"DON DEAR"

(Dedicated to Don Warner)

I
Don Dear! even though your life was a short one it was a very happy one. Even though you left behind The little wife of your dreams Remember, love like her's Could never die.

II
Don Dear! In your other world Don't forget we all think of you. Your life might have just begun. In Mae's heart it will never end. For when you left us all last night She kissed your fevered lips And left her tear stains on your face.

III
Don Dear! Happy Birthday, Though it may be a sad one for us I offer a toast to Don. May he rest in peace and quiet In the place where God thought best That he should rest his weary head. God bless you! Don Dear! —Harriett Heaton.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Oldham were in Lincoln last week attending a lecture given by Miss Edith Hublin, who is the editor of a paper at Los Angeles which she has had charge of for many years and is claimed to be the oldest continuous weekly publication in America. It has been published for the past 125 years. Following the lecture, which was on temperance, they dined with the speaker and returned home, while she departed for her home at Los Angeles.

W. L. Hobson Visiting Here.

A former citizen of Weeping Water who made his home here for many years and but recently moved to California to live, W. L. Hobson, arrived home Sunday for a visit with his many old time friends and also to look after some business. He will remain here about a month, and in the meantime Richard P. Hobson and wife will take a much needed vacation. Mr. Hobson likes the west coast very well but still remembers the old home town, Weeping Water, and the friends.

Makes Nice Improvement.

The new awnings which have been placed in front of the business houses of Chris J. Elgaard and Knude Jensen and the painting of the house has indeed put a bit of pleasing color in this part of the business district. The painting was done by the enterprising firm of Henegar and Bobbitt.

Home From Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Maxfield and daughter, who have been spending some two weeks in the west enjoying the cooling breezes of the Rockies and as well visiting other places of interest, arrived home last Sunday. Win Game at Plattsmouth.

The Weeping Water ball team, who play both baseball and kittenball were in Plattsmouth last Friday evening where they crossed bats with the CYO kittenball team, winning by the score of 22 to 3. It would be putting it mildly to say the Weeping Water lads were well pleased with their success.

Looks Good for Weeping Water.

Frank E. Woods has been assured that the grant for the new community building by the government will be completed and all arrangements made that work on the building may be started by the middle of August. The new building will cost $42,000 and will be modern in all its appointments, providing a meeting place for all civic and public gatherings such as political meetings and other gatherings where a large capacity is required. The provision for banquets and conventions will be looked after so that there will be no better place in the county for such gatherings.

Touring the Northwest.

Early Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. Leslie J. Wiles and George Domingo and wife departed with their autos for the Black Hills where they will spend some time in the cooler climate of that beautiful and rugged section of the United States, and after which they will travel over into Canada and travel on west to Vancouver and down into Washington and Oregon, where at Pullman, Washington they will visit the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiles, Clifford Wiles who is in school there, and as well at Logan, Utah with their son, Wayne Wiles and wife, where both are completing their education in a special course in the school there. It is the intention also for the party to take a boat from Vancouver to Alaska and see that country near the top of the world. They expect to be away for a month or more.

Not Just Like It.

Forty-two years ago this week, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 25, 26 and 27, devastating hot winds poured over this country from the arid lands of New Mexico and southern Colorado, which scorched the corn and burned it up. These were the hot winds of 1894 which is so well remembered by farmers of the west, and in fact by everyone. Today, Tuesday, but the date coming on Wednesday, July 26, was the center of the searing winds and the following day, Thursday, July 27 was the final touch to the crops and vegetation of all kinds. One could light the corn with a match. After the third day when all vegetation was completely scorched, the weather moderated slightly but was hot for a long time, with no rain until September 2nd when rains came and was followed by more and in the fall nice grass sprang up and quite a bit of green stuff grew. But that was a year of no corn crop in the mid-western states, extending over to beyond the Mississippi river on the east.

Very Enthusiastic Swimming Class.

One hundred of the young lads and lassies of Weeping Water took advantage of the Red Cross learn to swim week. The Red Cross provided the means for all who were not proficient in the art to become so.

Should Have Abundant Exhibits.

The time for the Cass county fair at Weeping Water is rapidly rolling around and with the coming of rains just now to help along the corn crop and other farm products, we should have much to exhibit and also to be thankful for. It is time that all expecting to have any exhibits, either farm crops, fruits of any kind or stock, and poultry, get the matter well in hand and produce the very best. This should be a year when Weeping Water, the home of the fair, should be the genial host and hostess and care for this annual exhibition in the grand manner which it has been the practice of this city to do in the past.
