The injured member is getting along very nicely now and he expects to return to work soon.

Moved to Elmwood
The Rev. Hawkins, pastor of the Christian church here, and his family, have now moved to Elmwood, and are nicely located in the parsonage. Rev. Hawkins conducted services for the first time last Sunday, the church being well filled with members who were pleased with the first discourse of their new pastor, and who seem willing to take hold and assist with the work of the church, which is what it takes to keep things going and retain a pastor. We join in welcoming the new minister and his family to Elmwood.

Undergoes Major Operation
Wm. F. Rosenow, who resides a few miles northwest of Elmwood, after experiencing much trouble from ill health, on advice of the family physician, was taken to the Bryan Memorial hospital, where he underwent a major operation. Attended Company Reunion
J. Emmett Cook, rural mail carrier, took a day off to attend a reunion of members of the 355th Infantry, which was held at Norfolk. This was one of the active overseas units during the World War and the members enjoyed a fine reunion, reviewing old times when they were together on foreign soil, engaged in active battle with the common enemy of that time. During the time Mr. Cook was away, Kenneth West, who has been employed in the Burlington shops at Havelock, but is now temporarily off duty due to a mashed toe, looked after the delivery of the mail.

Raze Historical Building
The building which has been owned by Mrs. Skeen, and which was used by the late W. D. Skeen for his harness shop for many years before his death, is being torn down, and the salvaged material will be used in repair work on buildings owned by the purchaser. Thus, another landmark passes out of existence in the community.

Protecting Masonic Temple
On account of a peculiar drainage situation at the Masonic temple, water seeps down beside the foundation walls in time of rain and makes its way through the foundation. As a result the basement is too damp to be used and the foundation itself is weakened. Steps have been taken to remedy this situation, some of the work having already been done, and in this manner it is hoped to save the building from material damage. During the dry weather of the last few years, the condition has not been bad, and like the house of the Arkansas Traveler, where the roof didn't need fixing when it wasn't raining, it was allowed to draw on until now, when a well directed effort is being made to remedy it before fall rains set in.

Work on O Street Progressing
Journal readers will be interested in knowing that the work of black top paving the ten mile gap on the O street highway in this vicinity is progressing very nicely. The black top base has been placed from Fort George station west to the end of the concrete slab, a distance of four miles, and the grading is now completed on the east six mile stretch, insuring completion of the entire project in the course of a few weeks, and the road being open to traffic this fall.

The detours have proven quite inconvenient also to local traffic, especially in time of rain, but through traffic from the north has been routed through Murray and Elmwood, thus giving them the advantage of gravel all the way.

It will be a pleasure to have the highway open again, with an all paved road into Lincoln.

Since the re-routing of U. S. 34 a great deal of transcontinental traffic has come this way, as many people from the east bound for an outing in the west have desired to pass through Lincoln and see our splendid capitol building, which is one of the outstanding ones in the entire nation. A glance at the visitors' register there shows people from a dozen up to twenty and thirty different states registered.

It is this loss of traffic and that over U. S. 30, now routed through Blair and Fremont that is irking Omahaans greatly.
