MOFFITT-LIVINGSTON

Miss Muriel Moffitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley K. Moffitt of Lincoln, became the wife of Jesse Livingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Livingston of Nehawka at a lovely fall wedding at the home of the bride Saturday at 2 p. m. Immediate relatives and close friends were guests. Rev. Charles Livingston, brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony before a background of palms and ferns. Preceding the service, Mrs. Frank Cully of Diller, aunt of the bride, sang. Mrs. Grace Root of Omaha accompanied her and played the wedding march.

The bride wore peacock blue velvet. Molded on princess lines, it had a circular train falling from the waistline in the back. The sleeves, puffed at the shoulders, were fitted from the puff and ended in a small lace cuff at the wrist. The high neckline was finished with a small lace collar. Velvet covered buttons fastened the dress to the waistline in the back. She wore a twist of matching velvet and pearls in her hair and a necklace of pearls and turquoise. Her bouquet was of bronze cyranthemums. The bride's sister, Mrs. Howard E. Means, was her only attendant. She wore a floor length gown of fuchsia velvet and carried lavender chrysanthemums. Howard Means of Omaha was best man.

An informal reception followed the wedding. Mr. Livingston and his bride left immediately following the reception for their home at 701 Missouri Ave., Columbia, Mo., where he is studying for his Ph. D. degree. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Livingston and Wilma of Nehawka, Mrs. Maggie Gobelman and Miss Hazel Baier of Plattsmouth.

"Christianity as Love"

Before we analyze Paul's "Hymn of Love," we must get acquainted with the people to whom it was addressed.

Paul's success in Athens was negligible; so he sought a better field. Corinth, 45 miles away was the place selected. Some writers have called the city the "Cesspool of Asia Minor;" if that was true, then Paul was in the right place, for that city was surely in need of the purifying river of salvation. For eighteen months Paul preached under difficulties, but with some success, shown by finding and associating himself to a Jew-Aquila, from Pontus, and his wife Priscilla, tentmakers; next we find the opposition of the Jews grew so strong that Paul had to quit the synagogue and give his whole attention to the gentiles. But a happy event took place. Crispus, the ruler of the Synagogue accepted Jesus Christ together with his family; and Paul thought this conversion of such importance that he baptized these new converts himself (usually leaving this to his helpers). (See Cor. 1:14-17).

A strong church was organized, to which Paul wrote two Epistles, the first 56 A. D. and the second 57 A. D. from Ephesus and Philippi.

The occasion for writing those letters was to call to account members that did not live to the standard of Christians and Paul's preaching; a very difficult task, but under the guidance of the Holy Spirit and his inspiration he gave the church of his and our day some of the most beautiful and clear statements, such as the manner in which it is to be taken and the purpose for which it was instituted—the sacrament of the Lord's Supper (I Cor. 11:23-29); then the glorious 15th chapter on the resurrection, who would want to miss that in his Bible? Then he gives us the appearances of Jesus after his resurrection and then "The Hymn of Love," chapter 13. One incident in Paul's stay at Corinth should not be overlooked, when he, at one time, seemed much discouraged, the Lord granted him a vision and spoke to him: "Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace; for I am with thee, no man shall set on thee, to hurt thee, for I have much people in this city." (Acts 18: 9, 10). So was Joshua and Jerimiah encouraged (Josh. 1:5, 6; Jer. 1:8). An episode is recorded in Acts 18:12-17, which should be of much interest to Bible students, showing the attitude of one Gaius, who showed his indifference in the matter of religion, and the tribe exists to this day. What a harvest will such conducts bring?

After having disposed of, in 12 chapters, all that had burdened his soul, Paul goes over to show the Corinthians that one may "covet" as pointed out in Chap. 12:31 "the best gifts," which is not a sin, but the highest virtue, and this is described in Chapter 13, in the "Hymn of Love." This is a most difficult chapter to explain, because "love" cannot be analyzed, no more than God can be analyzed. The following definitions may be helpful for a partial understanding: (a) Love is a strong desire to be united with whom we love; (b) Love is a delight in whom we love; (c) Love is an expression of good-will towards the one we love to please.

The first three verses show us what love is not. All those things mentioned may be done without a trace of love in it. If not prompted by desire, delight and good-will, there is no merit in those acts, great and good as they may appear to be; they are lacking the proper motive.

There are certain characteristics by which we judge the acts of men, and render credit. Thirteen qualities are mentioned in verses 4-7, by which love can be recognized, and they are true. Enduring qualities of love are given in verse 8. A prophetic utterance: "Love never falleth." All other things will be done away with.

The passing of knowledge, should read "partial knowledge," because in divine truth we now have but fragments of the vast realm of spiritual realities; some day we shall have perfect knowledge such as: The secrets of the universe, the deep reason why God permits sin. Verse 11 gives us an illustration of the preceding sentence, as we grow knowledge increases. Verse 12 points to a mirror whose reflection may not be clear, even distorted, the picture may be obscure, an enigma. Time will come when we shall see "face to face." (Gen. 32:30; Deut. 24:10.) Our knowledge in glory will be immediate, without imperfection.

But to sum up the whole chapter, this is the result: "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three, but the greatest of these is love." Why? Faith and hope are human virtues, while love is the very character of God (I Cor. 8:3; I John 4:8, 10). Question: "What place will Faith and hope have in heaven?" Love is eternal, as God. Faith will hold on to Christ in heaven, for "Faith in Christ brought us salvation; Hope goes with us, for we hope to go from glory to glory, ever hoping for new revelations of God's glory; but love rests in the bosom of God, enjoying companionship with God, is one with Him. The highest joy of a Christian is: To be one with God.

Coglizer-Druliner Nuptials at Havelock

Miss LaVerne Coglizer Wedded to Mr. Roger Druliner, Son of Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Druliner.

At the Havelock Methodist church Sunday at 3 p. m., Miss La Verne Coglizer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. U. Coglizer became the bride of Roger Druliner, son of Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Druliner of Hallam, who were several years residents of Plattsmouth during the pastorate of Rev. Druliner at the local Methodist church. Rev. Mr. Druliner and Dr. A. V. Hunter, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. W. A. Fowler, before the altar on which were ferns and palms. The large baskets of white pompons and roses and two seven branch altar candelabra bearing white candles on either side of the white satin kneeling bench. A white carpet was laid for the wedding procession, and the church pews were roped with white ribbon and flowers. Miss Emily Naish sang, and Mrs. Lela Darling played the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn marches.

The bride, in marriage by her father, wore a white satin dress fashioned on simple lines with a train. White satin medallions framed the neckline and the long tight sleeves came to a point on the back of the hand. Her slippers were of white cloth mixed with a gold thread. She wore a long, white tulle veil edged in Irish lace, fastened to a lace cap with a coronet of seed pearls and trimmed in the back with orange blossoms. Over this she wore a hip length veil edged in the lace. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.
Miss Leona Coglizer, sister of the bride, as maid of honor wore a dress of slipper satin in daytime blue, made on a tunic princess style trimmed with a corsage of self material at the neckline, and having corded material around the bottom of the skirt and tunic. The sleeves were short and puffed. She carried an arm bouquet of briarcliff roses and white pompons, and wore gold sandals.
Bridesmaids were Misses Alberta Druliner, sister of the bridegroom, Fran Casford, Genevieve Bainbridge, Clarice Pinkerton, Dorothy Carrigan and Roberta Myers. They were dressed alike in moire taffeta in the autumn tones of raspberry, dusky rose and aqua blue. The dresses had full swing skirts, and were trimmed with collars having wide, quilted revers and patch pockets. They carried colonial bouquets in pastel shades.
Beverly Jean Ludwig and Phyllis Lee Barrett, as flower girls wore Alice blue floor length dresses made in the Kate Greenaway style, with pink sashes and hair bows to match, and carried baskets of rose petals. Jerry Dean Ludwig and Claire Barrett, wearing black satin southern gentleman suits with long trousers and white satin blouses, carried the rings in colonial bouquets.
Harold Druliner of Omaha was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Richard Coglizer, brother of the bride, Delbert Pinkerton, Norvil Nelson, Kenneth King and Bruce Walker.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white Irish linen cut work cloth centered with the wedding cake. Two table candelabra holding tall cathedral tapers were on each side. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Norris Graham and Mrs. Gayle Casady, and Misses Gertrude Goering, Mabel Baek, Louise Reece, Mildred Goslin and Maybelle Cravers. Assisting in serving were Misses Mary Lou Kirk, Margaret Nelson, Helen Ewing, Joyce Druliner and Marjorie Vyskocil. Assisting in the parlors and introducing the guests were Mrs. Fred Hall, Mrs. O. J. Hitchcock, Mrs. I. G. Morrison and Mrs. P. L. Webster. Miss Olga Mary Hitchcock had charge of the guest book and Miss Florence Nelson was in charge of the gifts.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hunter and family of Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Coglizer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Holman and son, Mr. and Mrs. Dietz Coglizer, Mr. and Mrs. Will Strickland and son, Mr. and Mrs. V. Barsballe, Mrs. Mary Barsballe, Mr. and Mrs. George Baier and Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt, all of Omaha; Dr. and Mrs. E. Matheny and family of Savannah, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. Joe Curley, Miss Anna Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. H. Heigle, Archie Crozier, all of Weeping Water, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Druliner of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Druliner of Indianapolis.

WILLIAM B. ROSE
JUDGE OF SUPREME COURT
Non-Political Candidate for Re-election

Judge Rose was nominated by a large majority at the April Primary and his name will appear November 3, 1936, on the Non-political Ballot in Lancaster, Cass, Johnson, Nemaha, Otoe, Pawnee and Richardson counties of the First Supreme Court District.

Judge Rose has been in continuous service since he was appointed by Governor Sheldon. He was twice elected by the people of the entire state and twice by the voters of the First District, the last time by a majority of 26,234.

Judge Rose asks for re-election on his judicial experience, his work as judge, his standards of judicial conduct and his capacity for continued service.

Aurora Republican: "Mr. Rose stands in the very front rank of lawyers in legal attainments. He has a mind of the highest discriminating power and he possesses to a marked degree the judicial temperament so essential in the ideal judge."

Omaha World-Herald: "John H. Wigmore, dean emeritus of Northwestern university law school, writing in the current issue of the American Bar Association's Journal (April, 1936), has termed Judge Rose one of the 23 judges in the United States who habitually write 'masterly opinions' in the various supreme courts on points of evidence law."

Lincoln Star: "Known to some circles as the 'Oliver Wendell Holmes' of the Nebraska judiciary, Rose has been praised by attorneys for liberal interpretations of the law."

Lincoln Evening Journal: "Judge Rose's high character, his ability and his standing among judges of appellate courts of the country have won him distinction."
