The Nativity Reproduced.

At the Congregational church as a special Christmas feature the Nativity is being restored with the cave stable with the manger and the infant therein, with the feed and the animals. Just how they are created we are not certain, but the scene is tried to be made realistic, which will be very educational as to the conditions when the Saviour was born. To add to the interest in the coming Christmas season, it is being considered to mount a loud speaker on top of the church building, through which Christmas carols will be carried from the microphone and repeated from the amplifier on the roof. The movement is very unique and should enlist the interest and attention of not alone the people of Weeping Water but of those in driving a distance to Weeping Water.

WHY

ARE CREAM PRICES BEST IN LOCAL CREAMERY TERRITORY?

In territories surrounding a local creamery such as ours, cream prices are invariably higher than where there is no independent competition.

Is it not sensible, then, to admit the fact that the local creamery sets the higher price for the territory it serves, and is entitled to your business on that basis alone?

But there are other reasons why you should bring your cream to the home town independent creamery, principal of which is the employment given to people of your own community. Such pay rolls help build up home towns instead of distant cities.

We are paying 27¢ for Butterfat and will pay more if the market warrants. In some places it brings as low as 19¢ a pound.

Has Ancient Picture.

Ed Midkiff has a photo which was taken in 1912 showing his two sons, Oscar and Matt Midkiff on two ponies which they were riding and another horse ridden by Paul Schlegel. They were dressed in cowboy outfits which make a strange contrast to the pictures of today. The boys also had two calves which they used with an ox yoke, but as it did not work so well discarded it and took collars, turning them upside down, made a harness for the calves. This was on another picture, these pictures having been taken some 26 years ago.

Roll Call, Liberty Precinct.

We grow as we serve. Therefore it is our aim to bring the Red Cross into touch with the lives of a greater number of our citizens by extending to them the benefits the Red Cross is organized to give as well as through inviting them to join as members in the giving of service.

It is only because of the fine, unselfish, voluntary service which men and women throughout America have given that the American Red Cross can give such splendid accomplishments each year when our neighbors suffer from some kind of disaster or in giving first aid and life saving to thousands and aiding in public health service.

To the citizens of Liberty precinct who have so loyally and willingly given this service by renewing your membership each year the Cass County Chapter is most grateful, for it helps to carry on our own local work, county work and national work. No one dollar does so much good. As your local representative my grateful thanks and may some great blessing come to you for helping and thinking of the need of others. Sincerely, Augusta Robb.

Christmas Greetings.

Each year there is a large number of Christmas greetings that are mailed in unsealed envelopes at the third class rate of 1 1/2¢ postage, disposed of as waste, because they are undeliverable as addressed, due to removal of addressee. Such matter cannot be forwarded, consequently your Christmas greeting to a friend is never received. This would not happen if you used first class postage 3¢. First class mail may be forwarded until it does reach the addressee.

Therefore it is advisable to seal and use first class postage on your greetings for any time especially at Christmas. For under this rate messages may be written in your greeting which is so appreciated always by the receiver. No personal message is allowed in unsealed 1 1/2¢ greetings. Your friends will wonder why they do not hear from you when it may be because your message could not be forwarded to the change in address if on file at the post office.

Make it a real Christmas letter with your greeting by using first class postage, 3¢ anywhere in U. S. Locally 2¢.

It is also not advisable to place any number of seals or stickers on address side of parcel post for the Christmas mail.
