Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

Making It Harder Than Ever

By IRVIN S. COBB

THERE was a complaint in a small village a few miles from Edinburgh regarding the trolley fare. For four miles into the city the company charged a shilling. This, in the opinion of many of the villagers, was too much. A delegation was chosen to visit the offices of the line and make representation in favor of a lower rate. The arguments advanced by the plenipotentiaries prevailed. The company decided that hereafter six tickets might be had for the former price.

The townspeople returned home rejoicing, but there was at least one of their fellow-citizens who did not share in the view that a wise step had been taken. This was an elderly gentleman renowned for his frugality even in a community where frugal folk are common. "It's all dam' foolishness," he declared. "Now we've get to walk to town six times instead of four-r times to save a shillin'!" (American News Features, Inc.)
