

Streets Subdues CCC Team by a Score of 2 to 1

Streets and Molden Engage in Hurling Duel—Merchants Play High Grade Baseball.

From Monday's Daily—Yesterday at the Athletic park the final game of the Southeastern Nebraska Baseball League was played before a faithful following of baseball enthusiasts who braved the summer heat to witness the very well played ball game.

By defeating the CCC team the locals clinched sole possession of third place in the final league standings. Preceding the game those in attendance were treated to some very pleasing music, rendered by the band under the leadership of Peter Grandville.

The game itself was probably one of the best played games staged this season in the league.

From the very first inning it was evident that the game was to be a pitching battle between the dusky CCC hurler, "Smoky" Molden, and "Gabby" Streets, local strikeout artist.

"Smoky," relying on his speed, allowed but five hits, walked one, and struck out ten Platter sluggers. "Gabby" was even more conservative with his base hits, permitting but four singles. Streets, with his blazing speed ball and deceptive blockings, whiffed sixteen of the aspiring CCC clubbers. Fay Spidell, speedy veteran of many a ball campaign, was on the receiving end of "Gabby's" deliveries and caught him in his usual very capable fashion.

In the first inning, Fleming led off with a single and reached the keystone sack on an error. Emberry, third man up, banged out a single to drive Fleming across the plate with the lone CCC tally. Molden collected singles in the second and seventh innings for the only other two opponents' hits in the remaining eight innings.

The Merchants pushed across their first run in the fourth frame. "Herb" Sundstrom, peppery guardian of the left field garden, led off with a single. "Hans" Newman, veteran shortstop, reached first on an error. Sundstrom advancing. Both Merchants moved up one base on Second Baseman Svoboda's sacrifice hit. "Herb" then scored on an infield out of Streets.

In the sixth inning, "Herb" again led off with a Texas League single. "Hans" followed with a single and these two team mates were again advanced on another sacrifice of John Svoboda. "Herb" scampered across the platter for the second time as Streets hit to the Weeping Water second baseman, who muffed the ball, and all hands were safe.

The Platters were able to get two more hits, one by "Dusty" Rhoades in the seventh and one by "Hans," who blasted out a double in the eighth. "Gabby" was without a doubt the main factor in the local victory, but credit must be given to all the locals who played a clean, hustling, fighting ball game. Four errors were checked up against the Merchants, but with rival men on the bases, the local defense was almost unpenetrable.

After the battle was over, the triumphant Merchants were given treats of ice cream and pop by their "baseball enthusiast, No. 1," Dale Dasher. Box score:

Charles Sturm Stone Charles Sturm Stone, youngest child of Chester Beadon Stone and Dorothy Sturm Stone, was born August 15, 1934, on the farm a mile south of Nehawka, Nebraska, once owned by his great-grandfather Banning, and died August 10, 1937, on the farm a mile north of Nehawka originally the homestead of his great-grandfather Sturm, would next Sunday have celebrated his third birthday.

Charles was active, mischievous, quickly changing from good to naughty and again to good, for he was a rugged little boy, both in body and in mind. He loved to sing to himself with a blank paper for a song book, had a disposition as bright and cheerful as his sunny hair that gave him the name he was known by—"Rusty."

Strong and beautiful was the affection of Tiffie Charles for his mother and father; his brother, Richard Marion, six; and his little sister, Dorothy Jean, four years old, who survive him.

The only consolation for the parents is the truth that it is not for us unknowning humans to question the inscrutable wisdom of God. It is theirs to thank Him for the glorious experience of this ray of pure sunshine that was given to shine upon them for nearly three years, to be forever grateful for this bright golden thread that was so graciously woven into their lives.

After funeral services conducted by Rev. W. A. Taylor at the Nehawka Methodist church, little Charles was buried Thursday afternoon in Mount Pleasant cemetery.
