Sister Dies in West

Miss Rose Sporer was born seventy-one years ago at Schoolcraft, Wisconsin, and with her parents came to the west when she was a young woman and her brother, William Sporer, was a young man, in the year 1870. The family settled some ten miles west of Murray, residing there for two years, after which they took a homestead on the present site of York, Nebraska. They returned to the vicinity of Murray in 1875, however, and resided in Murray and Plattsmouth for two years. During this time, Miss Sporer was married and went to Kansas City to make her home, residing there for some time as well as at other points in the south. In 1919, in company with her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McCulloch, she moved to Los Angeles, where she has since made her home. Her name after marriage was Mrs. Wark.

During the past summer, the brother, Mr. Sporer, made a trip to the west and visited with the sisters at their home there, having a most enjoyable visit.

After a brief illness, death came to Mrs. Wark on October 27. The funeral was held on October 29, with interment in Angeles Abbey mausoleum.

Mrs. Wark had lived a happy and useful life and viewed the latter end of her earthly days in the manner expressed by Alfred Tennyson, the poet in the famous verses which he wrote and which are well known to many. She has gone to her reward, honored and revered for the good works she did during the more than three score and ten years she lived on this old world of trouble and tribulations.

Mr. Perry, after a few days with the daughter returned home to look after the farm work, but Mrs. Perry remained during her convalescence, at the home of friends in Lincoln.

Last Friday Mr. Perry arrived in Lincoln to drive the wife and daughter home and being so near, took occasion to come on to Murray for a short visit with his mother and other relatives. Miss Perry expects to be able to resume her teaching in a short time which is good news to her many friends in this locality.

Armistice Day Speeches.

Armistice day we heard over our radios great speeches by our president, our leaders of American Legion and our ministers, all asking that we make America safe for Americans, that we will in no way engage in another war. Peace was emphasized in every talk, peace with ourselves and all mankind. Then this same day we heard the conversation between Capt. Anderson, miles high in the sky attempting to harness the cosmic rays and captain of a clipper off the Atlantic coast. Also a conversation between Capt. Anderson and a London news editor, and the premier of France asking for peace in his troubled Europe, all in one day. What can come more wonderful than radio?

Production Credit Association.

If one doubts the service or that the farmers are not availing themselves of the service of the Production Credit Association, a setup of the government for cheaper money to finance farmers they should look in the office in the Exchange building in Omaha, managed by a Murray man, Everett Spangler. ### CALLS LABOR PEACE PARTY

Stafford, Eng.—Sir Stafford Cripps, former solicitor general, said in a political speech that "when I was in America everyone with whom I discussed the political situation of this country, from the president down, asked me what chance there was for a labor government after the next election."

"I asked why," Sir Stafford continued. "They said 'because in our view that is the only hope for world peace.'" Cripps is a labor party leader.

Washington.—President Roosevelt talked with Sir Stafford Cripps, former labor solicitor general of Great Britain, but there was no confirmation at the white house that he had told the Britisher that world peace rested in election of a labor government in England.

TURKEY TO PRESIDENT

Salt Lake City.—Housed in a crate built in likeness of the white house, a giant turkey gobbler was en route by air to grace the Thanksgiving table of President Roosevelt. The big bird was placed aboard a passenger plane at Salt Lake airport by Governor Blood.

JUDGE SEES A CONSPIRACY

London.—Justice Akinson of the King's bench division, delivering judgment in the long fought Chrysler shares case, said he was satisfied that in November and December, 1927, there was an actionable conspiracy to obtain Chrysler shares at a price lower than their value. He did not, however, complete the deliverance of judgment in the suit brought against Walter P. Chrysler, American automobile magnate, and certain associates, adjourning court for the day with his judgment still unfinished.
