Appeal to Help Reduce Number of Crows in State

Nebraska Game Commission Joining Other States in War on This Species of Bird Life.

According to a report received by the Journal, crows are on the increase in all parts of the country, and in recent investigations have proved decidedly injurious to our game, poultry and to farm crops. A recent bulletin from "More Game Birds in America, Inc." shows that the crow is the worst natural enemy of the ducks on the breeding grounds.

The report in part is as follows: "Seeking to ascertain the causes of duck mortality in the vast breeding grounds of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, the Dakotas and Minnesota, questionnaires were distributed thru state and Canadian game officials and organizations to farmers, hunters, trappers, game wardens and other volunteer investigators. Of an even 1000 cases of duck destruction by predators reported by 551 of the observers, 366 cases were blamed on Jim Crow."

"Hard-pressed for food early in the spring, crows are particularly destructive to duck eggs. Destruction of eggs and ducklings affects the early breeding species of ducks most severely, since they begin to nest at a time when vegetation is in early growth and too thin to conceal their nests."

"So persistent have crows become in their search for duck eggs that efforts of farmers to protect duck nests during the mowing season have betrayed nesting sites to the wily black birds. In many places it has been found that protective vegetation left uncut around nests in mowed fields forms conspicuous marks, easily detected by crows and other natural enemies, which, in most cases, destroy the eggs the farmers endeavor to save, the report reveals."

The Nebraska Game, Forestation & Parks Commission is recommending a general clean up of crows in Nebraska, and is asking the assistance of all parties interested in the protection and increase of game. Our goal is to decrease the crow population by 1,000,000 birds.

Experience has taught that the best place to kill crows is at their roosting place when they come in to roost.

Various methods can be used, but the method used will depend somewhat on the location and extent of the roost. On the larger roosts, where it is possible to secure the assistance of an aeroplane, a great many crows can be killed with guns. The plane flying low over the roosting place, scaring the crows until they are afraid to leave the protection of the trees.

Bombs placed in trees where they roost and exploded after the crows have gone to roost has proven successful in many cases, but care must be used. In all methods used, permission should be secured from the land owner. Shooting from a blind near roosts, using crows, or a mounted owl as decoys, will afford sport and account for many crows.

Crows may be trapped in a wire trap built from chicken wire and old lumber, in which is placed the carcass of a dead animal, or part thereof, for bait.

Blue prints giving size and dimensions of material to be used will be furnished free on application to the State Game Commission office.

Get in touch with your local deputy conservation officer for assistance in organizing your crow eradication program.

Any suggestions as to methods used in getting rid of crows will be appreciated.

Almira McNurlin was born in Sacramento, Illinois, May 24, 1859. She passed away January 18, 1936, aged 76 years, 8 months and 6 days. She came with her parents to Nebraska when she was eight years old, settling at Mount Pleasant, Ia., where she grew to womanhood. She was united in marriage to M. B. Howard on January 1, 1880. To this union four children were born, all of whom survive. They are Watson, of Greenwood; Earl, of Long Beach, Calif.; Ben, of Greenwood, and Edith, of Emerald, Neb.

They moved to Greenwood in 1882, having resided here 54 years. Her husband preceded her in death 46 years ago. With unselfish and tireless efforts she maintained her home and reared her family. All through these years, she led a consistent Christian life and through prayer and faith she accomplished the tasks that were hers to perform, always patient. She found her greatest pleasure in thoughtfulness and doing things for others.

She was converted and joined the Methodist church at the age of 14 years and remained an active member until her death. She was a member of the O. E. S. chapter No. 303, the Rebekah lodge No. 246 and the Royal Neighbors. Besides the family, she is survived by one brother, T. A.
