

Spicy Cookie Treat

With crisp, cold winter days making hot drinks and spicy cookies most appealing, Walnut Molasses Bars are a special treat. Few cookies can equal their fragrance and flavor as they come freshly baked, right out of the oven. One of the favorable points about these bars is that the dough can be made up ahead of time and kept in the refrigerator to be baked on short notice.

When the youngsters come home from school or play, these delicious bars will quickly appease their appetites and renew their energy. Served with hot coffee or chocolate, the bars provide a delightful late evening refreshment after cards or conversation.

WALNUT MOLASSES BARS

- 1/4 cup butter
  - 1/4 cup lard
  - 1/2 cup boiling water
  - 1/2 cup molasses
  - 1 teaspoon soda
  - 1/2 cup brown sugar
  - 3 cups flour
  - 1/2 tablespoon ginger
  - 1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg
  - 1/2 teaspoon cloves
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - Chopped walnut meats
- Four water over butter and lard, then add sugar, molasses mixed with soda, flour, salt, and spices. Blend well and chill thoroughly. Pat out dough in a greased shallow baking pan. Sprinkle with nut meats and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 20 minutes. While hot, cut into strips.

COLLEGE SEALS LOSS AFTER 78 GAME VICTORIES

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (UP)—The fate of the nation's best collegiate basketball record—78 consecutive victories—will rest this season in the hands of a comparatively inexperienced John Tarleton college team.

For four years, the John Tarleton quintet has kept its record unblemished although it often has engaged teams from senior colleges. Coach W. J. Wisdom fears that the remarkable record is due to be ended this season. The entire starting lineup of a year ago is missing; the center tip has been eliminated to give smaller teams the advantage, and opponents will have as an extra incentive the chance to mar Tarleton's record.

A letterman guard, a center, and a forward will form the nucleus of this year's club, with four squadmen of last year and a dozen rangy first-year men.

Cass county has no bonded indebtedness, as, like the state, we have paid cash for our hard surfaced roads and other improvements as we went.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, December 26th

By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Christian Consecration"

Phil. 1:12-26.

It is surely a fit closing of a year's study that the student has reached that point in his Christian career where he is ready with Paul to surrender completely, his all to Christ. Of course such a life as this lesson pictures cannot even be thought of, unless a man is a believer in the Lord Jesus Christ.

So many get the impression that a surrendered life, or a consecrated life, is one of severe restriction and impoverishment, whereas the truth is, it is the richest, fullest, deepest, most satisfying life that any man can ever know.

To "consecrate" means to set apart for a holy use; while "sanctification" means making fit for holy use. In our lesson study of Mark 1:16-20, we see four Galilean fishermen, set apart for definite Christian service; then in Paul's Epistle to the Philippians he shows how the greatest of all Christians manifested in his own heart and life what a truly consecrated person should be.

We note in the call of the four fishermen the different types: Simon, the impulsive and wayward; James, the principle which masters passion and makes it strong; James was a poet, dreamer, attractive; while John was quiet, retiring, unknown; Andrew was the "finder," he found Simon Peter, his brother. That was a great "find." A consecrated man, but made fit on Pentecost, sanctified for real service. All were busy men when called; no lazy man has a place in the Kingdom. These men were called, not for a different sphere of work, or to a higher plane of living, but to "follow Christ," who promised them that if they did, he himself would make what they ought to be. "Fishers of men" is what they ought to be. Andrew brought Simon, John brought James, Philip brought Nathanael. Have we ever brought a soul to Christ?

Now we look to the Apostle Paul and see his devotion to the Christians at Philippi. Lack of space forbids an analysis of this letter. The writer is in Rome in prison. By the love of God that constrained him, he does not find the prison dull, but he finds time to write his Epistles, and preach every day, so that he can say to the church at Philippi, "Everything is turning out fine, the Gospel is going right on, Rome and envirens are saturated with the Gospel; the enemies thought to stop my work, but they just helped to spread the word; timid brethren are becoming bolder to preach the word. Rejoice and again I say rejoice with me." That is the tenor of the whole letter. The unselfish devotion and consecration of this "firebrand" is seen in every verse of the lesson. Would to God that the ministry and laymen were so filled with the spirit of Jesus Christ as Paul was, heaven would rejoice and hell would tremble, and the Kingdoms of Earth would soon be the Lord's. How many men magnify, exalt, extol, glorify Christ in their bodies? It is through the body and through it alone, with rare exceptions, that we can glorify and bear witness to the Lord, by speaking, by writing, by doing things to make others comfortable. "For to me to live in Christ"—no phrase of seven words could be formed more perfectly, expressing the ideal, and the motive and the secret of Paul's life than these. When a person is able to say what Paul has written here, that person is everything which the Lord Jesus Christ desires that one to be.

The two carbon electrodes of the arc lamp are brought into relationship, and the result is light of brilliant intensity. These two terms, "me" and "Christ" are brought into relationship, and I become alive unto God. This is the only contact which justifies the usage of the term "life." Paul yielded his body, his mind, his heart, his time, his strength, his affections, all to Christ, who filled every one of them with divine strength and purity. Consequently, the more completely he served Christ, the more satisfying his life became. To die brings one into even more precious relationship to Christ. The fellowship with Christ which makes life so blessed will then be complete. Many are and many have lived this joyous, happy life of full consecration.

Consecrated, Lord, to Thee: Take my hands and let them move At the impulse of Thy love. Take my will and make it thine. It shall be no longer mine; Take my heart, it is thine own; It shall be Thy royal throne.

MAY A BLESSED, HAPPY NEW YEAR BE YOURS.—L. J. N.
