

Plattsmouth Sailor Finds Sea Life Fine

Oliver Taylor With Pacific Fleet Enjoys Service Very Much on the Great War Boats.

Oliver Taylor, who has been here enjoying a furlough from his duties in the navy, has found that there is much opportunity for advancement and success in the navy if one applies himself to the task and the young man has proven this in many ways. He has served three years and three months in the service, the first months of this being at the naval base at San Pedro and later assigned to the New Mexico, one of the battle ships and he is at the present time on the "California," the flagship of the fleet.

The day on the war vessels starts early, reveille being sounded at 5:30 in the morning and followed by routine clean up until the breakfast hour which is at 7:30 and from then on through the day the sailors carry on their lines of duty. Dinner is served at 12 and the evening meal at 5 o'clock with taps at 10.

Oliver is a third class petty officer, signal division and his work is that of communication with the other vessels of the fleet by the semaphore system with flags or the international Morse code by light signals. Diversion on the war ships consists of movies every evening, smokers and boxing and wrestling matches, all of these being very popular.

During his service Oliver has had the opportunity of taking two trips to the Hawaiian islands and on one of which he had the opportunity of a fine visit over the islands. He also was on trips that the fleet made to the Panama canal and skirting the west coast of South America where the crossing of the equator was celebrated by the arrival of King Neptune on board and the proper initiation of all sailors.

The young sailor is returning Monday to duty and in a few days will be back on the "California" and ready for any task that may come.

Howells Man Winner of State Husking Contest

Louis Korte Is Named as Winner of Nebraska State Contest at Kearney Thursday.

KEARNEY, Neb., Oct. 29 (UP)—Louis Korte of Howells, Stanton county, is the new Nebraska corn-husking champion.

Under a broiling sun at the Col. C. R. Arbutle farm, Korte defeated 29 county champions, husking 27,788 bushels in the allotted 80 minutes of work. The mark fell short of the state record of 30.92 bushels set by Henry Sorensen of Washington county in 1932, and of the national record of 41.5 bushels set by Elmer Carlson of Iowa in 1935.

Harold Korth of Randolph, Cedar county, was close behind the winner, his net total being 27,544 bushels.

Sherman Hendricksen, Lincoln, Lancaster county, last year's champion, was forced to take third position with a net of 25,811. Fourth place went to Martin Bucholz of Bancroft, Cuming county, 25,482 bushels and fifth to Lee Morrow of Dawson county, with 24,935.

Korte and possibly Korth will represent Nebraska at the national championships to be held next month near Marshall, Mo.

In the contest here hybrid corn grown on irrigated land was husked for the first time in history of corn-husking championship tournaments. The Arbutle field yielded about 59 bushels to the acre.

Korte's bride of four days, the former Freda Romm, 19, watched her 31-year-old husband win the title. Korte farms 240 acres of his own.

ITS IN THE RECORD

Not with pen or printers ink can any record of service be fully recorded. For back of such record is sacrifice, toil, perseverance, intelligence, ability, determination, consecration and money spent in preparation.

So it is with the church organist. During the early years of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Plattsmouth, Conrad Schlater, a devout Catholic, played the organ for the services. That organ is still in the church, a mute testimony to the courage and Christian faith of the pioneers. Could it speak it might tell use of praise for all, sympathy for the sorrowing forgiveness for the sinistek soul.

Eugene Tighe, a grandson of Conrad Schlater has composed the music and words of a song dedicated to the memory of his grandfather. This song will be used in connection with the 80th anniversary of the First Methodist Episcopal church. This will be sung Sunday evening, October 31st at the church service.

Some of the other organists that have served the church are: Alice Jean, Nellie Black, Oliver Jones, Ola Barnes, Margaret Davis, Gerald Drew, Minnie Lillejeberg, Mrs. Andy Campbell, Edgar H. H. Westcott.

RULES ON PEDDLERS

LINCOLN, Oct. 28 (UP)Assistant Attorney General Bert L. Overcash warned today that peddlers of agricultural products who attempt to evade the new itinerant merchants law by posing as employees of producers would be prosecuted.

The law, Overcash pointed out in his letter to Director Louis Bucholz of the state department of agriculture and inspection, allows the producer of farm products to market his wares without restriction. Overcash said that does not mean that a peddler can masquerade as the agent of the producer and escape payment of the license fee.
