Recovers Slowly

His heart in good shape once more, Christian Bentzel, 16, of York, Pa., is shown in a Philadelphia hospital recovering from a delicate heart operation by which doctors saved his life. He'll be as good as new in a few weeks.

Weichel was telling the ladies on herself at club Wednesday night might be classified good enough for the "Believe it or Not" column. Mrs. Weichel was telling that after she retired Tuesday evening, she became so choked up with a cold that she decided to get up and get the mentholatum. Believing she knew just where to pick up the jar, she did not turn on the light, but proceeded to "grease" her chest, throat, nose and temples with a generous supply of cold dope and retired, hoping for immediate relief. For some little while Mrs. Weichel believed she was getting that relief, until she began to notice her skin was becoming dry and prickly. Investigation revealed that she had used by mistake a jar of paste which her granddaughter, Iona, had set beside the medicine jar.

ACCUSE CHRYSLER CORPORATION

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21 (UP)—The United Automobile Workers union today warned Walter P. Chrysler that it would file formal charges "forthwith" accusing the Chrysler corporation of violating the Wagner labor relation act. The warning was issued in a letter to the corporation's founder and board chairman in New York. Chrysler officials here made no comment upon the union's letter and indicated they would have nothing to say until the letter had been received at the offices of the automobile manufacturer. Larry S. Davidow, attorney for the UAWA said that "within a week's time we expect to file formal charges with the regional labor board." The union's action marked its first open break with the company since Chrysler and John L. Lewis, chairman of the CIO signed peace pact last April 6 ending a 30-day strike. Officers of the CIO affiliate charged the corporation with "bad faith," discrimination and promotion of a company union.

BARGE LINE PROTESTS

OMAHA, Oct. 22 (UP)—The federal barge line today registered a formal objection to the construction of the proposed new bridge connecting Omaha and Council Bluffs to Dodge street on grounds that it would be a serious hazard to navigation. The objection was voiced by E. J. Williams, terminal superintendent for the barge line at Kansas City at a meeting called by Captain H. B. Loper of the army engineers corps having charge of work being done to make the Missouri river navigable. A bridge south of the present Douglas street bridge would be much more preferable to navigation interests, Williams stated, and he indicated there would be no objection if the original plan to build the bridge at Farnam street were carried out.

"Mary" Really Bill

Arrested in New York as a "woman" on a disorderly conduct charge, "Mary Baker" proved to be William Richeson, 27, who for the past seven years has been masquerading as a woman because he "got a kick out of fooling people." He had worked as a waitress for several years and was once a matron in an Albany hospital.

a revolving knuckle in the mechanism, and with the gas engine and a tight belt transmitting plenty of power to the mechanism, he was drawn down over the revolving rod and had there been room would have been whipped around the rod. His clothes were wound in so tightly that one arm was badly lacerated and the ribs on the left side of his body torn loose from the spinal column. Just when things looked the worst for him and with no one near to shut off the power, the engine belt flew off the pulley as the pressure became stronger. The strain was so great, in fact, that the jacket and shirt he was wearing were torn to shreds.

After the belt flew off he tried to call for help, but could not get his breath, so tightly was he wound into the mechanism. He was able to tear some of the remaining garments until he could breathe and call feebly for help, but with the gas engine running, his father, John C. Rauth, who was in the barn scarcely a hundred feet away, was unable to hear him for some time. Finally he heard the faint call for help and rushed to where the son was held so tightly, whipping out his knife and cutting the clothing to release Herman from his predicament.

A Weeping Water physician dressed his injuries and he has been confined to his bed. He is required to lie on his back until the torn ribs on the left side can knit back into place, and although hopes are held that they will in due time, he is in a very serious condition at the time this is written, but, nevertheless, very thankful that he escaped death.

GENERAL FUND IMPROVES

LINCOLN, Oct. 22 (UP)—The danger that the state general fund might become depleted to such an extent that State Treasurer Walter H. Jensen would have to register warrants was believed to have passed today. Jensen credited approximately $29,000 to the general fund bringing it to more than $125,000 as a result of District Judge J. H. Broady's decision this week releasing $1,112,675 in impounded gasoline taxes. Of that amount Jensen credited $1,083,000 to the state assistance fund and the balance of about $29,000 to the general fund. Additionally he received a letter from Assistant Attorney General Edwin C. Vail who wrote that it would be legal to invest money from prominent state funds in general fund warrants in the event the general fund becomes insolvent. If that were done the state would escape payment of interest on the warrants.

LICENSES GO SLOW

LINCOLN, Oct. 21 (UP)—Only a little more than a third of Nebraska's automobile drivers had applied for driving permits up to October 16. R. W. Culwell, director of the state motor vehicle registration division announced today. Applications accepted on that date totaled 230,700 but Culwell said he expected 600,000 applications to be made before the first of the year. The motor vehicle division began issuing the new licenses September 1. The dead line is November 30. Culwell said approximately 2,500 applications had been rejected principally because of poor vision. In many cases applicants were able to correct the trouble and obtained licenses later.

Farley Parries Questions as to Presidency

Says Popularity of President Roosevelt Still at High Mark with the People.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22 (UP)—James A. Farley ended his California visit today parrying questions about a third term for President Roosevelt with the retort: "You'll have to ask the boss about that."

"I've never discussed it with the president," the postmaster general and democratic national chairman said. "All I can say is that President Roosevelt is just as popular now as he was last November."

Farley resumed his national tour today, heading for Fremont, Neb. His special car left here by the Union Pacific railway at 10:30 last night.

He told 1,200 southern California democrats last night that Mr. Roosevelt was "the staunchest defender of the constitution," and he ridiculed both the idea of any democratic party rift and all predictions of approaching hard times.

"The trombones of our political enemies croak out wails and warnings of impending disasters that are not going to happen," Farley said, regarding forecasts of another economic slump.

"Unable to deny the presence of prosperity, they say it will not last."

FINDS HIMSELF DEAD

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 23 (UP)—Charles McDaniel came home from the Alaskan mines after an absence of nine years, in which he never got around to write the family.

He called his brother, Laurence, by telephone.

"Hello, Laurence, how's dad?"

"He's dead, died a year ago," the brother replied. "Who is this, Charlie?"

"Yes."

"You can't talk to me, Charlie, you're dead too."

"The hell I am."

When the brothers were reunited, Charles learned that only a week ago Judge Fred J. Frankenhoff had sustained a petition presuming his death after a nine-year absence. The petition was in connection with the settling of the estate of the father, Daniel L. McDaniel.

Charles went to the court house to see about being "resurrected!" State Senator Emmett Crouse, an attorney, said he would ask the court to set aside the death decree.

"Our position in the Mediterranean is simply this—we intend to maintain the right-of-way on this main arterial road," Eden told the crowded house of commons.

The foreign secretary opened an important debate in foreign affairs as parliament reconvened after the summer recess. Both the Chinese-Japanese war and the civil war in Spain were discussed. Regarding Spain Eden expressed guarded optimism over an eventual solution, hailing Premier Mussolini's acceptance of a "token" withdrawal of foreign volunteers as a move which averted a crisis.
