Wild Tales of Conditions of Early Days Told

Early Settlements Report Many Wild Stories of Sand Storms, Weather and Other Adventures.

Sand storms and cyclones, dry weather and poverty, were some of the trials besetting Nebraska pioneers. That these people were not discouraged may have been partly due to their sense of humor. Samples of this humor have been found by research workers of the Federal Writers' project, WPA, in the form of tall tales printed in early-day newspapers.

A Chadron paper, commenting on a sand storm that swept the town in 1900, said that at least the storm had one advantage. All the town carpenters had to do was place a board lengthwise in the gale and in just a few moments it would be sandpapered to the finest surface.

In writing of a cyclone out west one paper said it turned a well inside out, a celler upside down, moved a township line, blow all the staves out of a whisky barrel and left the bungalow, changed the day of the week, blew a mortgage off a farm, blew all the cracks out of a fence and knocked the wind out of a populist.

The Fremont Herald reported that a certain farmer had a large crib filled with ear corn. There was a knot-hole in the south end of the crib. When the cyclone struck the crib, said the man, the suction was so great that cob after cob was sucked through the knot-hole, leaving him a crib of shelled corn.

About the same time, a Willsonville Furnas county, paper said that it was so dry down there that the farmers had to soak their hogs to make their hoild swill, that the creek bottom was all warped out of shape and would have to be sprinkled and ironed.

In 1893 a Gering citizen felt fell called upon to praise the richness of Mitchell valley. He had purchased he said, an ordinary hog, with no promise of extraordinary growth. He drove the hog into Mitchell valley to feed. But the hog got so fat that when the man tried to take it out of the valley to market, it got stuck in the pass. He had to wait till the river froze, so he could skid the animal down to town on the ice.

Even the livestock, it seems, grow patient in Nebraska. According to one newspaper account in 1897, a mar in Dodge county went into his cow stable one night and mixed up the animal a nice mash in a box full of sawdust instead of bran. The cow, really supposing that hard times had come and they were all going to economize, meekly ate her supper, and the man never discovered his mistake until next morning when the cow led down a half gallon of turpentine, a quart of shoe pegs and bundle of lath.

Mrs. Seybert, an Old Resident, Passes Away

Lifetime Resident of Eight Mile Grove Precinct and Plattsmouth Dies Early Today

From Saturday's Daily—
 Mrs. William H. Seybert, 67, died this morning at 4:15 at her home in this city after an illness that has kept her bedfast for the greater part of the last five months and in which she has gradually grown weaker until the end.

The death of Mrs. Seybert will bring much regret to a large circle of friends over Cass county where she has spent her lifetime and where by her pleasant personality and gentle Christian character has made many friendships among those with whom she has come in contact.

Ida Helen Sayles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sayles, was born January 8, 1872, at the pioneer home of her parents on a farm just south of the present village of Cedar Creek, the family at that time living in the log house that had been erected on the homestead. Later the family moved into Cedar Creek where Mr. Sayles, the father, was for a number of years engaged in business and where the deceased lady grew to womanhood.

Mrs. Seybert was a member of the Methodist church and of the Degree of Honor.

On August 26, 1896 she was married to William H. Seybert, also a member of one of the early families of Eight Mile Grove, they making their home for many years on a farm near Cullom and later near this city. Some twelve years ago Mr. and Mrs. Seybert moved into this city and where they made their home. Mr. Seybert passed away in 1930.

Surviving the passing of this good woman there remains three children, Mrs. Honor Young and Jennings Seybert, of Dayton, Ohio and Mrs. C. A. Marshall of this city. There also survives two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Susie Fudge, of Montgomery, West Virginia, Mrs. Ruth Thomsen and County Clerk George R. Sayles of this city. There are also six grandchildren. A foster son, Matthew Dennison of Omaha also is left to mourn the passing of Mrs. Seybert. A. F. Seybert of this city is a brother-in-law and Mrs. Anna Lillie a great aunt of the deceased.

The funeral services will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the First Methodist church, Rev. J. C. Lowson officiating. The Sattler funeral home will be in charge.

DEMONSTRATE AGAINST JEWS
 MEXICO, CITY, Jan. 27 (UP)—Two men—a Mexican and a Jew—were jailed today as the begetters of anti-semitic riots which raged in the shopping district stores for hours last night.

The mob screamed "kill Jews." It was finally dispersed by policemen and firemen.

SHOW THE RIGHT SPIRIT

A group of the residents of the city who have been engaged in work on the WPA have shown the real spirit of helpfulness in the last few days. The men have donated a fund that has made possible the securing of a pair of special made glasses for J. A. Edgerton, old time resident of the city, whose eyesight has been failing and has become such that he has difficulty in getting around. This is a fine piece of work and the contributors are to be commended.
