Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, April 16th By L. Neitzel, Murdock, Neb.

"Paul Establishes Churches"

Acts 14:1-7; 19:23.

In this lesson we behold the Masterbuilder, who knew if a building is to stand, that it must have a good foundation; how carefully and painstakingly he goes to work—the foundation is Jesus Christ, the rock of ages, the corner stone. The building is to endure and stand till Jesus comes again, to take his bride home. Looking back over the centuries of time, and the storms the church has endured, how the powers of darkness have assailed her, with fire and sword, and rivers of blood have been shed by the martyrs—but all that could not halt her onward march to conquer the world for Christ.

In prophecy 3,000 years ago, the holy seer saw her in her triumphant march and calls attention to her coming. "Who is she that looked forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun and terrible as an army with banners." (S. of Sal. 6:10). It is this church Paul is establishing. What he suffered, endured and sacrificed for her he tells the world in II Cor. 11:21-33. (Please read). Why did he endure and suffer all this? Hear him again: "The love of Christ constrained us." (II Co. 5:14). Now we can take up the lesson proper and follow the builder.

In our last lesson, we saw Barnabas and Saul start out on their great adventure; the opposition they encountered in the isle of Cyprus, the home of Barnabas, and how it was overcome and the first convert, the governor, Sergius Paulus. We find them next in Antioch of Pesidia—where the church broke over her bounds, into her world-wide mission—world evangelism.

Jesus charged the apostles to "go into all the world," but in their Jewish narrowness, their "world" was the Jewish nation. While the Jews at Antioch rejected Christ and his offer of a full and free pardon from all sin, upon the only condition of repentance and faith in his name; with one bold stroke, and this changed the map of the world: "Lo, we turn to the Gentiles." The die is cast—Paul becomes the Apostle to the Gentiles—now he belongs to the world—for this work, he was called and equipped, by birth, learning and natural ability. His mental powers were astounding; his endurance in suffering miraculous; his faith in Christ boundless: "I can do all things through Christ who strengthened me." Such is the man who God had chosen, made over, and used to build his church.

Leaving Antioch, we find the missionaries in Iconium, where they work with good success; God approved of their work and granted signs and wonders to be done by their hands; the devil was not idle, soon he sowed tares among the wheat, then he created a division and succeeded in driving the preachers into another field. That is the power of the Word—it divides; people must take sides, either for or against. There is no neutral ground—either the narrow straight gate, or broad way, up or down, heaven or hell. Choose ye this day!

Threatened to be stoned—their work is not finished—their martyrdom must wait—they go to another field. Lystra and Derbe is their next stop. The experiences in these cities are well worth our time to study. A similar case to that which Peter and John dealt with, presents itself to Paul and Barnabas. The emotions of these superstitious Gentiles were stirred to their fullest depths—in one mood they would defy the apostles and treat them as Gods—in another mood they stoned Paul and left him as dead. We are reminded of the treatment of our Lord on Palm Sunday, hailed as king, while on Friday they crucify him.

But, although the preachers had to leave their work, a precious memory, we have of Lystra; it is here we find the blessed home where Paul and Barnabas found a refuge, and where Eunice and Grandmother Lois brought up a lad—Timothy—who became a great source of joy and consolation to Paul; the whole family, except the father, who was a Greek, but had died, was converted. This missionary tour, which lasted about 18 months, came to an end; with remarkable experiences in success as to conversions and suffering, and the churches which had been established, organized and properly officered—all were visited before returning and told by their spiritual father that following Christ is not the easy way, as made believe in our modern times, but we must expect "much tribulation" while walking with Christ, before we can enter into the "Joy of Our Lord."

Finally, they reach the home base, full of joy for God's leading, protection and the open to the Gentiles.

Their reception by the Mother church, their report and experiences, and their reaction will be for our next lesson.
