

What Type of Patient Supports a Chiropractor?

All types, BUT ordinarily the better cultured person who can study and reason, has a fair knowledge of his body and body functions, who himself has had experience with sickness and has had all the foci of infection removed, but who still lingers. WHY, you ask.

FOR THE SAME REASON YOU WOULD NOT SIMPLY OIL THE WHEELS OF YOUR CAR

If all four were lined in some opposite direction; you would have the axles straightened so they would run harmoniously. The same is true of your body! If your joints are sprained and out of line, crowd some vital nerve or blood vessel, it may cause a weakness, lack of proper function, even paralysis and a new foci of infection.

My life ambition has always been to be a mechanic of the Chiropractic type; my happiest days have been since I am doing it; have had considerable experience and consider myself quite proficient. Being that the Chiropractic science is only 50 years old in America, and all are not familiar with it, is the reason I advertise.

JUSTICE DEPRESSED

Evansville, Ind.—Prosperity's return "depresses" Justice of the Peace Joseph E. Baker, he said. "My business has dwindled to half what it was during the depression years," he explained. "With more money in circulation, more couples are having their marriages performed by clergymen. It depresses me."

SETTLEMENT FAVORS FALL

El Paso, Tex.—Broken, the aging Albert B. Fall was legally free to return to his beautiful ranch home in southern New Mexico. But he may never go home.

The former secretary of interior is in a hospital here, too ill to comment when his attorney announced a settlement had ended years of litigation over Tres Ritos, his 700,000 acre ranch.

He has been in a hospital bed a year and there, his physicians say, he must remain for medical attention necessary to preserve his life. He was 75 years old on Thanksgiving day. But the former cabinet member did not allow his own illness to halt his court fight for possession of the ranch homestead. The breaking health of his wife led to the settlement.

"The family will keep the home," said R. C. Garland, Fall's attorney, "that is all that will be made public about the settlement. It was made because of Mrs. Fall's health."

Planting Grass to Save Wheat Farm from Ruin

Pawnee County Woman, Mrs. M. Warren, Also Making Contour Ridges to Halt Gullies.

A Pawnee county farm that produced 17,000 bushels of wheat in 1926 will be in grass in 1937. Planting the farm to grass is the only way to save it from destruction by erosion, says its owner, Mrs. M. Warren. The 640 acre hilly field had never been broken out until the fall of 1935. Then it was disked and planted to wheat, only to kill the weeds that had sprung up as a result of the destruction of the native grasses by drouth and over grazing and to prepare the ground for the reseeded grass.

In co-operation with the soil conservation service camp at Pawnee City, Mrs. Warren is constructing moisture conserving contour ridges on the entire farm and seeding it back to grass.

"Good grass yields for many years will be worth far more than good wheat yields for a few years," she says, "and if the farm should be planted to wheat for a few years, it will become so gullied that it wouldn't grow grass."

Gullies started on the farm as a result of grass destruction are being stabilized by the use of trees and grass sod. Brush dams and diversion ditches are used to control the larger gullies.

TWO FARMERS FOUND DEAD

Harmony, Minn.—Neighbors found two bachelor farmers mysteriously dead on their 170 acre farm. Sheriff Knute Ingelbret believed they may have been slain and started an investigation. The body of Sievert Olson was found in the farmhouse and that of his brother, Knute, near a haystack in the farmyard.

stores do a pretty good business anyway.

Another thing the Plattsmouth people are proud of is their high school football team, which seems to be of championship stuff this season. But to start a list of things about Plattsmouth that its citizens are proud of would be to start one that would be endless. Their library, under the expert supervision of Miss Olive Jones, boasts the largest per capita circulation of any in the nation. The library has been in Miss Jones' charge for 53 years.

F. J. ERICKE
He is the oldest druggist in Nebraska, and he's still going strong.

There's the Livingston family, which has as its head the venerable Dr. T. P. Livingston, who has ministered to Plattsmouth folk for 55 years. His son Robert is now studying medicine.

Many Fine Folks
You haven't met all the fine folks in Plattsmouth in this article for the reason I'd hold them all.

But be certain that when you go to Plattsmouth, you'll be welcomed, and it won't take long for you to get into the Plattsmouth tradition, which is pride in past accomplishments, and confidence in future ones. Plattsmouth had street cars before Omaha did, and the up-and-comingness of the citizens are likely to win it more laurels of a "big town" before long.

Some Things Don't Overlooked

Without presuming to reflect any on Don's splendid article, the Journal is pleased to add thereto a list of some of the important things that Plattsmouth has and which no mere reporter could be expected to cover in a one page story or a one or two day assignment, the purpose of this addition being largely to acquaint our more distant readers with what's going on in the old town. Home folks know of all these accomplishments, but sometimes forget or fail to tell the stranger within our gates about them. They include:

The Plattsmouth public schools, that are not only fully accredited, but have an A-Star rating, highest obtainable. The superintendent is L. S. Devoe and the principal of the high school, J. R. Reeder.

A Junior Drum corps, under sponsorship of the American Legion and leadership of "June" Marshall, that took first prize in the recent parade contest of Ak-Sar-Ben. The corps is composed of thirty boys, and through co-operation of the business men of Plattsmouth has been outfitted with natty new uniforms.

An active Boy Scout troop, also sponsored by American Legion, with Raymond Larson scoutmaster and Lee Knolle assistant. Plattsmouth Scouts have one of the finest cabins in the state, located six miles south of town and known as "Camp Wheeler."

An abundant supply of natural gas from the pipe lines of two of the nation's largest distributors, which cross the Missouri river at this point. A feeder line also supplies Omaha industries.

A farmers co-operative creamery, making "Caseo" butter, which is sold under its trade name throughout the country. Also numerous smaller industrial plants which add to the attractiveness of any town as a suitable place to live.

An economical and efficient city government, composed of ten council-Lushinsky, mayor. The city administration is not only living within its

Also an active Chamber of Commerce, Business Men's Ad club, Rotary club and American Legion post, with regular luncheon meetings for the transaction of business, all of which closely co-ordinate their efforts with those of the city council in matters pertaining to the general welfare and progress of Plattsmouth.

One other thing especially worthy of mention, because little publicity has been given it heretofore even locally, is the fact that the National Forestry Service under the direction of the Department of the Interior is doing extensive improving on the government land adjacent to the northern boundary of the city. The development of a National Park is a possibility of the early future.
