed. For exposure of this preparation cut a 2 x 4 in 4 inch lengths and in one side bore a 2 inch hole 1/2 inch deep. Fill the holes with the mixture and place the blocks about every two rods along the rabbits' regular trails. These blocks should be exposed where they will not be accessible to stock.

This poisoned bait does not, according to the bureau, give spectacular kills, but if the blocks are kept filled with the poison mixture they are continually on the job and when the material is taken it removes many rabbits from an area.

A number of other repellents, which do not kill the rabbits but keep them away from the trees, such as sulphated linseed oil, Resin-fish Oil-Copper Soap may be used with good success. These formulas may be obtained at the Farm Bureau office upon request.

Sweet Potatoes.

Because sweet potatoes are plentiful this fall, they will be inexpensive during the coming winter. The lower cost will be welcomed by families who like them, and those who have not used them will be interested in knowing what health protection they can get from this vegetable.

Sweet potatoes are higher in energy than white potatoes and the deep yellow varieties are very rich in vitamin A, a factor almost lacking in white potatoes. Since sweet potatoes contain less of the blood-building iron, however, green leafy vegetables or other iron-rich foods should be served with them to compensate for this deficiency.

The sweetness is likely to cause one to tire of them if used too frequently, but when included in the menu once or twice a week in place of potatoes, they give variety in both flavor and health-protective qualities.
