The sheriff also extended his thanks to the many friends that had joined in his recognition. Deputy Cass Sylvester brought a round of laughter with his remark that he had not had the radio experience of Homer. "Besides, he continued, I can't get my breath. Tells of Work of FBI

D. T. Ladd, of Chicago, director of that district of the FBI, one of the most important assignments of the bureau, was present as the representative of J. Edgar Hoover and gave the principal address of the evening. Mr. Ladd stated that he was gratified at being able to be present to add his part and to bring the personal greetings of J. Edgar Hoover to the Cass county law officers. He was proud and happy to add his tribute to the fine work that the Sylvester brothers had rendered not only to their community but the nation at large. Their act showed courage, devotion to duty and the spirit of co-operation with others in stamping out crime. Mr. Ladd held the closest attention of the audience as he detailed a part of the program of educational work in the training of law enforcing officers that is conducted by the FBI. The speaker told of the work of the ballistic section of the bureau, the careful examination made of all firearms and bullets and which had made possible the solution of several crimes, one of a shooting in Alaska being dramatically told by the speaker. He also told of the great fingerprint bureau where the prints of 7,000,000 criminals and persons that have been arrested are kept on file. Ladd pointed out that there have never been found two sets of fingerprints alike, that many criminals had submitted to operations to remove their prints but as in the case of John Dillinger, this had been unsuccessful. Mr. Ladd detailed the work of the FBI in the roundup, killing or conviction of the members of the Parker-Karpis gang of kidnapers and who had been traced all over the nation until Karpis had been captured in New Orleans.
