Poland Prepares to Absorb Jewish People

Will Try and Care for Thousands That Are Banished From Germany Back to Poland.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 29 (UP)—Poland probably must accept and absorb thousands of Jews from Germany, foreign office circles admitted reluctantly today.

Negotiations to persuade Berlin to rescind its mass deportation orders against Polish Jews living in Germany made no progress. Germany it was declared was obdurate in the point that Poland's new citizenship law, requiring Polish Jews abroad to have their passports validated by tomorrow, means that those who refuse to do so will lose their citizenship and become a permanent burden on Germany.

It was estimated that 9,000 Jews are waiting at the borders. Most of the refugees according to information in Warsaw are already in Polish territory or in the so-called no man's land between the citizens on the German and Polish sides of the frontier. It was believed eventually Poland will be forced to take something like 7,000 and more later.

TO RETAIN MASKS

LONDON, Oct. 29 (UP)—Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, said today that civilians who received gas masks during last month's war crisis should keep them. He told local authorities that the situation would be reviewed in six months. Containers to preserve the masks will be distributed as rapidly as they are manufactured. If they are carefully preserved, Hoare added, the masks should remain "in serviceable condition for a number of years."

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 28 (UP)—Senator Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., arose last night to speak at a democratic rally in Syracuse.

"My friends and fellow republican candidates, or — democratic candidates," he began.

Even Governor Lehman joined in the laughter.

London Talks of Sir Neville, Garter Knight

Honor Considered Likely for Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's Peace Efforts.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
(Copyright, 1938, by United Press)

The backwash from Europe's war crisis is still turning up odds and ends such as the history of the black patch over Czech Premier Jan Syrový's right eye, the wailing of Paris taxi drivers whose cabs were damaged in government service and the dreadful fear of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for airplane travel.

Stories of the crisis will be popping up for many weeks and important phases of the war-or-peace negotiations probably will not be known for years, but there are two reports going around that time is sure to catch up with soon.

The first is that Chamberlain is going to be made a Knight of the Garter. There's a hitch to that, as only the prime minister can recommend candidates to the king. But that morality might be overcome if the recommendation were made by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, on some occasion when he is acting prime minister.

The second concerns Georges Bonnet, the French foreign minister, who has taken most of the criticism for the collapse of France's Central European alliances, while Premier Edouard Daladier has won the cheers that France sent up when war was averted. There have been rumors that Bonnet, former ambassador to Washington, eventually would be a political sacrifice.

One of the better stories of the crisis that were crowded out by the march of great events concerned Chamberlain's visit to King George at Balmoral Castle. The king heard his prime minister's report and then expressed regret that Chamberlain should hurry back to London.

"Why not stay on for a morning's fishing?" the king asked. "I could then send you back to London in my airplane in time for the cabinet meeting."

Chamberlain shook his head in horror.

"The thought of flying terrifies me," he remarked. A few days later he was dashing back and forth across Europe by airplane—often in rough weather—in an historic attempt to prevent war.

The French mobilization was considered a highly successful test of the general staff plans for quick rallying of defensive forces, but Frenchmen from industrialists to taxicab drivers paid a high price for it. The cost to the government alone was estimated at approximately $300,000,000.

For about two weeks only war materials were at full production and most other business and industry was paralyzed. Thousands of automobiles and horses were requisitioned. Vincennes forest became an open air garage for about 20,000 automobiles. Owners of requisitioned horses got bills of transfer which they cashed at banks, but owners of automobiles got only a receipt. Numbers were stenciled on the cars and many who are getting their machines back complain that the paint or motor has been damaged. The Paris taxicab drivers are particularly vociferous in their complaints, but the government need pay only for cars that suffered extreme damages.

Gen. Syrový, the new Czech premier, is famous as a man of few words who could cover his chest (but doesn't) with medals won on the battlefield. He is married, has no children, lives simply on the outskirts of Prague, enjoys a glass or two of beer. At 53, he is still physcall fit, although overweight.

He lost his right eye in 1917 while fighting the Germans on the Russian front. Three days later he was back at his post. The Czechs kept on fighting after the war and Syrový, then a lieutenant, rose to command of an army of 70,000 Czechs in Russia. It was then he led his troops 5,000 miles through hostile, revolution-torn Russia and Siberia to Vladivostok. It was a military epic and gave the Czechs a reputation as great fighters.

The Czech triumph ended with Syrový a general and one of the outstanding military heroes of the post-war republic, but often it was said he might not have achieved such fame had it not been for the loss of his eye. The black patch he wore over his right eye during the fighting in Russia reminded the Czech soldiers of the Hussite hero of the Middle Ages, old Biska, and was given credit for inspiring great deeds as well as strengthening Syrový's leadership.

After two years of fighting Syrový's armies reached Vladivostok and the man whom fate was to make premier at a time when Europe's four great powers were agreeing to dismember of his country received a telegram from the British wartime prime minister, David Lloyd George.

It said: "We shall never forget."

FIRE FOR TELLING STORIES

WENONAH, N. J., Oct. 28 (UP)—Olice Jordan, first grade teacher in the Wenonah schools for 20 years planned to appeal to the state commission of education today to overrule her discharge for allegedly telling "horror stories" to her pupils.

Miss Jordan was dismissed last night after a series of hearings at which parents of 42 pupils said their children were becoming "nervous wrecks" and suffering from nightmares.

One story allegedly told by the teacher concerned the pen knife slaying of a woman by her son because she had reprimanded him for being absent from school. Miss Jordan said she had told the story because one boy carried a knife, another had a "bad" temper and the group had been "playing rough" during a recess period.

ENGLISH NOBLE ROBBED

LONDON, Oct. 29 (UP)—The home of the Earl and Countess of Carrick, just returned to England after their marriage in New Jersey, Oct. 18, was robbed early today. The burglars took a quantity of the countess's jewelry.

The Earl of Carrick married Mrs. Margaret Power Drum, of Center Island, L. I., at Franklin Park, N. J. They sailed for England Oct. 20 in the liner Queen Mary.

The earl was divorced in England last March from the former Mrs. Marion C. Edwards, daughter of Daniel C. Donoghue of Philadelphia. The present countess, a daughter of Charles B. Power of Helena, Mont., had been divorced from Frank Drum.

HAS FAITH IN IOWA

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 29 (UP)—Horace Stuck of Iowa City is one man who hasn't lost faith in the University of Iowa football team.

Stuck today distributed 113 tickets—$300 worth—to his employees, managers of the 10 fruit stores in eastern Iowa. All were for the Iowa-Purdue game today.

A rabid football fan, Stuck declared: "This is to show that there is one concern in the state which still believes in Iowa football."

President's Board Rejects Railway Plea

Recommend That Notices Be Withdrawn for 15 Per Cent Wage Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (UP)—President Roosevelt's emergency fact-finding board today rejected the demand of railway management for a 15 per cent wage cut affecting 960,000 workers.

The board lists five main reasons for recommending that the railroads withdraw and cancel the wage cut notices.

These were:

- The wages of railroad labor are not high even as compared with wages in other comparable industries.
- A horizontal reduction of wages on a national scale would not meet the financial emergency of the industry, since the savings would not be distributed merely to the needy roads.
- A wage reduction in the railroad industry would run counter to the trend of wage rates in industry generally.
- The financial distress of the carriers which has obtained since October 1937 when the last wage increases were granted, is as yet a short term situation. As such, it cannot be regarded as grounds for a wage reduction, especially in view of present indications of an improvement in the business of the carriers.
- In the light of these findings the board concludes that the proposal of the carriers for a reduction of the wages of railway labor should not be pressed and recommends that the carriers withdraw and cancel the notices which would put such a reduction into operation as of December 1, 1938.

President Roosevelt who received the report personally from the board headed by Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of North Carolina had no immediate comment. The White House announced, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would meet Monday with President John J. Paley of the Association of American Railroads and with President George M. Harrison of the Railway Labor Executives association.

SAVE CITY HALL ROBBERY

PEABODY, Mass., Oct. 29 (UP)—A $25c handout was credited today with having averted a $22,000 city hall safe robbery.

The quarter was given by Police Captain James F. Murphy to an ex-convict who promised "valuable information" in exchange for coffee and sandwich money and assistance in finding a job.

After finishing his meal the man gave Murphy a slip of paper on which was written the correct combination to the collector's safe in city hall. He and others had planned to burglarize the safe, but Murphy's kindness changed his mind. The safe contained $22,000.
