PROTEST FROM DEMOCRATS

Democrats buzzed with criticism of the state board of educational lands and funds as a result of its appointment of Van L. Taylor as old age assistance supervisor under the new social security program.

Taylor was bus supervisor for the Nebraska railway commission prior to 1935 and democrats insist he was a republican. His salary as old age assistance supervisor was fixed at $140 a month.

Leo Swanson, state land commissioner and secretary of the board, said Taylor was elected unanimously—Governor Cochran, Secretary of State Harry Swanson, Attorney General Wright and the land commissioner all voting for him. State Treasurer George E. Hall, the other member of the board, was absent. All are democrats except Leo Swanson.

"Boy, it's a prairie fire," Secretary of State Swanson said. He said he did not know who Taylor was when he voted for him and said he received many telephone calls from democrats protesting the appointment.

"One apple won't spoil the barrel," Leo Swanson, the only republican member of the board, said, grinning.

Omaha Health Department Gets Some Blame

Criticized by Medical Society for the Handling of Epidemic of Scarlet Fever in Metropolis

The Omaha-Douglas County Medical society, in a public statement voiced criticism of the manner in which the city health department handled recent spread of scarlet fever in the metropolis and requested city commissioners to "organize and staff the health department with a personnel to co-operate with physicians of the community." More than 600 cases of scarlet fever were reported during December.

Criticism voiced in the medical society's statement, issued over the signature of Doctor Herman Jahr, secretary, was directed at Dr. Millard Langfeld, public health director.

Two weeks ago, Doctor Langfeld, in an appearance before the council board of the society, suggested that many of the cases described as scarlet fever might really be duke's disease, a form of German measles. The council referred the matter to its preventive medicine committee, which in turn called the problem to the attention of the Nebraska pediatric society, a group of child specialists within the medical society.

The public statement said "the pediatric society was of the unanimous opinion that the disease which has been of unusual prevalence during the past two months is scarlet fever."

The statement continued: "Calling the epidemic duke's disease, scarlatina or German measles does not help in its control, but rather adds confusion to both physicians and public and creates a tendency toward lax quarantine."

"City health department through its director was entirely unjustified in announcing that the disease in many cases is not scarlet fever. Such methods of publicity tend to undermine the confidence of the family in its physician and creates antagonism in the physician toward the health authorities. The situation furthermore endangers the health of the community," the statement read.

JIMMY DALE WINS PAROLE

Omaha.—Jimmy Dale's ambition to become a master of English literature won him a parole in federal court. Jimmy is an honor student in the extension department of University of Nebraska. He is studying English literature while finishing a three year term in Nebraska penitentiary for robbing a lumber yard at Paxton. On the same robbery expedition he entered the post office at Bushnell.

Judge Donohoe placed him on probation for three years. A $100 fine assessed by the court was placed on execution, which means it won't be held against Jimmy if he finds it impossible to pay.

Perry Williford, former Omaha bellhop, and Emil Draback were sent to a government narcotics farm for treatment for a year and a day. William Joseph Cosgrove, who confessed to stealing some WPA checks, was paroled for three years. Oren Sexson, who admitted selling lottery tickets, was paroled for two years. Steve Novasel was given six months for operating a still.

And here is a picture of the modern auction warehouse of today where the same type of leaf tobacco is sold on the open market to the highest bidder.

There is no substitute for mild, ripe tobacco to make a good cigarette—and there never will be ...and that is the kind we buy for Chesterfield Cigarettes.

In the tobacco buying season Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company buyers will be found at 75 markets where the Bright type of tobacco is sold, and 46 markets where Burley and other types of tobacco are sold.

All these tobacco men are trained in the tobacco business, and are schooled in the Liggett & Myers tradition that only mild, ripe tobacco is good enough for Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Redrafter Farm Bill Favored by Congress Chiefs

"Everybody Happy," Says Secretary of Agriculture Wallace of New Agricultural Program.

A new stop gap farm bill, described as retaining the principle of individual subsidies for soil conservation as a stepping stone to a permanent federal-state co-operative plan, emerged from another round of fast moving congressional developments.

While President Roosevelt was telling his press conference at Washington, his ultimate goal was to make agriculture "as productive as it was 100 years ago," the all-democratic senate agriculture subcommittee, which Thursday rebelled against the original Jones-Bankhead bill, unanimously agreed on a redraft prepared overnight at the agriculture department.

Its details were withheld by Chairman Smith (d., S. C.) until after its presentation Saturday to the full committee. Senator Bankhead (d., Ala.), whose original draft Smith opposed vigorously on constitutional grounds, told newsmen: "It is satisfactory to me. Draw your own conclusions."

Agrees on Modification. Chairman Jones (d., Tex.) of the house agriculture committee, after going over the redraft with Smith, said: "The modifications suggested in the main, in my personal judgment, would be helpful." The house committee also will consider the new draft Saturday.

While Bankhead insisted the changes were minor, other than the major addition providing that after two years grants would be made only to states co-operating in a permanent farm plan yet to be worked out, Smith commented: "Wait till you see the revision."

Secretary Wallace, who appeared before both senate and house groups, merely said: "Everybody's happy." The committee actively was accompanied by these other developments on the farm question:

BABY FREEZES IN ITS CRIB

Milwaukee. — Raymond Russell Harling, two months old son of a WPA worker, froze to death in his crib because there was no coal to heat the house. Earl Harling, rushed into a police station, his nose frost bitten, and shouted that his baby was stiff in his bed. Detectives dashed to the house and took the infant to an emergency hospital but it was pronounced dead on arrival.

District Attorney Zabel said he would investigate after hearing Harling's story that he had run out of coal a week ago and the relief department refused to give him more because he was a WPA worker earning $60 a month.

Potato Control Stranded. The house, without a dissenting vote, declined to appropriate funds to enforce the potato control act.

The house passed the deficiency appropriation bill with an amendment carrying $295,185,000 to pay farmers a "moral obligation" for carrying out acreage reduction contracts entered into prior to the supreme court decision invalidating the AAA.

Senator Smith said southern senators had agreed to draft legislation calling for systematic feeding of government-controlled cotton into trade channels, with proceeds in excess of the 12 cent loans and clearing charges going to producers.

The agriculture committee of the chamber of commerce of the United States, met with farm organization leaders, but made no recommendations. The committee will report to chamber directors next week.

RADIO CONTROVERSY FADES

Washington. — Controversy over the broadcasting of Governor Talmadge's address to a conference of anti-new deal "Jeffersonian democrats" at Mason, Ga., next Wednesday was at least partially ended when officials of the Columbia Broadcasting company agreed to broadcast Talmadge's speech without charge over a nationwide hookup.

Involved in the controversy was an attempt by Morris A. Bealle, publisher of a magazine to make arrangements for Talmadge's speech to be "piped" to Mexico by telephone broadcast from Macon. The Georgia governor previously had failed to get radio time on United States networks.

A permit from the federal communication commission was necessary to send the speech across the Mexican border and Bealle, believing the communications commission intended to pigeon-hole his application, prepared to petition the District of Columbia supreme court for a writ of mandamus this week.
