

Auburn Man in Race for First District Post

Irvin Lechlitter to Make Race as Strict Supporter of Policies of Roosevelt Administration.

Irvin Lechlitter, of Auburn, has filed as a democratic candidate in the August primaries for United States congressman from the first district. Mr. Lechlitter is the second candidate to file, the present incumbent having filed in January.

Lechlitter was born on a farm near Auburn, and has always lived in the first district. He received his education at Auburn high school and the University of Nebraska, and later received a J. D. degree, with honors, from the George Washington University law school, in Washington, D. C. He will resign from a position in the law library of congress in Washington in order to actively conduct his campaign.

Lechlitter's platform is based on strong support of the policies of the Roosevelt administration. He advocates the extension of farm benefits and security, strongly endorsing the "ever normal granary" principle of the present farm law. He supports the adoption of federal wage and hour legislation, work relief which gives benefits of a permanent character, retention of the principle of the social security law, and extension of the "yard stick" policy, which is exemplified by region planning along the lines of the TVA. He is a proponent of governmental reorganization, advocating the abolishment of bureaus and commissions no longer necessary or needed. His foreign policy is one of preparedness, sufficient only to protect this country against foreign aggression.

In a formal statement, Lechlitter said, "I am entering the democratic primary for congress because of a profound conviction that the policies of President Roosevelt are sound and that a majority of the people of Nebraska wish to see those policies put into effect."

PLATTERS AT GLENWOOD

Tuesday afternoon members of the Plattsmouth high school track team were over to Glenwood to take part in the invitation meet at which a number of schools were represented.

The local relay team which has made an excellent showing at the meets this season, were unfortunate in having Ronald Rebal, one of the team injured in a fall. Rebal was running to pass the baton to John Jacobs when he struck a soft section of the track and fell. He was bruised to some extent by the cinders and the force of the fall, but not seriously.

Joe York, who has developed into one of the local track stars, took the high jump.

Allan White who was an outstanding figure in the Ashland meet, took second in the 220 and also a second in the discus and javelin.

Warren Reed was second in the shot put to add to the Plattsmouth showings.

The team will go to Clarinda, Iowa, Friday to compete in the meet there and where they will meet the Iowa School for the deaf relay team, one of the strong high school groups in west Iowa.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

One of the social events which marks the drawing near of the close of the school year will be the banquet tendered by the juniors to the class of 1938. This will be held on Saturday evening, May 7th at the American Legion building and promises to be a most colorful event for the young people.

The juniors are busy with their plans and will start the last of the week with the final decorative touches on the hall.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

From Tuesday's Daily—
This afternoon Earl Freeman, charged with forgery and also under the habitual criminal act, was arraigned in district court before Judge W. W. Wilson.

The defendant entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and the bond was set by the court at $2,000, in failure to supply which he was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

To Appear In Concert

LETTER FROM FRANK MILLER

In sending membership dues to the local Legion post, of which he is a charter member, Frank A. J. Miller, a resident of Barracks No. 9 at the U. S. Veterans' Facility at Wadsworth, Kansas, says:

"They are restoring lots of the boys to health now. I guess a couple of hundred went down the road and don't know where they are going—but are on their way. They expect to restore 800 men out of the hospital and barracks in the next few months. I may be going myself.

They have to cut expenses and they start in on us boys. Anyway they have to cut a million dollars."

Frank sends regards to all the old friends here, mentions W. O. Reeves going to the Lincoln Veterans hospital and Garold Holecomb's visit in Plattsmouth, saying he would like to be here to attend a Legion post meeting. The past year, patients at the Wadsworth Facility made 50,000 memorial poppies.
