

C. W. Motter is Speaker at Civic Meeting

Large Group at Hotel Plattsmouth Hear Fremont Chamber of Commerce Secretary in Address.

From Friday's Daily—

A very much interested and appreciative audience of local people were at the Hotel Plattsmouth last evening to attend the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and at which C. W. Motter, secretary of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce, was the chief speaker and with short talks by several local people. Mr. Motter who long has been active in positions of public contact left a real worthwhile message with his hearers.

President J. Howard Davis of the Chamber of Commerce presided and told of the purposes of the meeting in interesting the citizens in the work of the Chamber of Commerce and community upbuilding.

Mr. Davis introduced a number of school directors who had been invited as special guests and which comprised Sam Gilmour, Fritz Siemoneit, Victor Stoehr, Louis Friederich, L. G. Meisinger and Martin Sporer, as well as Ordell Hennings, secretary of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Miss Wilhelmina Henriksen, president of the Junior Woman's club, two recently formed civic bodies.

Talks on Industries

The theme of the meeting was to be industry and agriculture, or "Smokestacks and Strawstacks" and A. L. Tidd, chairman of the industries committee was presented and gave a very fine talk on the development of civic interest and community industrial growth. Mr. Tidd well stated that no industry was ever built except that some man built it, no community built that the men and women in it had not built it. He cited Chicago a few years ago when eight civic leaders agreed to give one-tenth of their time to the community development and their efforts had brought on the greatest of civic growth and expansion. In the modern day women had contributed a great part to the building of communities and industries. Mr. Tidd gave a history of the Flower club and the annual flower show that had attracted statewide attention and which developed from the hard work of a few individuals until it had grown to very large proportions with 300 different entries that represented 900 homes. While the city had two large industries, that of the BRES shops and the Norfolk Packing Co., the prospects were excellent that there would be more here. Mr. Tidd stated that his committee had contacted a large number of industries and that much favorable comment was received and a number very much interested in the prospects of Plattsouth as an industrial center. He also told of the starting of the river navigation on June 1st and its promise of hope to the middle west for developing industries for the future. This city made the ideal port for the south Platte territory and would develop some real results of the river navigation. He cited the interest of the Burlington in the local situation in development and the advantages of this city as a railroad center to add to the shipping facilities in case of establishment of river navigation to the sections farther west in the state. Mr. Tidd cited a number of activities and buildings that had been secured as the result of the individual effort of himself and others. It was this getting after the object desired that finally resulted in the success.

Speaks on 4-H Work

Mr. George K. Hetrick, of the agricultural committee, presented Richard Spangler, well known young farmer, who discussed the advantages of an organized farm program and 4-H work that had helped develop a higher standard of agriculture in the country and particularly in the middle west. Mr. Spangler outlined some of the developments of the 4-H work in the nation and pointed to the fact that the state having the largest 4-H enrollment was Alabama with 90,000 members, while all over the country the increasing interest was shown in new clubs, and in beef and pig clubs the young people learned many developments in the successful handling of the modern day farm and its problems.

"Smokestacks and Strawstacks"

Mr. Motter was presented by Mr. Davis and as usual, "Red" as he is so well known in this section of Nebraska, was in his best vein with an array of clever humor and hard and pertinent facts as to the civic interests and needs. Under Mr. Motter, Fremont Chamber of Commerce activities have reached a high peak, it ranks as one of the most popular cities in the state for public gatherings. Mr. Motter praised the excellent work of the local industries committee and the development of the 4-H work as the best means of promoting "Smokestacks and Strawstacks."

Mr. Motter stated that the present trend in large industries was to break up the great units and have plants established in many parts of the nation where living conditions were better and the contentment of workers more likely. In recent years labor troubles and difficulties as well as heavy tax problems had made industry look forward to decentralization plans and in which this section of the nation might look forward to a share. Nebraska was one of the states most favored by the fact of its freedom from many of the nuisance taxes of other states, its excellent light and power facilities and rates, home possibilities and also the great advantage of the rail and water transportation systems. He told of the great interest that the "white spot" campaign had made in the nation and the interest that it had centered on Nebraska and its fine system of government.

The speaker also stressed the fact that while government might give relief to sustain life among the people, as a matter of necessity, it was only by the absorbing of unemployment through private employment that any definite success could be achieved. He also urged that a complete and accurate survey of a city or community should be made that all of the necessary facts as to schools, churches, recreational programs could be placed in the hands of those who might desire to locate their industries in new localities. He urged that all information be correct and to the point in the surveys.

Mr. Motter also touched on the matter of the promotion of the things that a community has, building and supporting these as well as seeking new ones. He gave several instances of this kind at Fremont and urged that the community know itself and its factories and industries.

Mr. Motter called the attention of the audience to the fact that the state is agricultural in its basic industry, that the things that are raised on the farm are those which form the output of the state and which should receive promotion. The speaker pointed out that beef and pork are raised on the Nebraska farm and then shipped out of the state to be processed and then brought back to the state for sale. Corn is raised in Nebraska and then shipped east where it is converted into foods and shipped back to be consumed by the people who produced it. Lard, a product of Nebraska farms and packing plants, suffers while substitute oils and grasses are imported for cooking and food use. Mr. Motter raised the question of why not process these articles in Nebraska, uniting Nebraska agriculture to Nebraska industry.

In a short talk on retail promotion Mr. Motter gave a resume of a questionnaire that had been sent out in the Fremont area and gave several of the answers that had been received as to the reaction of the patrons to the clerk or employes in the retail stores in which they had traded. In the criticism, the largest had been that of the indifference of the clerk, the second that of ignorance of prices and the material that they were selling, while the third was that of making mistakes and saying nothing about it to the customer, who later found the mistake made. These were the most frequently cited criticisms of the work of the retail store worker.

After the speaking a very fine luncheon was served by the management of the hotel for the Chamber of Commerce to their guests.

WAS THIS CONSTITUTIONAL?

Though research workers of the Federal Writers' Project, WPA, found the following novel marriage ceremony reported in an 1893 Nebraska newspaper, they do not vouch for its authenticity. It was related that a western Nebraska justice of the peace, in tying the marital knot, used this form: "Do you solemnly swear that you will support the Constitution of the United States, the Constitution of the State of Nebraska and perform the duties of man and wife to the best of your ability?"

Old World a Wonderland to Local Ladies

Misses Gerda and Alpha Peterson Visit Some of Oldest Lands in the World's History.

Letters received here from Misses Gerda and Alpha Peterson, dated at Rome, Italy, on May 6th, tell of some of the very interesting spots that they have visited on their tour of the old world and which so far has brought them into some of the oldest lands in the modern civilization that border on the Mediterranean sea.

The Plattsmouth ladies had their desire to spend the Easter holidays in the holy land and to visit Jerusalem, whose very walls speak of the history of the Christian faith and history. Landing at Jaffa they had started the journey eastward across the holy land by bus and had hoped to have a stop at Bethlehem, but owing to the unrest in the country and the warfare between the Arabs and Jews through the land, their bus merely slowed down at this sacred spot. They had the privilege of visiting the many places of religious interest in Jerusalem, but where was felt the tension of the situation between the warring factions and which was kept under control by the English forces only with difficulty. They had quarters in the foreign section of the city and found that due to conditions that a curfew law was enforced for all as a matter of safety and at night the city was silent save for the troops in control.

One of their most interesting experiences was the visit to Egypt and the valley of the Nile. They found that the Nile delta well deserved its name as a great productive section of the world and there the harvests were on and the valley green with vegetation, grains and fruits growing through the length of this watercourse. They visited at Cairo, the capitol city, finding many interesting sights in the ancient community where had long ruled the princes of Egypt. They were unable, however, to glimpse the royal family of Egypt as the youthful king and queen and their infant heir were all suffering from the childish malady of chicken pox. The fruits of the Nile valley they found were exceptionally fine and while the bananas grown were much smaller than those sold in this country, they had a very exceptional flavor.

The ladies are now completing their tour of Italy which will include Venice, Florence and Milan with its great cathedral and art galleries. They go from Italy into France and then into the Swiss and German countries for a tour before going to Sweden, Norway and Denmark for a tour in the land of their ancestors.
