Making Hay Wagons.

The Philpots have a large amount of land in the western part of the state where they raise many cattle and feed much stock which requires much hay and roughage. To handle this they have been making a couple of large hay wagons to haul this hay. So Jack Philpot and sons have been constructing them out of some large car frames which will be sturdy and with the pneumatic tires they will be able to move as much hay as they can stack on the wagons.

Suffers Fractured Ankle.

E. L. McCartney with an uncle who was visiting from the west concluded last Friday night to visit Murray where a dance was in progress and at the entrance of the hall Mr. McCartney lost his footing which plunged him down the stairs causing a fracture of one of his ankles. The injury was so severe that he has been laid up in bed since. He is at the Kunkel hospital recuperating. While he is incapacitated he has a barber from near Eagle who has been working in Lincoln, here in charge of the barber shop.

Julian Jeanne Wiseman Better.

Little Julia Jeanne Wiseman who a week ago was taken to the Bryan Memorial hospital where she underwent an appendectomy, has been showing good improvement and was able to return home Wednesday. Little Julia Jeanne is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Wiseman, who went to Lincoln to bring the daughter home.

Miss Myrtle Wendt Better.

Miss Myrtle Wendt who was so seriously ill and was taken to the Bryan Memorial hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis. The attack was a peculiar one, which was caused by a leakage of the appendix and which would contaminate the blood stream. Following the operation the patient has been showing some recovery, although she was very seriously ill for some time. She has now recovered so that friends are allowed to see her at the hospital, which was forbidden for a time. The many friends are pleased that she is getting better.

New City Officers.

Son Gladdens Kirk Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kirk, formerly of Weeping Water, who are making their home in Lincoln, Mrs. Kirk being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Carper, were fortunate in the fact that the stork visited their home early Sunday morning, at 2:29 a. m. bringing their fourth child, a son weighing seven and three-quarters pounds, with the mother and little one doing very nicely. She had arranged for their family physician to serve during the coming of the babe, but the young man was in a hurry and arrived before the arrival of the doctor. The services of a neighbor were invoked and the ordeal was well over before the arrival of the physician.

Running a close race for the honor of being the first baby born in Lincoln during the new year was a son born at 3:53 the same morning to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Krause. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk were greatly pleased, although the fond mother had selected Mary for its name, but it did not fit. Grandmother and Grandfather John F. Carper are as happy over the arrival as anyone.

Visited at Wahoo Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGrady and Dr. and Mrs. M. U. Thomas were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Billie Stuart at Wahoo for the New Year's day. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were many years ago located at Memphis, near Wahoo, before coming to Weeping Water.

had charge of the meeting. Mrs. Ruth James acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Rihn.

The leader, Mrs. Fannie Elkenbary, introduced the two guest artists, Miss Jane Boedeker of Murray and Mrs. J. R. Pierson of Auburn, by injecting a limerick for each in the introduction. First Miss Boedeker gave two charming piano numbers which received hearty applause. She was followed by Mrs. Pierson, who gave a most comprehensive and entertaining review of one of the late books by Phyllis Battome entitled "The Mortal Storm," which will inspire many to want to read the book.

At the close of the review Miss Boedeker was then requisitioned to give an account of her year in Paris and the consequent trip with her parents during their visit abroad and her return home with them on the Normandie. This travelogue was given in such charming simplicity of manner by Miss Boedeker that she at once won the hearts of all present and they felt by her graphic description, they too had visioned the wonders of the old world.

Most of the members were present to enjoy the mental treat and the dainty luncheon served by the hostesses at the afternoon's close.

Beside the members, guests present were Mrs. Boedeker and Miss Jane of Murray, Mrs. Pierson of Auburn, Miss Smith of Blue Mound, Kansas and Mrs. W. B. Banning.

"Peter Commended and Rebuked"

Matt. 16:13-25.

Nearly two years after Jesus first called these men to be his followers, he holds an examination to find out how far they had advanced in their studies. Alone with the twelve, in northern Galilee, where he is not interrupted by the people, he wants to know the opinion of the public; what an impression his teaching and working of miracles had made on the people. The answer he received was surely disappointing to Jesus. While he spoke like no other had spoken, wrought miracles that only God could do, his teaching was with power—and the multitude ascribed to him only the deeds of some prophet—had he failed in his mission? If so, wherein had he failed? His works must testify for him. Had the word of the leaders of the Jews more weight with the people, who said his miracles were the work of the devil, than his matchless discourses?

The next question is of greater importance. "Who say ye that I am?" There was no hesitating, Peter could speak for all: "Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God."

Such knowledge can only come from God. How many there are who believe in the person of Christ, because he is a historical character who cannot be denied; no more than Herod the great or Pontius Pilot. But if a man sees no more in Jesus than a moral character, a pious teacher of good morals, he takes his stand with the orthodox Jews. He is either what he claims to be—the Son of God—or an impostor. How can anyone know that Jesus is the Son of God, the redeemer of man? By the fact that he can do what no other can do. He can forgive sin—no man can do that. How
