Water Level Drops

Putting Streets in Best Condition

This will insure their being in good shape next winter and spring and eliminate many of the mudholes of former years before the practice of graveling became so general.

May Locate in West

Albert Bowers is accompanying his daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Robinson and her husband to California, where they expect to make their home in the future, should the country meet with their approval.

Home from the West

Last fall, when it was certain that there would be no corn to pick in these parts, a number of the young men of the vicinity of Murdock departed for the west, where they found employment during the winter and visited various points extending from near the Canadian line to Old Mexico, seeing the country during the winter and finding employment at various occupations. Last week they returned home. Those in the group were John and Elmer Schlaphoff and Oris and Morris Reichart and Howard Rosenow.

During the late spring they had been joined by Doretta Schlaphoff, sister of the Schlaphoff boys, who returned with them. Following their return, the boys jumped into the work in the harvest fields, being "ready, willing and able" to handle whatever tasks come their way.

Crops are Looking Fine

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gillespie, who went out west to visit at a number of places, including the farm home in Wyoming, taking Mrs. Wm. McNamera, sister-in-law of Mrs. Gillespie with them, seeing much of the country on their trip and were more than pleased with the appearance of the corn, wheat and other small grain all along the way. Drouth of recent years had made thousands of hillsides barren of vegetation, but with the abundant rains of this year, the withered grasses of former years have staged a great comeback and many places along the way they saw the grass knee high on grazing land. The greatest tragedy is that farmers were compelled to sell off their cattle and other live stock for lack of feed a long time ago and now it will take a long time before the grazing country can be re-populated with cattle to the point it was before.

Leaving here, they drove the school bus as far as North Loup, where they joined Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gillespie and continued on their way in the car of the latter couple.

Shortly after they had gotten back home, along came C. A. Blattspeller, of Tobias, who had some business to look after at Marshalltown, Iowa, and asked Mr. Gillespie to accompany him. This took him over another area of excellent territory and Mr. Gillespie tells of seeing a fine panorama of farming and grazing land extending all the way from Casper, Wyoming, to Marshalltown.

PLATTSMOUTH DENTAL SOCIETY
CHAPTER XX

Little Bobby White had just experienced his first visit to the dentist. As Mrs. White helped her son into his coat and adjusted his cap, she said:

"I'm certainly glad that my friend Mrs. Reynolds literally dragged us up to your office. I didn't think that Bobby had a bad tooth in his mouth. I've been terribly careless. I should have watched his teeth closer."

"It's never too late to learn," said the dentist. "Fortunately, you have learned your lesson early in Bobby's life. Form the habit of looking at his teeth often. Mothers should inspect their children's teeth daily. You look closely at Bobby's neck and ears when you wash them; you scrub his face and hands many times a day, and each time that you wash them, you examine them to see whether they are clean. Carry that practice one step further—look at his teeth every day. He is still too young to brush his teeth properly. You must brush them for him, or at least supervise the job. After they have been brushed, look them over carefully to be sure that they are clean and also to be sure that no new cavities are forming. However, don't rely entirely on your ability to discover cavities. It will probably take three or four appointments for me to repair these teeth. After I get his mouth in good condition, I will want you to bring him back to me at least every three months."

"Every three months?" exclaimed Mrs. White. "I thought you advised people to have their teeth examined every six months. You told Mrs. Reynolds to bring Jack back in six months."

"I know," replied Dr. Young. "But Bobby and Jack are two different boys. They have two different kinds of teeth. Jack's teeth seem immune to decay. It isn't necessary for me to examine his teeth more than twice a year. Bobby's teeth appear to decay easily. You and I must watch his mouth carefully in order to keep his baby teeth in good condition until they are replaced by permanent teeth."

Mrs. White was evidently very much disturbed by the dentist's statement. Mother-like, she did not relish the idea that her son was not so healthy as his playmates. "Why should Bobby's teeth decay more rapidly than Jack's?" she asked. "He seems to be as strong and healthy as Jack."

"I wish I could give you a positive and definite answer to that question," replied the dentist. "From a physical standpoint, the two boys are apparently equal. From a dental standpoint, Jack is the more fortunate. Bobby's dental condition may have two explanations. Probably his baby teeth were poorly formed to begin with. By that, I mean that something happened when they were forming that prevented enough minerals being built into them to make them strong. Also, I suspect that their decayed condition is partly due to the fact that they have not been kept clean."

"I'll have to take the blame for that," said Mrs. White, as she prepared to leave. "I'll admit I have been careless about cleaning them, but that won't happen again."

"When shall I bring Bobby back to have those cavities fixed?"

"Dr. Young, consulting his appointment book, said, 'Bring him back day after tomorrow at this same hour. I want to remove all of that decay as quickly as possible.'"

Iowa, which he thinks can not be beaten when it comes to raising crops and for the promising condition of things in general.

He says there is little wheat being grown in the section of Iowa which they traversed, but corn is living up to its usual Iowa tradition of growing "tall."

Gave Entertainment Last Week
Under the direction of Miss Pauline Stockwell of Kansas City, an amateur contest was staged at the Murdock school auditorium, which was patterned somewhat after the famous Major Bowes amateur radio programs. Considerable local talent appeared on the program and there were a number of prizes awarded.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up night swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of rest and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
