Displays Model Home at Fair.

Mrs. Dorothy Faulkner, now in New York, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Murty, who has visited here often, and who is one of the very best of house furnishing designers, was given charge of the exhibits of the McCreary and Son house furnishers at the World's Fair. Mrs. Faulkner was selected as head designer and designed and furnished the cottage. She not only furnished the home but made it as homelike as possible. In the living room was placed many articles which would be found in a home, such as books with cases, magazines and daily papers. The idea was to have a model home just like a home and not that square rigid look of displaying furniture and furnishings which suggest commercialism but in a true homey way. The effect was so true that an aged gentleman attending the fair seeing the magazines and easy chair entered and sat down and read the magazines on the table, after which he took the checker board and played checker solitaire. The arrangement caught the eye of many visitors to the fair for its homey atmosphere.

The cooks were kept busy supplying the needs of the hungry crowd, with an out of door stove and the kitchen range both being kept busy supplying hot food for the inner man. Each guest was presented with a potted pansy as a favor.

When breakfast was over the guests were free to wander at will about the garden, admiring the many different varieties of plants which Mr. and Mrs. Jensen have developed and are growing so successfully and, as usual getting many useful suggestions from Mr. Jensen for use in their home gardens.

Merchants Win from Fort Omaha Soldiers, 9 to 0

Locals Play Heads Up Baseball All the Way in Game—O'Donnell Hits Four Sacker.

The Plattsmouth Merchants really played heads up baseball Sunday as they defeated the Fort Omaha aggregation 9 to 0.

"Stub" Sedlak started on the mound for the Platters and worked five flawless innings, giving two singles and getting nine strikeouts. He gave way to Les Thimgan who worked the remainder of the game and he too gave two hits. Both pitchers worked with the proverbial "million dollar infield."

The Merchants had little trouble "finishing" three soldier hurlers, although they got only nine clean blows, they made them count and all were timely.

Some of the outstanding plays were: A snappy double play from Sedlak to Hayes to Ault. O'Donnell's four-bagger in the 6th inning with Hayes on the sacks, Jack's peg to the plate to cut off Omaha's only scoring bid. Every soldier that was fortunate enough to get on base was either thrown out advancing or died on base.

The hitting was done mostly by the lower third of the batting order, Brittain, B. Smith and Ault each got two safe hits apiece. Les Thimgan got a rousing double to right center for the other extra base blow other than O'Donnell's 4-ply avar. Next Sunday the victorious Merchants play Union a return game at Union.

Box score:

Table with 5 columns: Player, AB, R, H, PO, E. Rows include Phillips, Parriott, Sedlak, Hayes, O'Donnell, Chovanec, Brittain, B. Smith, Ault, Thimgan, E. Smith.
