

Heroine Vacations

Nellie Granger

"Sure, I'll fly again. I'm just itching to get back in the clouds," declared Miss Nellie Granger, heroic hostess who was one of two survivors of the airliner crash which killed 12 near Uniontown, Pa. Miss Granger left on a vacation trip to Panama following her release from Uniontown hospital, above.

Drive to Close Session Dooms Big Legislation

Ship Subsidy and Pure Food Bills Probably to Fall by the Wayside in Last Rush.

Washington.—Important legislation—some of it backed by the administration—was apparently doomed for this session as congress concentrated upon taxes, relief and adjournment in early June.

While President Roosevelt said he was still hopeful that the ship subsidy and pure food and drug bills would be enacted, there were strong indications he would not let these controversial measures stand in the way of adjournment.

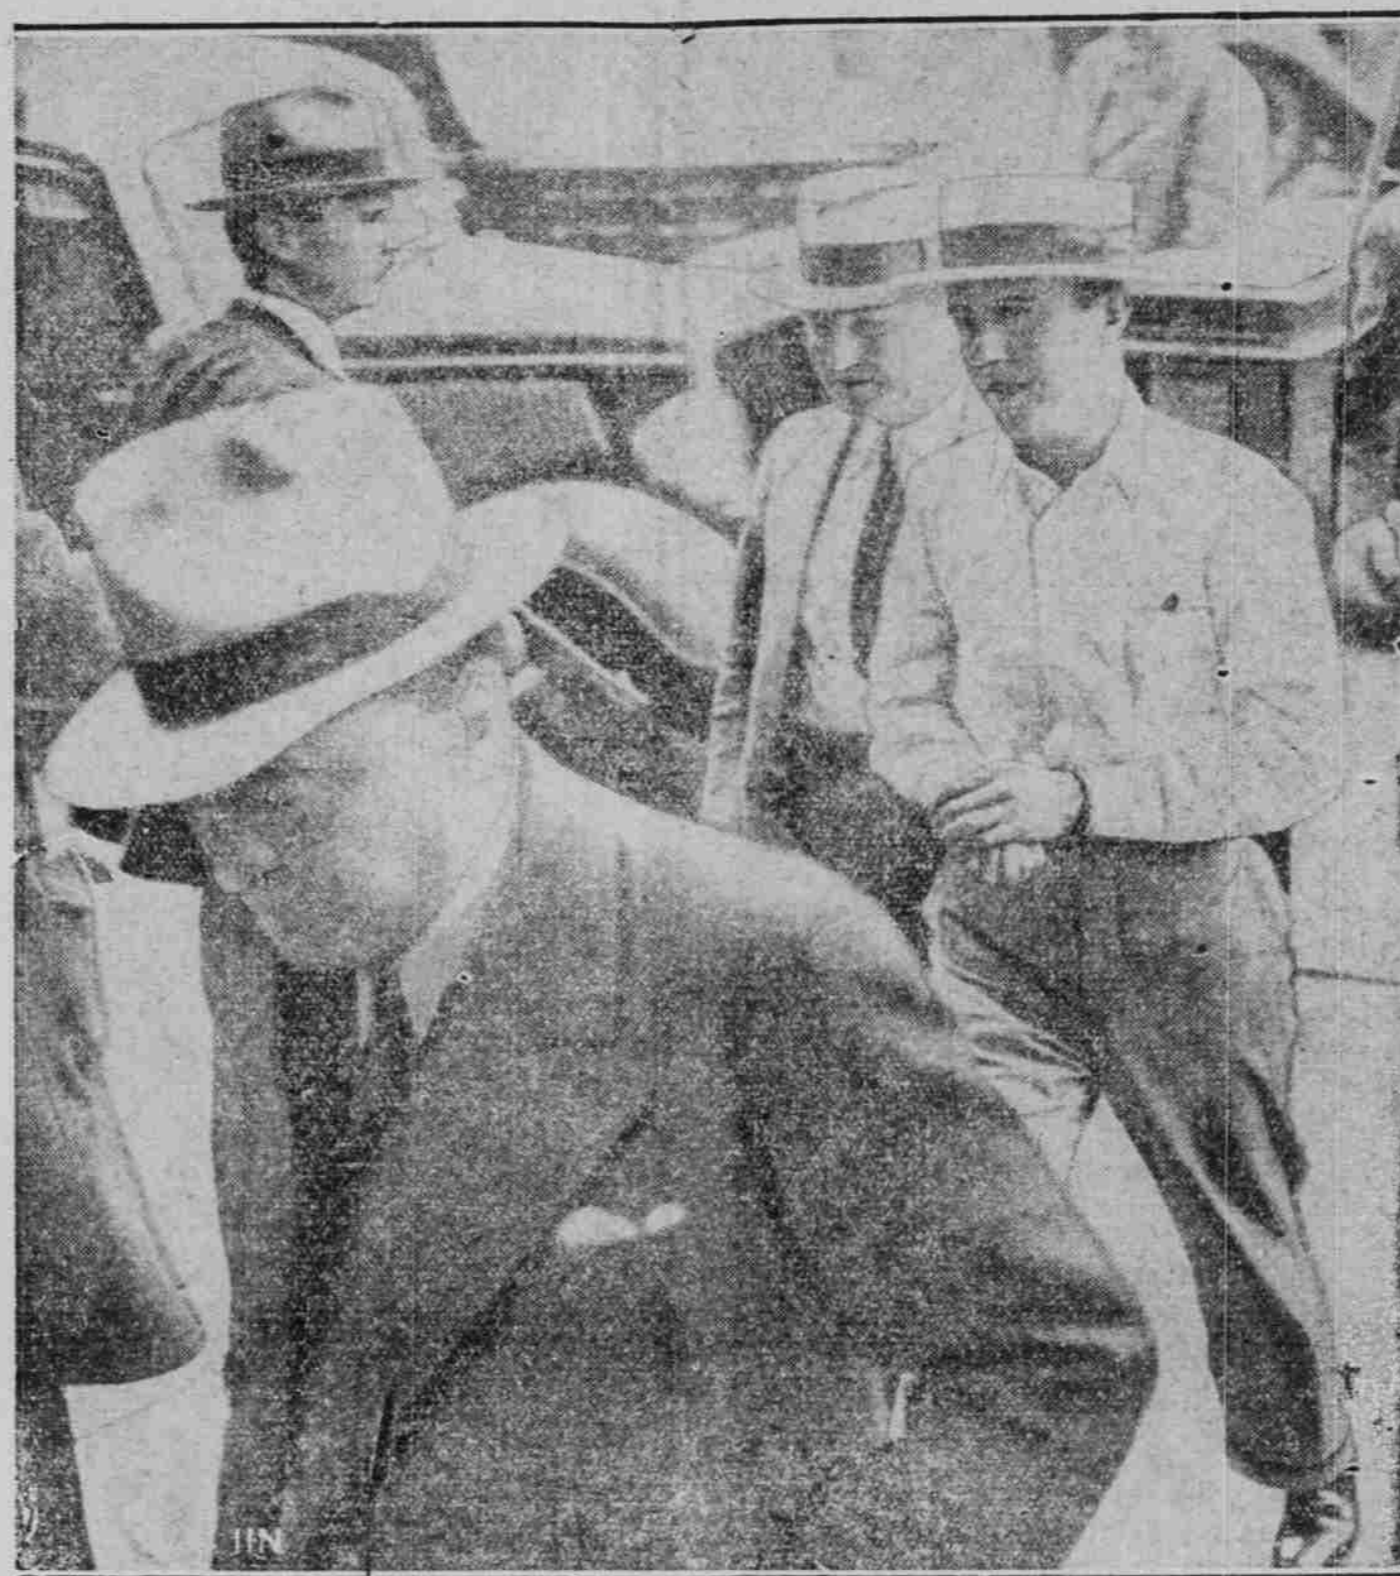

The democratic leadership of capitol hill and the republican minority, in fact, seemed united upon a program which would let these measures fall by the wayside. The Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill as well as held by leaders to have little chance for final consideration at this session.

Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, talked over the situation with President Roosevelt and then told newspapermen: "I think it will be possible to adjourn early in June. Satisfactory progress is being made on the two main bills—taxes and relief. The republicans would like to finish the session before the date of their national convention and I believe we will have general co-operation to that end." The republican convention opens June 9 in Cleveland and is followed two weeks later by the democratic convention in Philadelphia.

Friday's activities gave some hint of an all-around purpose of concluding the work of congress about June 6, but leaders fixed no final date in order to avoid a trap by those who might seek to force delay in the interest of enacting their own "pet" measures.

Speaker Byrns predicted the last deficiency appropriation bill carrying the administration's 1.5 billions works-relief fund would be reported to the house by the end of the week, assuring early action.

Karpis Flown to St. Paul After Capture

Alvin Karpis (in straw hat), Public Enemy No. 1, is shown entering the St. Paul, Minn., federal building manacled and closely guarded by federal agents, preceded by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Department of Justice agents, after their arrival by plane from New Orleans, Louisiana, where he was captured Friday night. Karpis is under indictment in St. Paul for the kidnaping of William Hamm and Edward G. Bremer. He is alleged to have confessed both crimes.

PLEASANT VIEW PUPILS VISIT LINCOLN WEDNESDAY

We pupils of the upper grades at Pleasant View school took a trip to Lincoln Wednesday, April 29th. We visited the museum, state capitol, Pioneer's park and Antelope park. We ate our dinner at the Lincoln chamber of commerce. We drove past the state men's reformatory and the state hospital for insane. We got to go, through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. E. Eugene Fitch and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Boedeker, who drove their cars.

CRASH DOES DAMAGE

The residence of Mrs. Walter J. White, located in the north part of the city, was badly damaged in the storm of Thursday night when struck by lightning. The amount of the damage to the residence will be in the neighborhood of $300, it is estimated by Paul Wohlfarth, contractor.

The lightning struck the side of the house, ripping off parts of the siding, also tearing off the tin roofing of a porch and breaking some forty window glass by the force of the shock. The radio and electric lines were burned out by the bolt.

The shock of the bolt was felt for an area of several blocks and caused the lighting service in that section to be out of commission for some time.

ENROLL AS READERS

From Friday's Daily Mrs. Angeline Lemon of Greenwood and Miss Helen Lemon, of Ashland, were in the city today to look after some matters in the county court and while here were pleasant callers at the Journal. The ladies had their names placed on the list as readers of this paper.

Parsley is a Most Popular Cooking Herb

Grow a Few Plants of New Permanent Variety—Keep One Indoors Over Winter.

We hear a great deal nowadays about herb gardens. Interest in cooking herbs seems to go with a fancy for antique furniture. Few of the cooking herbs which used to grow in every garden, and season many of the dishes which our grandmothers served, are known to present day home cooks.

But one herb which has held its favor, both as a flavoring, and a decorative garnish to improve the appearance of the dish, is parsley. Every garden should have a row of parsley, and a short row will suffice, for this vegetable is in the "cut and come again" class and each plant will continue to produce crisp leaves all season.

And while we are on the subject of parsley, the Hamburg rooted type should be mentioned. This not only produces leaves which can be used for flavoring and garnishes, but it produces a small root resembling a parsnip, which has the parsley flavor, and is said to be much superior to the leaves for flavoring soups and stews.

The latest development of parsley has come to amateurs thru the all-America committee on new vegetables and flowers, which gave a 1936 Award of Merit to the new variety called Paramount.

It has rich dark green leaves, triple curled, and is destined to decorate many a juicy steak or bowl of creamed new potatoes. When thinned properly the plants grow 12 inches high with a spread of almost 20 inches, and the tendency to turn brown at the edges with age or during the cooler days of fall has been eliminated.

Parsley seed is slow to germinate, requiring from two to three weeks, but it makes a speedy growth when once started. It is a good idea to combine a planting with radishes to mark the row. The radishes will mature and be used before the parsley progresses enough to be bothered by them. Thin out scrupulously, especially with the big new Paramount variety, and when the plants get about 3 inches high, cut them off. The new growth will be more curled and better looking.

Many gardeners provide themselves with a year-round supply of parsley by bringing a plant or two into the house when the cold weather sets in. This is a good idea, because the plants will grow well in a sunny kitchen window, and are always there when a spray is needed. Besides you cannot always depend upon a supply in the market, and don't care to pay five or ten cents for a bunch when you need only a very little of it.

The best varieties of parsley are really handsome foliage plants, their finely curled, mossy sprays making excellent edgings in the garden. There is little reason why one could not raise a few plants in the window box, as when closely planted they do not become the massive bushes which you would grow in the vegetable garden.

WARNS AGAINST INFORMATION

Washington, May 1.—The United States Civil Service commission has sent a notice to post offices, warning that misleading information is being given the public by representatives of some of the correspondence schools which sell "civil service" courses.

For a long time, the commission has been receiving complaints from different parts of the country which indicate that opportunities for obtaining federal employment have been greatly exaggerated.

It was made clear that no school has any connection whatever with the Civil Service commission or with any other branch of the government, and also that the commission has no agents who solicit applications for civil service positions or who sell "civil service" courses.

No school can "guarantee" government employment and none is given information regarding examinations, or any other information, which is not available to the general public. The commission stated that it does not recommend any school, and explained that it is not necessary for anyone to take a course with a so-called civil service school in order to compete in a civil service examination.

A special point was made of the fact that information concerning examinations may be obtained at any time, without cost, from the secretary of the Civil Service Board at any first or second-class post office or from the commission's office in Washington, D. C.

WILL PAY $25,000 REWARD

New York.—The New Jersey court of chancery was appointed sole arbiter in the disposition of the $25,000 reward offered in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping at a meeting of federal, New Jersey and New York City law enforcement officials. Atty. Gen. Wilentz, one of the conferees, announced members of the department of justice, the New Jersey state police department will not be eligible for the reward. Wilentz said no recommendations were made at the conference for those who claim that they assisted in the apprehension of Bruno Hauptmann are already on file with the New Jersey state authorities.
