Chas. W. Bryan Here to Speak in His Interests

Candidate by Petition Tells of His Record and Promise of Future in State Government.

Charles W. Bryan, who was for three terms governor of Nebraska, now a candidate by petition for the position, made a visit to Plattsmouth and Cass county Monday afternoon to bring his message and the issues as he has presented them.

Mr. Bryan has lost none of his vigor in the years that he has been in private life and gave a very able presentation of his position and the issues. The advent of Mr. Bryan into the campaign has brought out forcefully the fact that he has made the issue that the other candidates have had to contend—that of the $30 old age assistance and the $5,000 homestead exemption.

Mr. Bryan spoke at an open air meeting at 5th and Main streets and in his remarks criticized the present administration for the large number of persons on the public payroll, boards and patrols that had been created in the years since Mr. Bryan had left office. Mr. Bryan stated that he expected if elected to eliminate many of these to cut the state expense and reduce it to a figure that would permit the lowering of the taxes to the residents of the state.

By economies and the placing of less of the funds in the highway material and machinery the former governor would find funds to match that of the federal government so that $30 could be paid to the aged in the state.

The homestead exemption plan would make it possible for the farmers and home owners of the state to again own and carry on their own homes.

From here Governor Bryan returned to Omaha and later to Nebraska City where he spoke

DEMOCRAT

National Recognition for ATTORNEY GENERAL RICHARD C. HUNTER

NEWSWEEK—an outstanding National Magazine said on Oct. 17: "Behind the Old Age Tax Association, a mysterious group won 80,000 signers to a petition for an amendment to legalize slot machines, licensing them at $1,000 so as to provide funds for raising the pensions of 26,000 citizens now getting $16 a month. Many ministers signed the petition, believing the 'coin-operated devices' mentioned were simple gum and candy vending machines. But the State Attorney General (Richard C. Hunter) smoked out the real design of the promoters and rephrased the petition to read 'machines of chance,' thus holding the fight to the issue of 'one-armed bandits.'"

ATTORNEY GENERAL RICHARD C. HUNTER has a record of outstanding first-term accomplishment and fearless law enforcement that should appeal to every citizen of this state.

The basis of sound government is to see that taxes are never levied upon a people in amount beyond their ability to pay. Taxes have risen in the past 20 years out of all proportion to the income of the people of the State of Nebraska. The farmer and business man MUST have better representation in our legislature if we are to have economy and efficiency in our state government.
