Assessor Returns Over State Show Interesting Facts

Eight Counties Have No Motion Picture Theatres—More Diamonds in Lancaster County.

Altho Nebraska's one time 3 billion dollars worth of tangible property, as listed by assessors, has dwindled to $2,034,403,292, the mule shows up on State Tax Commissioner Smith's reports as an army consisting of 53,839, with an assessed valuation of $3,282,255, an average of $60.96 a head, as compared with an average of $43.61 in 1933.

It is nip and tuck between Gage and Otoe county in mules. Otoe, being nearer Missouri, home of the mule, leads with 2,395 head, worth to the assessor $72.30 each. Gage has 2,230, averaging $65.15. Lancaster county is third with 1,878 head averaging $61.87.

Hogs, cattle and horses are classified with dogs in the official records. The assessors found 883,009 hogs in the state and valued them at $7,353,969, or an average of $8.55 each, and got away with it except when the chops are sold over the counter. Cuming leads in number with 34,369 hogs, assessed at $277,305, average $8, but Burt leads in value with 28,055 head assessed at $285,940 or $10.19 each. Grant county does not care much for raising its own hogs. It had for taxation only 240 head, the lowest in the state, assessed at $6.50 each.

Dogs no longer appear on the state records in number. They are turned in in bulk with a valuation from each county. Lancaster leading with $55,435, while Douglas harbors only $20,590 worth. All the dogs in the state are worth $1,275,400, not according to their owners' ideas but the assessor's. Gage county appears long on dogs with $36,255 estimated value.

More Horses in Custer. Custer county, which is four times as large as the ordinary county but much smaller than Cherry county, leads with 19,177 horses assessed at $597,867 or $31.15 a head. Cherry has 16,450 head valued at $513,545 or $31.21 a head. Total number of horses assessed in the state is 562,851, total value $21,701,550 or $38.53 a head, but when purchasers go out to buy a team they pay from $100 to $200 a head for horses.

Cherry county, about the size of the state of Delaware, leads in cattle with 210,262 head, valued by assessors at $4,904,070, or $23.32 a head. The total number of cattle in the state was 2,488,476, assessed at $58,182,223, an average of $23.38 a head. The number was less than at any time since 1933 but the average value per head was only $17.34 in that year.

Goods and merchandise on hand in the state totals $37,562,668. Douglas county leads with $10,916,415, Lancaster county second with $4,181,150 and Thomas county at the tail end with $285 worth of merchandise assessed. Douglas has office and store fixtures and postoffice equipment assessed at $1,364,070 while Lancaster has $814,945.

Out of a total of $1,100,605 assessed valuation of typesetting machines, Lancaster county leads with a valuation of $304,339. Douglas has $275,070. Every county in the state has "typesetting machines, etc."

No Movies in 8 Counties. Eight counties have no moving picture or theater equipment. They are all grazing counties. The total in the state is $355,971 valuation. Douglas leads with $138,200, Lincoln county second with $14,275, Lancaster with $5,990.

Banner county people displayed only $15 worth of jewelry and diamonds. Lancaster county people let the assessor list them for $208,855, which tops the list. Douglas county people do not brag much about diamonds when the assessor comes. He found only $136,405 worth of jewelry and diamonds in the entire county.

Arthur county people depend mostly on sun time. They reported only seven watches and clocks. Douglas county people have 6,700 watches and clocks to look at when they want to know whether it is time to go out for refreshments or for other purposes. Lancaster people get along with 5,315, valued at $69,280. Douglas time pieces are listed at only $33,995. There are 64,714 time pieces in the state, if no one boosted or concealed the true number, valued at $446,073.

Inflated or ordinary dollars—either kind will still buy most if expended in your home community, where a part is retained to help meet the tax burden and other community obligations.

It is now more than a week since the water in the reservoir froze and sprung the tank, as well as shutting off the water supply to the mains and work has been under way to repair the damage and thaw out the frozen water supply. The coming of milder weather aided greatly and water was again flowing through the mains the fore part of the week.

Entertained Visitors Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hansel, residing north of Union, entertained Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Rihn and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pearsley at their home last Sunday. Due to the bad roads, the guests walked up the railroad track to reach the Hansel home, and although it is a considerable distance, the weather was such that they enjoyed getting out of doors, after being confined so closely to the home fireside during the past month of sub-zero weather.

Return to Home in West

John Carper and wife have returned to their home in Denver after a visit of some two months in this locality, during which time they were guests at the home of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ruhman.

"Kiddies" Had a Grand Time

Like a crowd of school children after a summer shower, a number of the business men of Union got out on the street the first of the week when the snow really began to thaw and run down the street in rivulets, and spent a most enjoyable mid-day half hour playing in the slush and water, damming the water up and then letting the dams go out so the current would sweep all the remaining slush down the hill with it.

Renewing Efforts Twin-Fold

During the prolonged cold weather, when there was no school and very little traffic, with farmers shut off from mail service and unable to get far from their home firesides, services at the Methodist church and Bible school were dispensed with for a time. Now, with the return of better weather and the re-opening of the roads, a redoubled effort will be made to regain interest and attendance at both church services and the weekly Bible school sessions, we are advised by Lee Farris, who is one of the very earnest church and Bible school workers.

Promoting Picture Show

Elton Legge, Frank Lelli and Bob Spanley, of Council Bluffs, were here Monday making arrangements for the opening of a picture show here, to be operated one night a week. They have leased the Modern Woodmen hall for this purpose and will give their first show on Saturday night of this coming week.

To Build New Cafe Here

John Fitzpatrick, the restaurant man, has purchased a lot just west of the Morris grocery store and begun the excavation of a basement thereon. He expects to erect a cafe building there, 22 feet in width by 50 feet in depth, rushing the work forward to completion as rapidly as the weather will permit. This will give him ample room in which to install one of the finest cafes in this part of the state.

Mr. Fitzpatrick has faith in Union as a business location and is demonstrating it by the erection of this new building to house his business. We are sure he will succeed, as he well deserves to.

The new building will be constructed of wood, fashioned along modern lines and add to the appearance of the street and town in general, as well as provide the eating public with the appointments of a splendid restaurant.

This transfer which will be consummated in a few days, is occasioned, we are told, by the company's contemplated change in the form of service to be furnished Union, where it intends to install the automatic system of service in a few months. Mrs. Clark's absence from our village will be regretted by the many friends she has made while serving the community as telephone operator, by the Baptist church and aid society of which she has been a tireless worker, and by the patrons of the company she has so conscientiously served for so many years.

Mrs. Clark's daughter, Mrs. Olive Finney who has been assisting her mother for the past several months, will remain in charge of this exchange until the change in form of service is effected, so the patrons may feel assured of the continued courteous and efficient service to which they have been accustomed in the past.

Visiting at Union.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carper of Denver who have been spending several weeks with Mrs. Carper's sister, Mrs. Henry Ruhman who has been ill for some time, were welcome callers at the home of Mrs. Fannie Eikenbary one afternoon of last week where they enjoyed a reminiscent visit with Mrs. Eikenbary and her sister, Mrs. Joe T. Carper, covering a period of about thirty years, that being the time elapsed since they were last associated together. Needless to say there were some changes in each due to the intervening years, yet they were still recognizable to each other. In tracing the relationship of the Carpers it was found that John Carper was a second cousin of Mrs. J. T. Carper's husband, James Carper, deceased, both of whom lived on adjoining farms north of Union before they each sold their farms and moved to this state.

CARS, GARAGE BURN

Cass County Farm Bureau Notes

Copy furnished from Office of County Agent Wainscott

Some Corn Germination Poor.

Germination tests run at the Farm Bureau office on some samples of 1933 and 1935 corn are varied from 20 to 100 percent.

Some old corn of the 1935 crop that germinated better than 90 percent last fall shows a germination now of less than 50 percent.

This unusual situation should make farmers alert to test all seed corn as soon as possible.

A good way to take a sample is to select 100 ears at random through the crib. From the ears pick two kernels from each. Then run two tests of 100 kernels each. One will be a check on the other. The 100 ears that the sample is taken from should be laid aside as some selection may be done from them if the test is slightly lower than desired.

Where this method has been tried, with a resultant germination of 80 percent, a careful study of ear type may show that the big rough ears were dead and their removal brought the germination to above 90 percent.

Some cribs that are running as low as 25 percent, crib run, can be picked over and enough good ears can be found that will germinate 95 percent or better to make sufficient seed for two or three farms.

The extremely smooth small ear with a solid feel is the type to pick to get a high germination.

The Farm Bureau office is equipped to run tests and farmers are encouraged to bring or mail samples in at their first opportunity. The results will be kept on file so that any one having a surplus of seed can be referred to those that will want to buy seed.

Samples that are sent in should give the name of the grower, address, number of ears the kernels were taken from, variety of the corn, year grown, the amount for sale, and price, and if the sample is crib run or ear selected.

Grasshoppers Not Killed by Low Temperatures.

If you think the heavy snow and extreme cold weather has killed off all insects, you are wrong. At least O. S. Bare, extension entomologist at the Nebraska college of agriculture, says nothing could be farther from the facts.

"The deep snows form almost perfect protection for the pests and both insects and unhatched eggs are lying safe and sound under the thick warm blanket," Bare says. "Insects or eggs that have been exposed in the open to extreme cold of the past few weeks may in some cases have been injured or even killed by the long continued low temperatures but probably 90 per cent of the insect pests and their eggs are safe under the protecting snows."

A survey made last fall, the entomologist says, showed grasshopper eggs are safe in the upper couple of inches of soil and there seems to be little danger of weather conditions injuring them; particularly while they are protected by snows. A cold, wet month of May followed by warmth with plentiful moisture in June and early July would be much more unfavorable to grasshoppers than the present weather.

Except in a few small and scattered localities, very little trouble from chinch bugs and Hessian fly is expected in Nebraska in 1936. Neither were plentiful last year.

Pasture Contest developments.

Snow blocked and practically impassable country roads have caused cancellation of proposed crops and pasture meetings in Cass county but have not decreased interest and enthusiasm in the 1936 statewide pasture improvement contest.

The 1936 contest, wherein $1,500 will be awarded in prizes, was to be officially opened here with the holding of farm gatherings. However, with weather conditions making this impossible farmers are being urged to get detailed information about the contest at the office of the agricultural agent.

The adverse weather changes our plans for the meetings but does not mean that we will not support the pasture contest. If it is impossible for producers to get to town, they might drop a penny postcard in the mail box asking for detained information.

A large supply of circulars, done up in attractive color and describing the contest in detail as well as answering pertinent questions regarding pasture management, has just been received at the county farm bureau office. Farmers may get copies of this publication at once and make entry in the contest.

A Neglected Habit.

An advertisement for a well-known laxative claims such extravagant numbers of purchasers that one is appalled to think how large a proportion of the population must be suffering from constipation.

Meals eaten hurriedly with one eye on the clock; rushing for school—such habits upset regularity and cause a nervous tension that may delay digestion and fail to stimulate natural peristalsis.

An improvement in health habits, including the drinking of an adequate amount of water, balanced meals, enough sleep at night to prevent excessive fatigue, getting up in time to allow proper attention to regular toilet habits, and a little slowing-down of one's daily routine, is usually found helpful in preventing constipation.

Those who have omitted breakfast, or limit it to only a cup of coffee, may find that taking a small glass of orange juice or a dish of cooked fruit and eating one or two slices of toast in the morning, is effective in establishing regularity, too.

Increased Interest in 4-H.

Judging from the large number of cards received, in answer to questionnaires sent out on 4-H, there is an increased interest among boys and girls to carry club projects this year.

A standard 4-H club requires only five members, boys and girls, between the ages of 10 and 20 years, with a local leader in charge. Each club project has its own special requirements which give the boy or girl practical training in agriculture or home economics. Club meetings provide parliamentary training, subject matter discussion, demonstrations, judging and recreation, all of which helps to make a well-rounded program.

Baby beef, swine, poultry and garden clubs should be organized right away. In fact, March is the ideal time for all club organization. The home economics projects this year are "Meal Planning and Preparation," "The Room a Place to Live" and "Learning to Sew" with "Canning" as an optional.

Application blanks and detailed information are available at the Farm Bureau office. The extension agents will be glad to assist with organization meetings, if desired.
